Steel Men Yield In Mine Dispute; Strike Near End

Accepts Check-Off Plan With Union Alliance Up to Workers.

Protection Is Demanded Against Coercion of Employes.

President Roosevelt was notified yesterday by officials of steel companies operating "captive" coal mines in Pennsylvania of their conditional acceptance of the "check-off" system.

The companies made it conditional by accepting with the understanding that all of their employes shall be free to join or not to join any union.

The operators also insisted their employes who do not wish to join a union in some "effective way be assured of adequate protection from interferences, restraint, or coercion of any kind."

It is not the intention of the steel companies to surrender any right which they may have to afford such protection, officials informed Mr. Roosevelt.

President's Letter Read.

An agreement to accept the "check-off" was reached at a conference in New York Tuesday, at which Nathan L. Miller, general counsel of the Iron and Steel Institute, presented a letter sent to steel officials last week by the President. It detailed an eight-point program by which a settlement of the strike would be forced in event the mine owners failed to reach an agreement with the workers.

The President was notified by Mr. Miller of the conference, and the notification was accompanied by the following letter addressed to Mr. Roosevelt by the steel companies:

"The undersigned companies, operating directly or through affiliated companies' so-called captive coal mines, have been advised of your letter of October 9, 1933.

"Each renews the assurance which has been previously given to you and which was restated by the committee invited to confer with you on Saturday that we are desirous of cooperating to the fullest extent in your recovery program.

"We understood at the conference on Saturday that the only point of difference in which it was left that we could go further in our cooperation related to the collection of dues from those of our employees who were members of a union.

Objection Stated.

"As we attempted to make plain to you in our letter of October 6, 1933, our objection to the so-called 'check-off' system is that we believe, in the light of past experience, that the inevitable consequence of the adoption of such a system will be the closed union shop, unless it can be adequately safeguarded.

"Under the National Recovery Act we are required to employ our workers without regard to their membership or nonmembership in any labor organization and we feel that we owe a duty to protect our employees who do not desire to be coerced into joining a union.

"However, we will recognize voluntary orders for payments of any portion of the wages of any employes of our coal mines for dues

Ship Disaster Toll Up to 26

5 Survivors of Hurricane Wreck Land at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (AP).—Twenty-six lives are believed to have been lost in the sinking of the Grecian steamer Annoula in a terrific hurricane off the coast of North Carolina last Saturday, it was stated by five survivors who landed here today on a rescue vessel.

Brief wireles reports last Tuesday from the rescue ship, the steamer Montello, indicated 21 persons missing.

The survivors were picked up Sunday night in a lifeboat about 110 miles northwest of Bermuda.

Capt. George Couvielos, of the Annoula, was confined to a stateroom of the rescue ship with injuries received while on his vessel.

Other survivors said 10 men leaped into the water as the ship foundered. Of these, only two made the lifeboat. Others who were lost are believed to have gone down with the ship.

Grant's Kin Aids Legion Auxiliary

Indianapolis, Oct. 12 (AP).—Mrs. William H. Biester, jr., new president of the American Legion Auxiliary, today announced appointment of Princess Cantacuzene, nee Julia Grant, as chairman of the National defense committee.

The princess, whose home is in Sarasota, Fla., is a granddaughter of Gen. U. S. Grant.

Mrs. Biester arrived today from her home in Philadelphia to take up her new duties.

Pinchot 'Mystery Letter' on Davis Still Unopened

(Associated Press.)

The "mystery letter" from Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania to the Senate regarding Senator Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, remained unopened last night, despite the senator's acquittal on charges of lottery law violation.

Pinchot sent the letter to the Senate nearly a year ago, asking it remain unopened until the trial was completed, for fear it would prejudice the case. The goveror declined to intimate what it contained.

Vice President Curtis ordered the document locked in the safe of the secretary of the Senate. Edwin A. Halsey, the secretary, said he would open it only on order of Vice President Garner.

Davis, Freed In "Lottery," Sobs Thanks

Crowd Cheers as Verdict Acquitting Senator Is Announced.

New York, Oct. 13 (AP).—Long-standing lottery charges against U. S. Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, described by Government prosecutors as a "Mussolini of the Moose," and by his own counsel as "a great humanitarian," were wiped out by a jury's verdict tonight.

Davis, director general of the Loyal Order of Moose, and Theodore G. Miller, head of the Moose propaganda department, were acquitted in Federal Court after a trial lasting three weeks three and a half days.

It was the second trial for Davis, the first having ended in a mistrial a year ago.

Shaken by Sobs.

The senator greeted the verdict with a toss of his graying, leonine head. Tears welled into his eyes. A cheer shook the courtroom and spectators pressed forward to congratulate the acquitted men. Sobbing, Davis said:

"When the verdict came in I offerred my thanks to God. I never lost my faith because I knew I was innocent. I am very grateful to the jury, to the court, and to my many friends who never lost faith in me."

Davis and Miller were accused of authorizing the interstate shipment of tickets for Moose "charity balls." The Government, contending cash prizes were awarded ticket holders, held the affairs constituted lotteries.

Will Address A. F. of L.

Davis said he would leave for Washington tonight to address the American Federation of Labor, at the invitation of William Green, its president.

"I expect to get back home to Pittsburgh as soon as possible," he aded, "to visit my dear old blind father."

The reference to his father caused the 50-year-old Davis, who rose from immigrant boy to secretary of labor, to burst into tears again.

Investors Lose Battle To Get Insull Fund

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—A Federal judge decided today that an account in the Harris Trust & Savings Bank belonged to Constantine S. Eftax and not to exiled Samuel Insull.

The account, reported to contain $50,000 in gold and considerable cash and valuable securities, was released from a temporary restraining order under which Attorney Samuel A. Ettelson had sought to claim it for Insull investors.

Hitler Calls Arms Envoy From Parley

Geneva Crisis Threatens as Germans Stiffen Their Demands.

Norman Davis Working to Halt Ultimatum From Allies.

Geneva, Oct. 12 (AP).—Dr. Rudolf Nadolny, German representative at the disarmament conference, was summoned hastily to Berlin tonight by Chancellor Hitler in view of the arms crisis.

Nadolny's sudden announcement that he was boarding an airplane for Berlin tomorrow caused a sensation in league circles.

It was authoritatively learned that the Germans have considerably stiffened their attitude and that Nadolny has insisted anew upon the acquisition of defensive armaments. The situation therefore is regarded as more grave than before.

Fears were expressed in Geneva that the Reich cabinet has been called into urgent session.

Telephone to Berlin.

The announcement was made shortly after a long telephone conversation between Nadolny and Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath in Berlin. Nadolny then visited Sir John Simon, of Great Britain, and explained the situation.

Decision of the German government to confer with its delegate on arms developments followed a concentrated study on the draft of a resolution, participated in by Sir John Simon and experts of other delegations.

The essence of the resolution was that Germany's new conscript army must temporarily be satisfied with the small arms authorized by the Treaty of Versailles.

Davis in Conference.

United States Ambassador at Large Norman H. Davis was with Sir John when Nadolny telephoned asking if he could join them.

It was learned after Nadolny's talk tonight the idea of handling the resolution of which Sir John was working today will be dropped. Davis has shown that he was tenaciously hostile to any presentation by other powers of an ultimatum to Germany.

The resolution upon which Sir John Simon was working embodies the views of Great Britain, France and the United States.

Wants No Ultimatum.

Davis not only was hostile to anything in the nature of an ultimatum to Germany, but he also insists Germany be given the right to a free discussion of the disarmament subject.

The stiffening in the attitude of Great Britain which is regarded as having influenced France to stiffen her own stand was authoritatively explained as due to what was called the aggressive cmapaign of Hitler's Nazis creating apprehension in Europe.

London, Oct. 12 (AP).—Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, spoke in vigorous defense of the policies of the national government tonight and declared Britain had reached the utmost limit of disarmament.

"We can go no further on the road to one-sided disarmament because the security of our empire is one of the great bulwarks of world peace," he said.

U. S. Brings Ships From Cuban Area

Four Cutters, Destroyers Being Withdrawn.

(Associated Press.)

The State Department late yesterday announced that four American ships were being withdrawn from the Cuban area.

The ships were the Coast Guard cutters Hunt from Mantanzas, and Gresham from Puerto Padre, and the destroyers Hamilton from Manzanillo and Goff from Cienfuegos.

Khaki Shirt 'Invaders' Halted at District Line

Police Vanquish 'Army' in Campaign to Make Roosevelt Dictator.

A national movement to install President Roosevelt as "dictator" of America, and, incidentally, to sell millions of khaki shirts suffered a simultaneous collapse yesterday in Washington and Philadelphia.

Police here turned back 44 self-styled Khaki Shirts from Baltimore and Camden, N. J., in what they termed the first Fascist "march on Washington." Philadelphia police arrested 27 others and seized 2 bushel baskets full of weapons.

Arthur J. Smith, organizer of the undertaking, jumped through a window and eluded Philadelphia police as his "generals," "colonels" and lesser aids impatiently awaited a scheduled advance on the Capital.

Smith was sought on a warrant charging fraudulent conversion, sworn out by his bodyguard, James Lasky.

William H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, termed the movement a mere "shirt-selling racket."

The bewildered marchers offered no resistance when police met their two trucks and three battered automobiles at the District line on Rhode Island avenue and escorted them to the nearby Fifth Precinct police station.

A strange picture was presented by the uniformed visitors as they were lectured by Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives. Like the Mexican army, a survey revealed six "generals" and four "colonels" in the small group.

Most impresive was a 300-pound commander, "Maj. Gen." George C. Zirkler, resplendant in a khaki uni-

Retail Price Mark-Up Hit By Leaders

Industrial, Farm Recovery Chiefs Will Oppose Adopting Plan.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt's industrial and farm recovery chiefs will recommend against administration approval of minimum price mark-ups for the Nation's retail industry as proposed in distribution codes awaiting action.

Instead, it was disclosed last night, they will recommend the Government contribute its efforts to stop price cutting.

The leaders will suggest that the administration offer to list as an unfair trade practice the sale of merchandise below the invoice cost to the retailer.

Approval Expected.

Basis for the agreement was reached by Secretary Wallace, Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, and Farm Administrator George N. Peek during a conference, at which it was also decided to harmonize fully the fundamental policies of the two emergency agencies.

If approval is given at the White House, and this appeared certain tonight, it would mean rejection of a minimum retail mark-up by the food and grocery industry of 7½ per cent over delivered cost, and a 10 per cent minimum mark-up by other retail groups.

Farm administration officials yesterday completed a four-day hearing on the master food code. Besides calling for the 7½ per cent merk-up by retailers, it proposed a minimum mark-up of 2½ per cent for wholesalers.

The remaining distribution groups, with their proposal for a minimum of 10 per cent, come under the jurisdiction of the NRA, which hopes to complete action on the code within a few days.

Peek Outspoken Foe.

Peek has been an outspoken opponent of the mark-up in the food code and recently authorized Dr. Frederick C. Howe, consumer's council for the farm administration, to make a public attack on the minimum mark-up plan.

It was reported that at yesterday's conference between Wallace, Johnson and Peek it was agreed the task of enforcing the minimum mark-up provisions would be difficult and that the administration's principal interest—stopping the sale of "loss leaders"—could be served

7 Plane Deaths Linked to Bomb

Coroner Hints Possibility in Indiana Crash.

Valparaiso, Ind., Oct. 12 (AP).—Coroner Carl Davis tonight said he was investigating, as a remote possibility, whether a bomb may have wrecked the United Air Lines plane at Chesterton Tuesday night, causing seven deaths.

The theory presented itself, he said, during an inspection of the wreckage.

Indications were that some sort of an explosion occurred, he added.

U. S. Starts Back-to-Land Experiment

$25,000,000 Is Set Aside for Placing 200 West Virginia Families.

The Federal Government moved yesterday in this country's first "back to the land" experiment, setting aside 1,100 acres in Preston County, W. Va., for settlement by 200 families.

Selection of Preston County was announced by Secretary of Interior Ickes, who hailed the project as in many ways "the most significant in this period."

It was the initial step in a Federal subsistence homestead program which ultimately may take hundreds of thousands of surplus industrial workers from overcrowded cities and establish them on small subsistence tracts.

Prof. Wilson in Charge.

Prof. M. L. Wilson, of the University of Montana, author of the domestic allotment farm relief plan, will manage the social experiment. He is already at work on preliminary phases of the plan. To finance the project $25,000,000 has been allocated from Public Works funds.

Practically all of the 200 families settled on subsistence farms near Morgantown will be selected from unemployed coal miners in the vicinity, it was stated.

Hundreds of families are stranded in the region, due to depletion of mines and transfer of activities to more productive fields.

Hope that eventually some 250,000 surplus bituminous coal miners thus may be provided for on small Government air farms, is held by President Roosevelt.

Modest Homes Planned.

The Preston County project calls for construction of modest homes with 2 to 4 acres for each family. Plots will be suitable for gardening, fruit trees, poultry raising and production of other foodstuffs for home consumption. Every community also will have a part time industrial establishment. Homes will cost about $2,000 each, and will become the property of settlers under 20-year purchase contracts, permitting small monthly payments and low interest charges.

Located in a fertile agricultural

Macon Casts Off, California-Bound

Giant Airship Following Southern Route.

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 12 (AP).—The Navy's giant airship Macon cast off from her mooring mast at 6:05 p. m. (E. S. T.) today and soared toward her new permanent base at Sunnyvale, Calif. Troublesome winds delayed her departure two hours.

Commander Alger H. Dresel, 13 officers, 55 enlisted men and three civilians are aboard.

Taking a Southern route, the Macon is scheduled to pass over Richmond, Va.; Charlotte, N. C.; Macon and Atlanta, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Shreveport, La.; Fort Worth, Abilene, Pecos and El Paso, Tex.; Phoenix and Yuma, Ariz.; Monterey and San Diego, Calif.

Prison Isle Ordered In Crime War

Attorney General Tells Convention of Step Against Gangs.

Most Vicious Convicts Will Be Isolated Off California Coast.

Launching the first organized, Nation-wide drive to mobilize public opinion behind Government and local agencies in a war against crime, 200 delegates to the National Anti-crime conference in the auditorium of the Department of Commerce Building last night cheered the announcement by Attorney General Homer S. Cummings of a new Federal island prison on which will be isolated criminals of the vicious irredeemable type.

Distinguished jurists, criminologists and law enforcement officers from all parts of the country, gathered for a three-day conference to lay the ground work for America's challenge to the criminal, heard the Attorney General sound the keynote of that challenge, which was broadcast over a national network.

High spots of Attorney General Gummings' address were:

Announcement that Alcatraz Prison, located on a precipitous, inaccessible island in San Francisco Bay, a mile from shore, will be used henceforth for the incarceration of dangerous, intractable criminals of the type of "Machine Gun" Kelly and Harvey Bailey, who will be among its first inmates.

Machine Gun Pact.

Announcement of an agreement signed by American manufacturers of machine guns with NRA and the Department of Justice not to dispose of such weapons to other than law enforcement officers, banks, or institutions having police departments;

Denunciation of lawyers who are in touch with and regularly employed by criminals as "scavengers of the bar" who must be eliminated;

Proposal for establishment of a National institute of criminology, and the formation of State constabulary in every State.

Thanks Judge Vaught.

Declaration that "curious misapprehensions" about Scotland Yard have led that branch of the English police to be misrepresented, and an explanation of why no such agency will be etsablished here.

The Attorney General interrupted his set speech to extend thanks to Judge Vaught, of Oklahoma City, "for his courageous action in sentencing the Kellys to life imprisonment."

Former Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley, chairman of the National Council of '76, through which the Anti-Crime Conference will extend its efforts to every city and town, called upon the people of the Nation to compel local officials to enforce the laws or retire from office.

Local Enforcement.

"The United States Flag Association, which sponsored this conference," he said, "does not support any theory that would centralize in the Federal Government the responsibility for enforcement of local laws. Its purpose is to mobilize public opinion in every community to support all duly constituted public officials in their efforts to enforce the law."

Col. James A. Moss, president general of the United States Flag Association, acting chairman, announced that organizations with a total membership between 50 and 60 million persons were represented at the conference, which opened yesterday with registration at the Shoreham Hotel.

Sessions will continue through Saturday, with addresses by Hon. Hatton W. Sumners, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee; Hon. Clarence E. Martin, past president of the Bar Association; Richard Pearson Hobson, president of the World Antinarcotic League, and Mrs. Russell W. Magna, president general of the D. A. R.

In his keynote address, Attorney General Cummings stressed the im-

Prosecution of Gold Hoarders Ordered at Once by Cummings

(Associated Press.)

The Justice Department has instructed all United States attorneys to prosecute without delay every person illegally holding gold in excess of $1,000. Prosecutions will be ordered later against those hoarding more than $100.

Attorney General Cummings made this disclosure yesterday, adding that Federal prosecutors have been supplied with the text of the indictments, drawn in the Campbell case in New York as a model.

Writes to Prosecutors.

Mr. Cummings wrote the prosecutors:

"Special agents of the division of investigation of this department will present to you shortly for consideration reports involving alleged violations of the gold regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Treasury under the executive order of August 28, 1933, relating to the hoarding, export, and ear-marking of gold coin, bullion, or currency and transactions in foreign exchange.

"It is requested that you give these reports prompt attention with a view to instituting criminal prosecutions at the earliest practicable date in the cases in which the facts warrant such action.

Number Set at 44.

"You should feel free to call upon special agents of the Division of Investigation for any additional information or inquiry which you deem necessary."

The number of persons known to be holding gold illegally in excess of $1,000 was placed by the Attorney General at 44. He said, however, there were many others and that the department was ferreting them out as rapidly as possible.

There is more than $500,000,000 in gold coin, certificates and bullion still in circulation in the country, it was disclosed.

Justice Department records showed the largest number—14—of the hoarders against whom prosecutions are planned are in New York.

The numbers in other States are California, 10; Illinois and New Jersey, 3 each; Colorado, Maryland, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, 2 each; Iowa, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas, 1 each.

Hollywood Hints of Strike As Answer to Pay Dispute

Hollywood, Oct. 12 (AP).—The threat of a strike was heard in Hollywood today as actors and actresses, represented by the newly organized Screen Actors Guild, hurled new protests at reports that the motion picture code under consideration in Washington would provide for a salary-fixing board.

The warning of a walkout among the artistic talent of the industry came from Eddie Cantor, comedian and head of the guild. He said:

"If proposed articles 9 and 10 are included in the motion picture code, not an actor of importance will work in a studio which signs the code. These provisions are un-American. The days of slavery are over."

Besides the salary board, Cantor referred to reports that the code also would blacklist players who violated their contractual obligations.

"The big fellows in the guild," Cantor continued, "are not concerned about salaries. The guild is out to protect the little fellow that the administration should protect."

Rogers, Barthelmess and Dix are paid by the picture and their annual incomes are estimated to be between $100,000 and $300,000. Garbo, Wallace Beery, Dressler, Novarro, Crawford, Harding and Gaynor receive $3,000 a week or more, with Garbo probably at the top with $10,000.

Pickford, Chaplin and Lloyd are reported to clear between $500,000 and $2,000,000 on each production.

Shaw Calls Hitler Right—Up to Hilt

London, Oct. 12 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw enlivened a tea party this evening with a speech in which he declared:

"Hitler is perfectly right—he is right up to the hilt."

"Japan," he said, "has a race which believes it belongs to the family of God for the purpose of governing the rest of the world.

"The whole secret of Hitler has been that looking back on the Versailles Treaty he found other nations had been plundering Germany. Hitler found there was absolute determination in Germany to stop this."

3 Powers Back U. S. Warning on Nazi Sluggings

Van Loon Left One Suit; Dentist Gets the Others

Paris, Oct. 12 (AP).—Hendrik Van Loon, the writer, a guest of honor at dinner tonight in the American Woman's Club, had to come in a business suit while all other speakers at the table were dressed up.

It was the only suit he had left.

He explained in his after-dinner speech that all the clothes he had at his hotel had been attached on complaint of a local American dentist, who "evidently had been reading about the French budget deficit."

He said the bill amounted to 12,000 francs ($720). He plans to fight the dentist's action and get his clothes back.

Punishments Sought in British, Spanish and Dutch Messages.

Hull Directs Dodd to Act as Reich Delays Prosecutions.

Berlin, Oct. 12 (AP).—Three other countries today joined the United States in expressing grave concern over attacks during recent months upon their countrymen by German citizens—in a number of cases storm troopers.

The American Embassy received instructions from Secretary of State Hull to inquire what steps were being taken to prosecute Germans who attacked Americans. Simultaneously the Dutch Legation and the British and Spanish embassies received similar messages.

All made plain future relations with Germany may hinge on the outcome.

It was intimated that William E. Dodd, American Ambassador, will present Secretary Hull's note to the German government Friday.

The German press has not mentioned Mr. Hull's message.

Laxity Contended.

Earlier representations have been made by Switzerland, Poland, Russia, Austria and Czechoslovakia. All these and the four latest complaints appeared to hinge on a contention that outside of an apology by the foreign office, little else has been done.

The record of affidavits filed by 27 Americans, all covering cases since April 4, shows that only two persons have been taken into custody, one being fined 50 marks (about $17.50).

The American affidavits set out that all but seven cases involved actions of Nazi storm troopers. American authorities described their experiences and declared that police seemed loath to prosecute storm troopers.

Representations by the embassy after the foreign office apology, accompanied by assurances of prosecution, it was said, resulted in failure.

Consul Files Cases.

American Consul General George S. Messersmith tonight said nearly three-fourths of the cases in which Americans had been attacked were on file in his office as sworn affidavits. The others, he said, are in different consular offices in Germany.

A list of the cases follows:

March 3—Leon Jaffe, attacked by troopers in Berlin.

March 3—Henry H. Sattler, attacked by 15 storm troopers in Berlin.

March 4—Nathaniel S. Wolf, approached by six brown shirts, who entered his Berlin apartment, drew revolvers and struck him in the face. They took him to a Nazi hangout, thence to a woods, and ordering him to leave Germany immediately.

Threatened With Guns.

March 4—Edwin F. Dakin, threatened in his Berlin quarters by storm troopers with pistols.

March 7—Solomon Friedman, attacked by three storm troopers.

March 7—Mrs. Max Schussler, molested in her Berlin home by

3 Invade Jail, Murder Sheriff To Free Bandit

Gunmen Seize Keys After Shooting Officer at Lima, Ohio.

Lima, Ohio, Oct. 12 (AP).—In one of the boldest jail deliveries in Ohio history, a trio of gunmen tonight shot and killed Sheriff Jess Sarber, 50, and freed John Dillinger, a prisoner identified as a notorious Midwest bank robber.

After shooting the sheriff the gunmen seized Mrs. Sarber and Deputy Wilbert Sharpe and locked them in a cell.

The sheriff died shortly after the shooting, but before he lapsed into unconsciousness told doctors and newspapermen he recognized one of the gunmen as "Harry Copeland," who he said was named in circulars as one of the ten convicts who broke out of the Michigan City, Ind., prison September 26.

Deathbed Statement.

Indiana State police said none of the Michigan city fugitives was known by that name, but that there was a "Harry Copeland" who had been paroled from the prison and who was known as one of Dillinger's intimates.

Taken to Memorial Hospital as soon as he was found, Sheriff Sarber related the circumstances of the delivery just before he died. He said he was alone in the Allen County jail office when the three strangers walked in and announced, "we've come to get Dillinger."

Guns Are "Credentials."

'Where are your credentials?" Sarber said he demanded.

One of the three produced a revolver and said "these are our credentials. Turn him over."

Sarber made a move toward a gun and the gunmen fired.

The sheriff fell to the floor. Mrs. Sarber and the deputy ran to the office and were seized and locked in a cell.

Dillingern, 30 years old, had been captured at Dayton September 22 in the house of a woman said by police to be the sister of one of the ten Michigan City fugitives.

Held in Robberies.

The authorities said he was identified as a participant in the $21,000 holdup of the Massachusetts Avenue Bank at Indianapolis, in a $24,000 robbery of a bank at Farrell, Pa.; a $35,000 holdup of a bank at New Carlisle, Ohio, and in a $2,800 holdup of a bank at Bluffton, Ohio.

When arrested, Dillinger had $2,608 in new currency in his possession and in his room were four pistols, a rifle, a shotgun and two suitcases of ammunition.

He was turned over to Sheriff Sarber at Lima September 28 to stand trial for the Bluffton robbery.

Prince Leads Siam Revolt

Armed Force Marching on Bangkok After Taking Royal Airdrome.

Bangkok, Siam, Oct. 12 (AP). Prince Bovaradej, a member of the royal family and former defense minister of Siam, is marching on Bangkok at the head of an armed force.

He seized Donmaung Airdrome, the headquarters of the royal aeronautical service, today. His armed rebellion involves the provincial forces of the nation.

All telegraph and railway services were paralyzed by the uprising. Press censorship immediately was enforced and martial law proclaimed.

The fighting started in a suburban post of Bangkok at 2 p. m. The government immediately issued communiques expressing its intention of subduing the revolt and restoring peace and order. Foreign legations were assured of the safety of their residents and property.

The king and queen, who are at Huahin, expressed their regret that a member of the royal family should head the move against the present government.

Labor Reelects Green Ticket; Hits Inflation

Conservatives Block All Attacks on Recovery Program.

Convinced of the wisdom of its conservative leadership, the American Federation of Labor yesterday pledged support to President Roosevelt's recovery efforts, went on record against inflation, and reelected officers.

Attacks made on the NRA through the two weeks of the convention were renewed, only to be battered down under an avalanche of votes made possible by efforts of leaders and aid of administration spokesmen.

Indeed, such harmony was obtained finally that no opposition candidates appeared and the officers, from President William Green down, were reelected unanimously.

Fight on Depression.

Green, heartened, called his 4,000,000 followers together in an inaugural address and urged them toward a battle to the finish against the depression.

"We can not fail. We must not fail," he declared. "Labor must move forward, supporting those administering the national recovery act. If we fail the Nation will fail. With all the power and strength at my command, I shall lead this army of organized labor forward until we enjoy all the rights and privileges to which we are entitled."

Wild Inflation Hit.

Indorsing directly Green's statement at the opening of the convention that unrestrained and unregulated inflation would harm the worker, the 600 delegates then approved a resolutions committee report saying:

"Whether minimum wages are fixed by codification through the national recovery act, or by voluntary collective agreements between organized workers and associated employers, the fact remains that they are fixed and subject to change only after the most persistent and aggressive pressure on the part of wage earners.

Council Instructed.

"If our currency is to be allowed to fluctuate at random, and the level of money values is permitted freely to lessen, it must be apparent that with wages remaining at their fixed denominational values, there will then be experienced a corresponding lowering of the wage levels and earnings. Such a condition must not be allowed to take place."

This report also instructed the federation's executive council to "resort to every possible and practicable means at its command to prevent" unrestrained currency inflation.

San Francisco then was chosen over St. Louis and Atlantic City for the 1934 convention, with the date to be fixed by executive council. Green was nominated by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers, who, despite that he had participated in earlier revolts, declared that in view of "troubulous and perilous times" it was necessary to "demonstrate labor has faith in its leader."

"And no man has done more toward saving this republic than William Green," Lewis shouted.

List of Officers.

Others reelected were Frank Duffy, Indianapolis, first vice president; T. A. Rickert, Chicago, second vice president; Matthew Woll, Washington, third vice president; James Wilson, Cincinnati, fourth vice president; John Coefield, Washington, fifth vice president; Arthur O. Wharton, Washington, sixth vice president; Joseph N. Weber, New York, seventh vice president; G. M. Bugniazet, Washington, eighth vice president; Martin F. Ryan, Kansas City, treasurer, and Frank Morrison, Washington, secretary.

The harmony continued as other candidates withdrew to permit election of Joseph P. McCurdy, president of the Maryland and District of Columbia Federation of Labor, to be the fraternal delegate to the Canadian Trades Congress, and of M. J. Colleran, president of the plasterers' union, and Edward Flore, president of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes Union, to represent the Federation at the next British convention.

Clothing Workers Admitted.

Meanwhile, the convention voted to accept Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America into the A. F. of L., swelling its already increasing membership by thousands.

While the convention was able to achieve harmony as to leadership, it still was confronted with jurisdictional strife, with strikes resulting from failure of individual unions to agree among themselves as to division of work and members.

The situation, in fact, was such that General Contractors' code committee laid before the convention a resolution demanding the Federation immediately establish "effectual" national machinery to halt jurisdictional disputes.

If the machinery is not set up, the resolution stated, the building contractors will appeal to the NRA for relief, since "these disputes are contrary to the spirit of the recovery act and are operating to defeat the purposes of that act by delaying reemployment."

Contractor Group Hit.

President Colleran, of the plasterers, asserted that at a time when 90 per cent of the building trades has reached agreements with its contractors for working conditions under the codes, a new contractors' organization has arisen to "drag down all that has been done by the representatives of labor."

He said the organization is the Construction League.

He asked that the convention "force the issue within 48 hours with Gen. Johnson, the Recovery Administrator, to bring the building codes out of camphor."

Green replied there "does not seem to be any justification for the indefensive delay" in codifying the building industry and promised action.

Serial Is Key in Bond Swap

Banks Will Act in Practically All of Cases, or Holder May Go to Reserve Branch of Treasury.

(Associated Press.)

If you own a fourth Liberty bond, get it out and take a look at its serial number. If it begins with the letter A and ends in the digit 1, begins in J and ends in 9, or K and 0, or if it carries no letter and ends in the digits 1, 9 or 0, it has been "called" by the Treasury.

This means that the Government wants to redeem that particular bond and has given notice that after April 15 the bond will stop drawing interest. In exchange you can have cash or another bond, one of a new issue.

Interest Same for Year.

The usual way of making the transfer is to take your Liberty bond to your bank and tell the latter what you want. In almost all cases the banks make a practice of arranging the whole transaction, then notifying the bondholder of the status.

However, if you want to attend to it yourself, take the bond to any Federal Reserve Bank or branch or to the Treasury in Washington.

The bond given you in exchange will bear the same interest as your Liberty, 4¼ per cent, for the first year, but after that the yield will be 3¼ per cent. Thus the Treasury reduces the interest charges on the public debt.

Issue Priced at 101½.

At the same time the Treasury is offering for sale $500,000,000 of the new bond issue at a price of 101½, close to the market price of its last issue of similar bonds.

If you want to subscribe to that, go about it in the same way as in making a bond-for-bond exchange. However, if you go to the Treasury or Federal Reserve System for the latter, you will be required to give a certified check or an indemnity bond or some other guarantee that you will go through with your part of the transaction.

The Proceeds of the cash bond sale will be used to meet the running expenses of the Government and to pay those who ask cash for their fourth Liberties.

Sound Money Is Seen as Key in Bond Plan

Move to Refund Liberties Held as Warning to Inflationists.

(United Press.)

The decision to refund nearly $2,000,000,000 of fourth Liberty Loan bonds was interpreted in some quarters last night as a warning to inflationists that the White House will not tolerate tampering with the currency at the next session of Congress.

Success of the giant refunding operation is contingent upon a "sound money" program. Holders of called bonds are being asked to accept new bonds bearing a lower rate of interest.

The program will not be completed until next April. Thus, administration leaders will be in a position to influence inflation agitation in Congress by emphasizing that expansion of the currency might result in bondholders demanding cash and thus frustrating the refunding operations and jeopardizing Government credit.

Government Holds Club.

Although reports were slow in coming in to the Treasury because of the Columbus Day bank holiday in many States, officials were confident investors would assure success of the first part of the Government's program.

The Government, however, has an effective weapon to induce bond effective weapon to induce bond. This is a clause in the Thomas amendment to the farm bill which permits the Government to meet maturities on its public debt by printing United States notes, or greenbacks, and paying them to bondholders.

Financial Improvement Due.

Officials said this procedure would be followed only as a last resort. The Government's finances are expected to improve steadily as a result of a revival in trade and liquor taxes after repeal.

Meantime, a "sound money" pronouncement from President Roosevelt is expected momentarily.

This would reassure long-term capital and hasten success of the Liberty Loan refunding program. It also would set at rest considerable distrust by business regarding the Administration's monetary program.

The question of linking the American dollar and the British pound sterling will be taken up in a few days by the American and British representatives now discussing the Anglo-American war-debt situation. Little in the way of untangling of the involved debt situation is expected, but important progress toward a monetary "truce" is expected.

7 Auto Deaths Bring Warning

Driver, Jay-Walker Given Notice of Maximum Court Penalties.

Warning to reckless drivers and jay-walkers, backed by maximum sentences in Police Court, was issued yesterday by Traffic Director Van Duzer and Judge Isaac R. Hitt.

The warning came when Van Duzer called attention to the fact that seven persons, four of them pedestrians, were killed in traffic accidents the first ten days of October. The figures represent more fatalities than occurred any month this year.

Most of the fatal accidents have been avoidable, Van Duzer declared, and could have been avoided in most instances by motorists and pedestrians being careful while crossing intersections.

One of the drivers who struck a pedestrian had lived in the District six months, Van Duzer said, and still was driving on foreign tags and had not taken a traffic regulations examination. The other fatal accidents involved hit-and-run drivers, one of whom was intoxicated. The other has never been apprehended.

Luther Silent On Hull Talk

Ambassador, After Visit, Says They Discussed Mutual Interests.

Dr. Hans Luther, German Ambassador, talked with Secretary Hull yesterday on "all matters of interest" between the two countries. He declined to be more specific when asked whether the talk had to do with the Secretary's announcement of an investigation into prosecutions of Nazis accused of attacking Americans.

He denied emphatically that German propaganda is being spread in the United States by persons employed in consulates.

"Germany has absolutely no thought of interfering in the internal affairs of the United States or of any other country," he said.

Dr. Luther also talked with Assistant Secretary William Phillips, who has been following Geneva disarmament developments.

It is not our intention to surrender any right which we may have to afford them such protection."

Signed by Officials.

The letter was signed by officials of the Republic Steel Corporation, Inland Steel Co., Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, Wheeling Steel Corporation, Crucible Steel Co. of America, Interlake Iron Corporation, Mather Collieries, Pittsburgh Steel Co., the Corrigan-McKinney Steel Co., the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., Columbia Steel Co., H. C. Frick Coke Co., National Mining Co., Hostetter-Connellsville Coke Co., Sharon Coal & Limestone Co., United States Coal & Coke Co., United States Fuel Co., Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Bethlehem Mines Corporation, and the Weirton Coal Co.

The President acknowledged receipt of these communications declaring it not to be his understanding that the statement of conditions imposed by the mine owners, or any other statement in the letters from them and from Miller, intends to "interpret, modify, or qualify any existing statutory requirements or the exercise of any statutory administrative discretion.

"I note also that Mr. Moses, of the H. C. Frick Co., is engaged in negotiations with Mr. Murray as representative of your employes who are members of his organization," the President's communication said. "I am gratified to note this progress and I trust that negotiation may proceed—as you say—with the utmost dispatch in a very earnest effort to reach a solution of this difficult problem."

He referred to Phillip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Strike Believed Ended.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Announcement in Washington that the steel-owned bituminous operators would accept a modified form of the check-off system brought encouragement today that settlement of the Pennsylvania strike was near.

United Mine Workers of America officials declined to comment, but the attitude of the miners has been such that today's announcement would give them an opportunity to return to the mines.

The strike zone was quiet except for two dynamite blasts near one mine. No one was injured.

Spur Is Sought In Home Loan Bond Market

Administration Plans Move to Create Demand for Securities.

(Associated Press.)

Plans are being formulated for an effort to establish a satisfactory market for the $2,000,000,000 in bonds authorized for the Home Owners Loan Corporation, created by the last Congress to refinance home mortgages.

The bonds will be fed into the market gradually, as the corporation needs money. Figures released yesterday showed that more than 60,000 applications for loans totaling more than $175,000,000 have been approved tentatively by the 257 branch and State offices, but the money actually placed on October 6 was less than $2,000,000.

The lack of a ready market for the bonds has been of some concern to the administration. An over-the-counter market developed recently in New York, with quotations ranging from 83 to 92½, but it was declared the quotation "did not reflect the value of the bonds" and was unsatisfactory to the Government.

The bonds mature in 18 years and bear 4 per cent interest, the latter guaranteed by the Government, and are tax-exempt except for surtax, estate, inheritance and gift taxes. The Government does not guarantee the principal, and that factor had led to slow absorption. The depressed price was taken as indicative of the public attitude.

Jones Sees Value.

Moves have been made quietly within Government circles to establish their value as prime collateral. Comptroller J. F. T. O'Connor has approved them for the portfolios of national banks and for the receivers of national banks.

He announced this week that he was working on a plan to approve their exchange by conservators for frozen assets.

The reconstruction corporation has agreed to accept the bonds as collateral for loans up to 80 per cent of parity, and Chairman Jesse Jones said in a letter to the loan corporation "your bonds should be treated as prime collateral."

The loan board has also secured approval of the Treasury for use of the bonds at par for security as Government deposits and at market value to secure savings funds. The legal departments of several States have declared the bonds legal investments for their financial institutions.

Public Appeal Planned.

The board will soon go to the public with its arguments in favor of the purchase of home loan bonds. An effort probably will be made later to have them listed on the exchange.

The board will argue that although the Government does not guarantee principal, it has subscribed $200,000,000 in capital stock and the bonds have priority over that; that the margin of 1 per cent between the yield of the bonds and the interest to be charged by the corporation on mortgages is not only sufficient to pay operating expenses, but that later it may be possible to set up surplus and reserves, and that the margin between the value of the mortgaged property and the amount of loan to be made by the board makes the bonds a conservative investment of high yield in comparison with bonds which are not tax exempt.

2 Injured as Tons Of Dirt Fill Ditch

Excavation Sides Loosened by Passing Truck.

Buried beneath several tons of earth when a passing truck forced the sides of an excavation in on them, two workmen were injured, one of them seriously, yesterday.

The men, employed in widening Michigan avenue at First street northeast, were building a retaining wall around the McMillan Park filtration plant.

Peter Santoras, 44, 727 Fourth street northwest, was taken, unconscious, from the six-foot ditch after fellow workmen dug frantically. He was admitted to Freedmans Hospital suffering fractured ribs and possible internal injuries.

Mervin Jones, 210 C street northwest, who was only partly buried, was treated at Sibley Hospital for shock. Until the work progresses beyond the danger stage, that section of Michigan avenue will be closed to traffic.

Tobacco Trade Accord Signed By Wallace

Agreement Is Expected to Add 10 to 12 Millions on Producers' Income.

(Associated Press.)

A marketing agreement for flue-cured tobacco was signed last night by Secretary Wallace following its approval by a representative of the larger tobacco companies.

The agreement is retroactive and is effective as of 6 a. m. September 25.

Provisions of the agreement are:

The companies are to pay an average minimum price of 17 cents a pound for all flue-cured tobacco bought from September 25 to March 31, provided it is for use in this country.

The companies are to purchase at least 250,000,000 pounds of this year's crop which remained unsold on September 25. They agree also to pay the average minimum price.

Officials said the Government retained the power to examine company records to ascertain whether they are living up to the agreement.

The Farm Administration said the agreement should raise the income of producers by $10,000,000 to $12,000,000.

"The whole thing was a circus," Burke commented.

Art Smith advised members to buy their shirts direct from him, Moran said.

Philadelphia police guarded four armories there after receiving word the Khaki Shirts planned to seize ammunition.

New Duty Pact Aids England's Foreign Trade

British-Argentine Tariff Treaty Seen Here as Significant.

(Associated Press.)

Great Britain's aggressive pursuit of foreign trade was shown to have reached another success with the United States Department of Commerce announcement yesterday of details on the new and lower tariffs negotiated between Great Britain and Argentina.

Argentina has reduced rates on nearly 300 items and has agreed not to increase or to impose rates on many other items, whereas Great Britain undertook to maintain present rates on selected imports from Argentina, and to admit certain other items duty free.

Officials said privately that although Argentina's rate reductions were general so that the export of any of the items by any nation would come under the lower tariff cost, Great Britain tended to benefit more than other countries because the cuts affected products she is best equipped to manufacture.

Commerce officials viewed the development as important, first, because it resulted in lowering tariffs; second, because it showed with renewed emphasis how nations might maintain or increase their foreign trade position in another country without erecting higher barriers; third, because other nations did strive for a similar policy, tariffs might be reduced on a wide circuit.

How the new Argentine rates would work was exemplified by the duty on automobiles. Although the duty was reduced on all automobiles, its aid to England was marked because it lowered rates on cars of low weight—which the United States does not produce in quantity, but which England does. The United States could enter the market by producing comparable automobiles, as could any nation, but England would have the initial advantage.

Court Visits Fire Scene

Berlin, Oct. 12 (AP).—Insistence of Marinus van der Lubbe, Dutch brickmason, that he alone set the fire at the Reichstag and had no accomplices, was substantiated tonight to the satisfaction of the supreme court in a spectacular session at the scene of the conflagration.

As torches glared in the darkened Reichstag in a reconstruction of the circumstances surrounding the mysterious blaze, a witness, whose testimony last Tuesday was the cause of tonight's rehearsal, backed down on his former story, in which he said he saw two persons enter the building the night of the fire.

The witness was Werner Thaler, a typesetter, whose testimony contradicted that of others. He said he saw two lighted torches being carried through the building, about a yard apart. Tonight he said:

"I never said I had seen two persons there simultaneously."

He said he might have seen the same man twice.

NRA Meets Mine Owners' Power Test

Wagner Issues Ultimatum to Operators Ignoring Call for Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

NRA met a challenge of its authority last night with a declaration by Senator Wagner, of New York, National Labor Board chairman, that western Kentucky mine operators who refused to attend an arbitration hearing, "will be required to appear."

"People sometimes overlook the fact that we have all the power there is under the industrial act and all the sanctions of the law to prevent its violation," he said in promising action today that would cause the coal men to reconsider. He added an informal opinion that this result would be obtained without recourse to legal steps or to any formal force.

Await Formal Report.

The answer to another refusal to abide by NRA decision, that of New Rochelle, N. Y., employers who were ordered to take down their Blue Eagle insignia for alleged violation of the presidential reemployment agreement, was postponed by NRA until a formal report is received.

At the same time Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, issued a statement saying no employer could voluntarily surrender the Blue Eagle, and that local compliance boards must deal with any one who attempted to do so, either granting exceptions to the agreement terms if conditions required, or getting after competitors if their noncooperation was responsible for a merchant's attempt at surrender.

Seven Ignore Summons.

Western Kentucky mine operators had been summoned to a hearing yesterday to consider their refusal to deal with the United Mine Workers and insistence upon recognizing only the Independent Miners' Union, labeled by U. M. W. spokesmen as a "company union." One operator appeared, three wired they would not come, seven, including the Operators Association of Western Kentucky, ignored the summons.

What they ignored, said Wagner, was the authority of the President of the United States.

"But they won't ignore that long," he added.

"It would be no sin," he said, "if statesmen learned enough history to realize that no system implying the control of society by privileged seekers ever ended in any other way than collapse.

"The wisest of all the American statesmen insisted all his life that the way to develop an ideal social order was to leave every man the utmost freedom of initiative and action and always to forbid any man or group to profiteer at the expense of others."

Pact on Milk Marketing Up For Discussion

Distributors in District Area Confer Today on Agreement.

Milk distributors in the Washington area will meet this afternoon to consider the marketing agreement proposed by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

The Independent Milk Producers Association, which handles approximately 22 per cent of Washington milk, yesterday announced they had rejected the code. In so doing they followed the lead of the Arlington-Green Meadows-Fairfax Farms Dairies.

They decided to fight for a single price based on production costs to be determined by the Department of Agriculture. This method, they agreed, would be fairer to the producer.

"The Producers Association code," said Sefton Darr, attorney for the independents, "is unfair to the producers themselves. Under a one-price plan, the interests of both consumers and producers will be protected."

portance of the newly acquired Federal prison.

"A large percentage of the serious crimes are committed by men who have escaped from prison. At large, they prey upon the public; confined, they plan and encourage outbreaks. Intimidation, bribery and violence are their accustomed methods.

"The majority of the inmates of our prisons are well behaved, but a few desperate criminals among them present a menace to any penal institution. Relatives, friends and fellow members of the gang congregate near the prison to be of help when a favorable opportunity is offered. This condition exists where large penitentiaries are located.

"By negotiation with the War Department, we have obtained the use of Alcatraz Prison, located on a precipitous island in San Francisco Bay. Escapes are practically impossible. It has secure cells for 600 persons. Here may be isolated criminals of the vicious and irredeemable type so that their evil influence may not be extended to other prisoners who are disposed to rehabilitate themselves."

Washington Woman Hurt on Boston Post Road.

Unconscious for more than 48 hours, Miss Mildred M. Tytus, 29, Washington society woman, was reported near death in a Springfield, Mass., hospital last night, following an automobile accident on the Boston Post road early Wednesday.

She was found by a bus driver. Her wrecked car, which had crashed into a tree, was some distance away. Miss Tytus' shoes were torn from her feet. Police believe there was another passenger in the car who escaped unhurt.

Miss Tytus lives at 1900 Q street northwest. She is the daughter of the late Robb DePeyster Tytus, internationally known Egyptologist. She was returning from her summer estate at Tyringham, Mass.

Soviet Angered By Two Arrests

Manchukuo Police Seize Russian Agents of Chinese Railway.

Moscow, Oct. 12 (AP).—A dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, tonight reported the arrest of two more Russian officials of the Chinese Eastern Railway, drawing Soviet charges that Manchukuo authorities are attempting to deprive Soviet agents of a voice in the administration of the railway.

The dispatch presaged greater tension between Japan and Russia over affairs in Manchukuo.

The arrests were said to have been made on the western section of the line by Manchukuan police acting without a warrant.

Meanwhile, renewed demands have been made on Manchukuan authorities by Soviet Consul Gen. Slavutski at Harbin for an answer to his previous protests against detention without charges of six Soviet agents of the railroad, arrested last month.

Capt. Shannon started his Army career in the ranks of the Philippine constabulary.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Margaret K. Shannon, 7701 Georgia avenue northwest.

Lawyers Assail Ford In Sweeten Litigation

Philadelphia, Oct. 12 (AP).—Henry Ford's alleged failure to remember certain things in the purchase of the Lincoln Motor Co. was characterized by counsel for the Sweeten Automobile Co. today as a "cowardly refusal to stand by his promises."

British Drive To Stabilize Dollar Hinted

Program of Roosevelt Subject of Constant Talk in London.

London, Oct. 12 (AP).—With opening of the Anglo-American debt negotiations in Washington, President Roosevelt and his administration's recovery program have become the subject of controvery in Great Britain, with cabinet ministers seemingly opening a barrage on the American President's policies.

Some American official observers in London believe they see a new British drive being launched for stabilization of the dollar.

Baldwin Speech Awaited.

Few public addresses here on economic or political subject fail to include either criticism or condemnation of the Roosevelt policies, like the blasts by Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, and Sir Henry Bucknall Betterton, minister of labor, last night.

Runciman declared Britain now was the strongest financial country in the world, and in a later speech at Penzance he said:

"President Roosevelt, greatest autocrat in the world, has chosen to make a huge experiment. If it fails, it means another period of depression in the United States, and that can not occur without having its effect on us.

"But it should be remembered that America would have made a considerable contribution toward world financial confidence had she stabilized her dollar in relation to the pound and the franc."

Debts, Reparations Hit.

Betterton declared British improvement rested on a sound basis, but that the world as a whole never would recover until it had disposed of its incubus of reparations and war debts.

Contrasting these utterances, Leonard J. Reid, financial editor of the Daily Telegraph, said Roosevelt was being criticized in the Eastern United States, but "he could speak directly to his countrymen tomorrow night and hold them in his hand."

Reid said general conditions in the United States showed a 30 per cent improvement under Roosevelt.

New Air Route To West Begun

Service From Here Passes Over Charleston, and Direct to Chicago.

Direct air line service connecting Washington and Chicago, via Charleston, W. Va., Cincinnati and Indianapolis, was inaugurated yesterday by American Airways. The announcement was made by Lester D. Seymour, president of the company, who said the service had been contemplated for several months.

The line follows a new air route westward from Washington to Cincinnati, continuing to Chicago, through Indianapolis, over American Airways' present route.

Westbound planes will leave Washington at 12:30 p. m. (EST), Charleston at 3:06 p. m., Cincinnati at 5:10 p. m., and Indianapolis at 5:22 p. m. (CST), arriving in Chicago at 6:54 p. m. (CST). Eastbound planes leave Chicago at 8:30 a. m. (CST). Indianapolis at 10:12 a. m., Cincinnati at 12:30 p. m. (EST), and Charleston at 2:01 p. m., arriving in Washington at 4:10 p. m.

In addition to opening a new through route from Washington to the West, Mr. Seymour said, this new service will provide air transportation facilities to a section of the United States, in and about Charleston, which never before has been served by a major air line.

J. Edwin Geigan, Jr., Air Student, Dies

J. Edwin Geigan, jr., student at McKinley High School and widely known for his activities in the Model Aircraft League, died yesterday at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Edith Geigan, 146 R street northeast, following a lengthy illness.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the home of his aunt. Interment will be in Loudoun Park Cemetery, Baltimore.

Masons Close Sessions Here With Election

Ohioan Made New Leader and St. Louis Chosen for 1936 Meet.

The General Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of the United States concluded the forty-second triennial convention yesterday by electing officers and attending a luncheon at the House of the Temple, Supreme Council, Southern Jurisdiction of the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite.

William T. S. O'Hara, Toledo, Ohio, was chosen general grand high priest. He succeeds John W. Neilson, Concordia, Kans.

Others elected were Mattison Boyd Jones, Los Angeles, deputy general high priest; John R. Anderson, Raleigh, N. C., general grand king; George A. Holland, Lexington, Ky., general grand scribe; William E. Goff, Battle Creek, Mich., general grand captain of the host; Ray V. Denslow, Trenton, Mo., general grand principal sojourner; Wilbur A. Scott, Providence, R. I., general grand royal arch captain; Early H. Johnson, Columbus, Ga., general grand master, third veil; Edward W. Spottswood, Missoula, Mont., general grand master, second veil; Fred H. Pocock, Fort Wayne, Ind., general grand master, first veil.

Gustav A. Eitel, Baltimore, and Charles A. Conover, Coldwater, Mich., were reelected general grand treasurer and general grand secretary, respectively. Harry W. Harvey was reappointed general grand custodian of the work.

The next convention will be held in St. Louis, in 1936.

Scottish Earl Loses Masonic Ring Here

The Earl of Cassilis, Scottish nobleman, many times decorated for bravery in the World War, lost his gold thirty-third degree Masonic ring somewhere between the Willard Hotel and the Masonic Temple yesterday.

The Earl, a leading figure in the Old World, has been here attending sessions of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons.

Rights Flouted, Firemen Told

Commissioners Accused of Blocking Appeal to Congress in Row.

Declarations that firemen are being refused their constitutional rights of petition to Congress by regulations drawn for them by the District Commissioners, allegedly through the chief engineer, were made before the City Firefighting Association last night by Paul E. Jamieson, counsel.

Jamieson read sections of rules for firemen, purporting to show they were allowed to petition Congress only if the chief engineer and the Commissioners approved.

The controversy arose over a fight by the association to liberalize existing regulations so as to permit firemen to live outside the District line.

Jamieson declared that he would carry the fight to Congress unless the Commissioners acceded.

Michael A. Foley Rites Set Today

Retired Contractor Dies at Age of 67.

Michael A. Foley, 67, of 642 Tenth street northeast, retired Washington plastering contractor, died yesterday in Providence Hospital following a brief illness.

Mr. Foley, a lifelong resident of this city. He was a charter member of Plasterers Local No. 96. He retired about 5 years ago.

Six children, Michael and Edward Foley and Mrs. Catherine Carberry, Mrs. Marie McKeever, Mrs. Agnes Magruder and Mrs. Margaret Schroder, survive him.

Funeral services will be held at 9:30 a. m. today from Holy Name Church. Interment will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Rev. Tivnan Leads Spiritual Retreat

Services Held at Post Memorial Chapel.

The third annual spiritual retreat for Catholic members of the Army Medical Center opened last night at the Post Memorial Chapel, Army Medical Center. The Rev. Edward P. Tivnan, S. J., of Boston College, former president of Fordham University, is in charge of the spiritual exercises.

In conjunction with the retreat this year, the Forty-Hour Devotion will be observed for the first time at Walter Read Hospital, beginning today.

Services during the Triduum will consist of morning masses at 5:45 and 7:30 o'clock with short instruction at each mass. The evening service will be held at 7:45 o'clock.

At 8:30 tonight there will be a special conference for Catholic women and tomorrow night at the same hour a special conference for men.

Thompson, Former Bar Head, Marries Here

Guy A. Thompson, former president of the American Bar Association, and Mrs. G. H. Shields, both of St. Louis, were married here yesterday in the Church of the Epiphany.

The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Z. Barney Phillips, Senate chaplain.

District Store Chiefs Explain Gain in Prices

Statement on Situation Issued After Hearing Held by Peek.

Leading department store executives of the Capital met yesterday and issued an explanatory statement of the facts brought out in the testimony Wednesday before Coadministrator George N. Peek, of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, on the local markup in cotton goods prices.

The statement says:

"That they attributed the increased wholesale prices to surcharges added by manufacturers to cover the manufacturers' increased expenses incidental to the higher wages and shorter hours under the NRA, which is reasonable and justifiable, in most cases ranging from 10 to 20 per cent above the original purchase price.

Exceptional Cases.

"In a few exceptional cases, however, the adjustments ranged from 30 to 45 per cent, which were considered by the merchants to be unreasonable and are being contested.

"That the cotton processing tax is a negligible item and has been absorbed by the merchants and not reflected in their retail prices. Furthermore, that salespeople have been instructed not to refer to the processing tax as a reason for the higher prices on cotton goods, it being so apparent that such higher prices that do exist are in the main due to increased wholesale costs of merchandise.

"It developed at the hearing that hundreds of thousands of dollars were invested by Washington retailers in staple wearing apparel and household needs at the low prices prevailing during the spring and early summer, that substantial shipments were received prior to the surcharges mentioned above, that this merchandise is priced on the lower base cost, and only such items now being received and billed at the higher cost are being retailed on an average cost with similar items on hand.

Hearing Constructive.

"Although all department stores in the District have added hundreds of employes to their pay rolls, the increased cost of operation is not reflected in their retail prices, on the assumption that the increased purchasing power of the people and the larger sales volume which will follow will care for this added cost.

"The hearing was a very constructive movement to encourage public understanding and confidence in the existing retail prices of merchandise made of cotton, and should encourage the success of the "buy now" movement which is being fostered by the administration."

Winkler's Aid Pleads To Remain in Jail

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—The late Gus Winkler's bodyguard, David Goldblatt, was offered freedom today, but he preferred to stay in jail.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker ordered his release, but the reputed pay-off man for the slain crime boss pleaded to remain in a cell.

without authorizing minimum mark-ups.

Peek and Johnson both were represented as hopeful that the sale-below-cost prohibition will be sufficient to insure elimination of "loss leaders" in retail distribution.

The practice of selling articles below cost to stimulate trade is blamed by Peek for having a depressing effect on prices of raw materials sold by farmers.

region, the new community will be self-governing, with the New England town meeting used as a model. A combination school and community center will be provided by the Federal Government.

Efforts will be made by Prof. Wilson to locate some suitable industry in the immediate neighborhood. Part-time industrial employment thus provided in the winter months will provide the necessary cash income for farming operations, annual payments, taxes and similar items.

In the interval required to locate some going industrial concern in the factory, the Interior Department will use the plant for manufacture of mail bags and other special equipment for the Postoffice Department. "It will serve to measure possibilities of decentralizing industry in this country, where the evils of overurbanization have become all too evident in the depression," Secretary Ickes said.

Rich Brazilian Is Near Death; Kin Questioned

Long Imprisonment May Prove Fatal to Aged Woman.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 12 (AP). Josina do Amaral, aged Brazilian woman multi-millionaire, found locked in a closet of a private residence here yesterday after her mysterious disappearance from her home in Sao Paulo more than a year ago, was receiving hospital treatment today.

Every effort is being made to save the life of the aged woman, who is suffering from weakness and her apparently long imprisonment.

Meanwhile, the police are holding her son, Mario do Amaral, his wife, Elsina, and two servants incommunicado pending investigation of the aparent kidnaping of the aged woman and that of her grandson, Paulo do Amaral, 20-year-old heir to the family fortune. No trace has been found of him.

The case is complicated by some of the relatives who are fighting for the right to the $2,500,000 estate. Police authorities say that young Paulo recently was believed to have filed a false certificate of his grandmother's death.

The police further say that family relatives are accusing the son, Mario, in connection with both disappearances. This Mario is said to deny.

Police Capt. Mirando Netto said Elsina had rented the house where her mother-in-law was found under an assumed name and fought the police, who broke in to release her.

Girl, 7, Hit by Car, Seriously Injured

Man, 55, Suffers Slight Hurt in Traffic.

A girl was injured seriously and a man was hurt slightly in traffic accidents here yesterday.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

"THE American Federation of Labor is driving ahead for the purpose of restoring the pay of the Government employe," is the summary of a report accepted yesterday at the A. F. of L. convention and later was the basis of a resolution adopted. Other resolutions affecting Federal employes will be introduced today by Matthew Woll, an A. F. of L. vice president.

BAKER.

"Under the subcaption, 'Government Economy,'" the report by Mr. Woll's committee stated, "the council presents a comprehensive statement of the efforts of the officers of the federation to prevent the reduction of wages and salaries of Government employes, which, notwithstanding their efforts, has taken place."

"During our meeting at headquarters in September the members of the executive council in a body called upon the President to urge him to restore these salaries at the earliest date possible. We urged that the restoration of full salaries of the Government employes would be in conformity with the recovery program.

"Your committee is in full accord with the report of the council on this important subject and heartily commends the officers of the A. F. L. for the vigorous persistence they have exhibited in defense of the Government employe. We recommend that the report of the council on this subject be approved and that the efforts for the restoration of the full salary and wages for Government employes be continued."

8 Detroit Firms Attack Oil Code

Eight Detroit oil distributors yesterday in District Supreme Court petitioned to have Secretary of Interior Ickes restrained from attempting to enforce certain provisions of the code of fair competition for the petroleum industry.

Petitioners asserted they had been issuing to customers coupons redeemable in goods other than gas and oils. Under the code, they say, they have been threatened with fines of $500 a day unless they discontinue the practice.

Bequest Here To Aid French

Will Provide for Hospital Abroad; Asks Burial in Two Caskets.

Provision for a home for tubercular patients at Chalonners-sur-Loire, France, was made in the will of Etienne Henri Renard, who lived at 523 Eighteenth street northwest, it was shown yesterday when his will was filed here in District Supreme Court.

He directed that land for the hospital be purchased with 100,000 francs, with the National Savings & Trust Co., and Jean F. P. des Garennes named as trustees to manage the institution.

Other provisions of the will require that the body be placed in two separate caskets; that a son, unnamed, who had been "advanced considerable money which he had used unwisely," be given 100 francs; and that an "old and faithful servant," Josephine Louise Calleau, be given a yearly income of 10,000 francs. Renard died July 22.

Ceremony Honors Missionary Group

Party to Visit Rome, on Journey to India.

A solemn ceremony of departure was held last night at the Foreign Mission Seminary on Harewood road northeast, for a group of missionaries of the Congregation of Holy Cross leaving for Rome.

They will join 44 other American missionaries of their congregation in Bengal, India. They will visit Rome first to receive blessings of the Holy Father.

The departing missionaries, who for the past four years have taken advanced studies in mission science and the Bengali language, include the Rev. Joseph Voorde, C. S. C., the Rev. John Harrington, C. S. C., the Rev. Charles Young, C. S. C., and Brother John Helm.

Included in the party will be two missionary Sisters of Holy Cross who will engage in educational and medical work in the villages of Bengal. They are Sister Marie Vianney and Sister Mary Aloise.

Supreme Court Hears Appeal In Drill Ouster

Student, War Foe, Pushes Fight on University of Maryland.

The authority of the University of Maryland to compel military training was challenged in the United States Supreme Court yesterday by Ennis H. Coale, expelled for refusing to drill.

Wayne Lees, 3430 Mount Pleasant street northwest, was ousted with Coale. Lees' case has not yet been appealed.

Coale, who lives in Harford County, Md., based his refusal on "sincere, conscientious religious convictions." He insisted that war is "against Christ's teachings."

The action of the university was sustained by the Maryland Court of Appeals. The court ruled that no encouragement should be given to interference with the Government in its lawful effort to keep the country prepared for war as long as nations continue to settle their disputes by combat.

Ryan Calls NRA New Welfare Deal

Priest Urges Low Interest to Speed Prosperity.

Describing the work of the NRA as a "new deal in social welfare," the Rev. John A. Ryan, of Catholic University, yesterday told the Cosmopolitan Club the country can not fully recover from the depression until owners of capital agree to accept lower interest on their money. His topic was "The New Industrial Revolution."

He said increasing credits was tried by the last administration but failed to work because those who could have obtained credit saw no prospect of a market for increased products, while the holders of credit, the bankers, refused to extend it to others because of the same reason.

Father Ryan said some manufacturers already have taken advantage of the process tax on cotton and other merchandise to increase prices unjustifiably.

Labor Snarl Still Tying Up Work

Companies Standing Firm Against Short Day.

The union dispute which stopped work on the Labor-I. C. C. buildings a month ago was no nearer solution last night, despite the arrival of William L. Hutcheson, president of the carpenters, who are contesting installation of radiator inclosures by iron workers.

Powerless to force an agreement, the National Labor Board and Government conciliators for weeks have attempted to bring together Hutcheson and P. J. Morrin, iron workers' president, to effect a settlement. Both attended the A. F. of L. convention yesterday, but did not confer on the dispute.

Another obstruction to the Federal building program continued yesterday as three companies, under contract for work, stood ground against a four-hour day for iron workers and refused to resume operations.

Girl's Hand Mangled As Auto Strikes Tree

Pauline Sisson, 10, of Fairfax, Va., suffered a mangled hand yesterday in an odd auto accident.

Her hand was caught between a coasting automobile and a tree. She was playing in the car and released the brakes. She jumped out and attempted to stop it, but was pinned against a tree.

Imperial Valley Canal Plan by U. S. Denied

Secretary Ickes yesterday discredited reports that the Public Works Board was considering construction of the all-American power irrigation canal in the Imperial Valley of California as a Federal project.

In the event an allotment is made for the canal, he said, it would be on the repayment basis, as in other reclamation projects.

Leesburg Hails Surprise Visit Of Roosevelt

President and His Mother Make Trip by Motor to Eustis Home.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt declared himself a several-hour holiday yesterday and motored with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, to the 130-year-old colonial home of Mrs. William C. Eustis, a friend of the family, near Leesburg.

There, on a broad lawn under a spreading honey locust tree, the Chief Executive and his mother chatted over orange juice for about an hour with Mrs. Eustis and her daughters, Anne Eustis and Mrs. David Finley.

Mrs. Eustis is a daughter of the late Levi P. Morton, one-time Governor of New York and Vice President from 1889 to 1893 during the Harrison regime. Not far from her home stands that of President Monroe.

Returning through Leesburg, the President and his mother were met at the outskirts by Mayor C. F. Harrison, his son, and Westmoreland Davis, a former Virginia governor. Harrison rode with the President through the town as scores of citizens cheered.

One young miss presented the President and his mother with a huge bouquet and blushed as she stepped back on the sidewalk. The citizenry of Falls Church and other Virginia towns on the route to Leesburg turned out to shout a greeting despite the short advance notice of the presidential trip.

On the way back, the President's open car was halted while the top was put up to shield Mr. Roosevelt and his mother from a brief rain. The trip lasted about three hours.

Women Quit Tiger Leader In Brooklyn

McCooey's Organization Cancels O'Brien Rally Plans.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—The Democratic revolt in Brooklyn and Queens to Joseph V. McKee almost obliterated party lines today as the city's mayoralty candidates completed framing campaign issues.

Following in the footsteps of many of John H. McCooey's district leaders, the Women's Democratic Forum of Brooklyn suddenly canceled plans for a huge rally for Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, on October 17.

The forum, McCooey's women's organization, was reported to be waiting only the action of the Brooklyn Democratic executive committee Monday—a meeting the veteran leader was forced to call by his workers—before openly declaring for McKee.

Tiger Claims Confidence.

Tammany leaders, however, expressed confidence in the ability of McCooey to hold his grip on the Brooklyn organization. Some of McCooey's leaders have threatened to force him out of the leadership unless he renounced O'Brien.

"There is no possibility of McCooey going out on Monday," said former Senator Abraham Kaplan, O'Brien's campaign manager. "I don't think the Brooklyn situation was ever what it was portrayed to have been. It was another evidence of the use of high pressure salesmanship to stampede people."

Brunner Backs McKee.

In Queens, Representative William F. Brunner announced he would back McKee.

Meanwhile, Samuel Seabury, arch-foe of Tammany and Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, backing McKee, carried the campaign to elect Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion nominee, into the Bronx.

LaGuardia Leads In Poll by Digest

Has 37,543 Votes, 26,476 McKee; O'Brien 12,582.

New York, Oct. 12.—Returns from the Literary Digest poll on the New York mayoralty contest showed today the following standing:

Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Fusion), 37,543; Joseph V. McKee (Recovery), 26,476; John P. O'Brien (Democrat), 12,582, and Charles Solomon (Socialist), 1,651.

The poll was taken in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Queens.

"The poll is still too young for any safe conclusions to be tried," the Digest said.

Naval Pilot Held In Kidnaping Hoax

Officials Look Into Story of His Abduction.

Philadephia, Oct. 12 (AP).—Harold V. Westphal, naval airplane pilot who was reported kidnaped from Philadelphia and taken to Chicago, returned to his home in nearby Upper Darby today.

Police turned him over to officials of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, where he was stationed. Yard officers said he was absent without leave and would be kept under arrest pending investigation of his story.

Upper Darby police, who made the arrest, said Westphal asserted he had been kidnaped and feared his abductors were still on his trail. He did not tell how he had escaped. He disappeared from Philadelphia Friday.

Bluebeard Killer's Father Ends Life

Son Executed Last Year for Slaying Five.

Sumner, Iowa, Oct. 12 (AP).—Wilko Drenth, 71, father of Harry Powers, hanged last year as West Virginia's Bluebeard slayer, shot himself to death last Friday at the home of his grandson, Everett Schroeder, jr., near here, it was learned today.

Powers was convicted of slaying Mrs. Asta Eicher, of Park Ridge, a suburb of Chicago, her three children and Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, of Northboro, Mass., whose bodies were found buried near Clark's home in West Virginia.

Horse Racing in "New Deal"

Opening of Texas Track by Farley Next Week Will Mark Return to "Rugged Individualism" in Personal Conduct.

(United Press.)

A sort of official inauguration of a return to rugged individualism in matters of personal conduct will take place next week when Postmaster General James A. Farley will go to Texas to open the new Arlington Downs race track.

Farley and Vice President John N. Garner will be the first customers to pass through the turnstiles of a Texas race track since racing was abolished there years ago.

Opening of a new track would be only sports page news in New York or Maryland, where there is already long-established competition, but, happening in Texas, once dry, where strict principles of church leaders have guided the politician in his attitude on racing and liquor, it is a political event.

Marks Another Deal.

It has symptoms of marking another kind of new deal from the one President Roosevelt has inaugurated in economic matters. NRA and the other recovery measures mark a flight from rugged individualism into collective regimented action.

Reestablishment of racing in Texas, and more significantly the sweep of prohibition repeal even in States like Arkansas, Alabama, Florida and Tennessee, mark a return to individualism in personal matters, a sort of farewell, or at least an au revoir, to control of individual morals by legislation.

Not all smart politicians saw this coming. Barely two years ago Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, stood up in a meeting of the Democratic national committee and told John J. Raskob and the other repealists that "you can not write on the banner of the Democratic party the skull and crossbones emblematic of an outlawed trade and expect the masses of the Democrats to accept your recommendation without resistance." Uncle Joe had plenty of company in taking this view that repeal was an unsafe political issue.

With Florida as the thiry-third successive State to approve repeal, a good many politicians are convinced they have been unnecessarily cautious. Mr. Harding had to play golf for exercise, but he requested that nothing be said about it, because he feared the public might not be pleased to think of its President out on the links several afternoons a week.

Tension Is Relaxing.

Woodrow Wilson refused to play golf at Chevy Chase Club, because he did not wish to appear to be associating with millionaires, so the legend goes. Mr. Hoover became indignant when a friendly newspaper reporter described him as speeding back from Rapidan Camp to deal with the war debts moratorium.

After so misjudging the extent of prohibtiion repeal sentiment, politicians are dropping some of the traditional inhibitions of the office holder. Mr. Roosevelt has cruises on the Astor yacht. He proposes a farm program with the warning that it is just an experiment and may not work.

It all denotes to many here a relaxing of tension among public men, a tendency to take the stuffing out of the shirt and be a little more their natural selves.

Construction Office Robbed.

Thieves who broke into a construction company office at Seventh and T streets northeast early yesterday stole a typewriter and an adding machine valued at $150, police were told.

U. S. Will Buy Dairy Products To Feed Needy

Move, Aided by Processing Tax, Expected to Cut Present Surpluses.

Purchase of milk and other dairy product surpluses to feed the needy is being planned by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation.

Relief Administrator Hopkins has promised to buy a "substantial portion of the butter surplus," estimated at 100,000,000 pounds more than last year and 45,000,000 greater than the average for the last five years.

Acting Secretary of Agriculture Tugwell yesterday revealed plans for buying the mills' surplus in a letter to Representative Charles N. Crosby (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, who had suggested the move.

The huge purchases will be financed, it is understood, by a processing tax on dairy products. The butterfat tax alone is expected to raise $50,000,000.

The plan was devised, incidentally, to relieve glutted markets of surpluses.

In his letter, Assistant Secretary Tugwell expressed the opinion that the basic and surplus quota system for handling milk for consumption bolsters prices for producers under controlled conditions.

Hitler Swastikas Painted on Cows

Nazi Campaign Carried on in Austrian Tyrol.

Ehrwald, Austria, Oct. 12 (AP).—All the cows in the pastures roundabout this Tyrolese community have been painted with swastikas (the emblem of the German Nazis) and the words "Hail Hitler."

Fences and billboards display counterfeit patriotic posters, which the authorities said, although ostensibly classing Austrian national socialism as dead, actually attacked the regime of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

Public Triduum Starts Tonight at Monastery

A public triduum in honor of the co-foundress of the Discalced Carmelite Order, St. Theresa of Avila, will be conducted tonight, tomorrow and Sunday nights at the Discalced Carmelite Monastery, 150 Rhode Island avenue northeast.

Services each evening will begin at 8 o'clock and will be conducted by the Very Rev. Eliseus Costa, O. C. D., who will preach on the life and miracles of the saint.

Heberle and Stephens Get Transit Co. Posts

J. E. Heberle was elected vice president and comptroller of the new Capital Transit Co., and J. H. Stephens, vice president in charge of transportation at a meeting yesterday of the board of directors.

Mr. Heberle now is associated with the Capital Traction Co. and Mr. Stephens with the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Auction

Renovize House Will Be Sold Next Week.

The Renovized House, Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, open to the public for the last two months, will be sold at public auction next week on the site of the house, Arthur B. Heaton, chairman of the Washington Board of Trade renovize committee, said today. The tentative date has been set as Thursday at 5 p. m.

The house, scheduled to be closed October 1, has been kept open because of the interest shown in it.

"As to what good has resulted, it might be pointed out that for the months of June, July and August of this year, 27 per cent more repair permits were taken out at the Building Department than over the same period last year," Heaton said.

Information concerning the sale will be made public in the next few days.

14 Choirs Here Will Combine In Music Fete

Church Singers to Join Symphony in Oratorio Next Spring.

Fourteen Washington church choirs will join with the National Symphony Orchestra to present one of the city's most pretentious music festivals next April 30, May 1 and 2, it was announced yesterday.

One of the standard oratories, not yet selected, will be sung. The committee to choose the work consists of Adolf Torovsky, chairman; Justin Lawrie, R. Dean Shure, Charlotte Klein and Norton M. Little. The performances will be held in Constitution Hall.

Choirs participating and their directors are: Foundry M. E., Justin Lawrie; Epiphany Episcopal, Adolf Torovsky; National City Christian, William E. Braithwaite; National Memorial Baptist, George F. Ross; Calvary M. E., Louis A. Potter; Mount Pleasant Congregational, Norton M. Little; St. Margaret's Episcopal, Charlotte Klein; Ashbury M. E., South, Fannie Shreve Heartsill; Epworth M. E., Robert Ruckman; St. Alban's Episcopal, Walter Nash; St. Thomas Episcopal, Loyal B. Aldrich; Mount Vernon Place M. E., South, R. Deane Shure; Concordia Lutheran, John R. Monroe.

24 Surgeons Start $50,000 Job on Trees

Another public works project in Washington was actually started yesterday when 24 tree surgeons and helpers began a $50,000 repair job on trees in Federal parks.

Work includes seeding, cabling, pruning and surgical treatment. This allotment is a "blessing," Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of the National Capital parks, said. He pointed out that trees in small city parks need special care if they are to thrive.

Montana's Liquor Law Draws Fire

Petitioners Want Control Act Reconsidered.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 12 (AP).—Montana's law providing for State control and operation of liquor dispensing in the event of repeal is under fire here.

Petitions were in circulation today asking a special session of the Legislature be called to reconsider the act, described by its opponents as vesting the State with an unfair advantage over private business.

Court Plea Challenges Ickes' Oil Rule Rights

Tyler, Tex., Oct. 12 (AP).—The McMurrey Corporation filed a petition in Federal court here today to enjoin Lon A. Smith, chairman of the Texas Railroad Commission, and others from enforcing rules upholding Federal control of the oil industry.

Secretary Ickes' right to allocate production was challenged.

Receives Degree

JOHN G. BOWEN, who received the degree of doctor of philosophy at Georgetown University last night.

Five Get Degrees At Georgetown U.

John G. Bowen, Hussein Chawky in Group.

John G. Bowen, secretary to the president of Georgetown University, and Hussein Chawky, attache of the Egyptian Legation, were among five graduates of Georgetown who last night received degrees, the presentation of which had been postponed from last June.

An informal ceremony was held in the office of President Coleman Nevils, S. J., when the candidates were presented by the Rev. Miles J. O'Mailia, S. J., dean of the graduate school, and the Rev. George F. Strohaver, S. J., dean of the college of arts and sciences.

Mr. Bowen was awarded the degree of doctor of philosophy in the department of sociology of the graduate school. He is president of the Washington Catholic Evidence Guild. From Georgetown he previously had obtained the degrees of bachelor of laws and master of arts.

The degree of master of arts was conferred on Mr. Chawky by the graduate school. He is a graduate of the Royal University of Cairo.

Degrees of bachelor of science in medicine were awarded by the college to Egildo Calligaro, of Clifton, N. J.; Joseph W. Batch, of Ballston, Va., and Francis J. Benz, of Newark, N. J.

New Roomer Ransacks House, Gets Jewelry

A well-dressed young man who earlier yesterday rented a room from her, last night stole $85 worth of jewelry from the home of Mrs. Florence Reed, 2711 North Capitol street.

She said the man offered a check in payment for his room, and when she refused it he left, saying he would return with the money. He came back last night and ransacked the house, she said.

Seven Courts For Handball At Y. M. C. A.

Game, 1,000 Years Old, Splendid All-Around Exercise.

Handball, an Irish game more than 1,000 years old, is played by more men in America than anywhere else in the world. It is one of the forms of exercise stressed in The Post-Y. M. C. A. "Keep Healthy" Week, now on.

Its modern form is credited to William Baggs, of Tipperary, in the middle of the last century, the "Y" points out. He developed hitting the ball in curves, low drives and screw tosses.

Once 65 Feet Long.

Original Irish courts were from 60 to 65 feet long, 25 feet wide and approximately 30 feet high with front walls of slate and side walls of cement.

Today the standard court is 40 feet long, 20 feet wide and 20 feet high.

Colleges and universities in the United States have 535 courts and 219 are being built. More than 52,000 college students use the courts annutlly.

The local "Y" is throwing open its seven courts, including five new ones, to Washington men during "Keep Healthy" Week. Two of the new courts are so constructed that they may be used either for handball or squash.

Exercise Is Wholesome.

Handball's advantage from a health standpoint, the "Y" says, lies in that it offers wholesome allaround exercise to the highest degree. The judgement of distance as well as coordination between eye and muscles is developed.

Quick choices are demanded; instant decisions must be made. While the court is not large, nevertheless a man must move quickly, exercise both arms in serving and returning the ball, stoop, turn and stretch constantly in order to return difficult shots.

All these factors make the game a means of obtaining complete exercise without overstrenuous exertion, the Y. M. C. A. declares.

Each day of the campaign, The Post will publish a coupon on which applicants for the free course in regular recreation may register. Clip the coupon, sign your name and address and present it at the Central Y. M. C. A. headquarters, 1736 G street northwest.

Post-Y. M. C. A. "Keep Healthy Week" October 12-19

Sign your name to this coupon and exchange it in the lobby of the Y. M. C. A., Eighteenth and G streets northwest, for a special guest membership card.

New Officers Selected For Hotel Association

New officers of the Washington Hotel Association announced today by Arthur J. Harnett, reelected president, are George E. Allen, vice president, and Augustus Gumpert, secretary and treasurer, succeeding the late Lawrence Mills. New members of the executive committee include Mr. Gumpert, H. P. Somerville, Mr. Allen, R. L. Pollio and E. W. Martin. Members reelected were Mr. Harnett, S. E. Bonneville, C. L. Hutchinson and E. C. Owen.

They will assume offices at a meeting November 7.

Cafe Man, Two Patrons Robbed, Locked Up

Held up with a gun by a colored man, John Aravanis, proprietor of a lunchroom at 100 L street northwest, was robbed of $25 or $30. With two customers Aravanis was locked in a back room by the robber, he told police.

O'Connor to Aid Chest Campaign

Accepts Committee Post as Co-Chairman.

John Jay O'Connor, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, has been named co-chairman of the Community Chest national corporations committee, according to a report made for Eugene Meyer, chairman, at a meeting of the Chest campaign committee held last night at the home of Frank J. Hogan, campaign chairman. Mr. O'Connor has accepted the appointment and, with Mr. Meyer, has selected a committee as follows:

Lloyd B. Wilson, Col. Wrisley Brown, M. G. Gibbs, M. E. Horton, Frank R. Jelleff, Nelson Perin, Edward G. Yonker, Robert V. Fleming, Frederick P. H. Siddons, John Parker, Oscar Coolican, Claude Owen, Thomas P. Littlepage, B. B. Burgunder, E. H. Johnansen, E. H. Daniel, Milton Ailes, jr., Walter Chappell and Winslow Van de Vanter.

The Conversion Bond Issue.

The Treasury has announced its intention of retiring $1,875,000,000 of the Fourth Liberty Loan bonds, giving holders the option of exchanging them for 10 to 12 year bonds, paying 4¼ per cent for the first year and 3¼ per cent thereafter. The Fourth Liberty Loan bonds not called may be exchanged also, if holders wish to take advantage of the conversion offer. Consequently, the new bond issue might, at maximum, amount to $6,268,094,150, plus $500,000,000 additional offered for cash subscription at 101½.

A cursory inspection of the existing debt structure is sufficient to show why the Treasury desires to undertake long-term conversion operations. An embarrassingly large proportion of Federal indebtedness consists of short-term issues or obligations which are payable in the near future. Treasury notes with maturities of from two to five years total $5,151,087,200; certificates of indebtedness, running from six months to two years, amount to $1,494,697,000; Treasury bills due within 90 days stand at $951,728,000. Moreover, about $3,000,000,000 of this short-term debt becomes payable before the end of 1934.

The desirability of providing a basis for the gradual funding of the unwieldy short term debt is patent. The present conversion offer, although intended to facilitate the retirement of long-term bonds which do not have to be paid until 1938, nevertheless provides a preliminary test of sentiment without making unduly heavy additional demands upon new investment capital. At the same time, the substitution of bonds carrying a lower interest rate will bring a reduction in current debt service charges. The amount of the budgetary savings will depend, of course, upon the reception given the new offering and the extent to which holders of uncalled Fourth Liberty Loan bonds voluntarily exchange them for the new issue.

Despite the cogency of the purely fiscal reasons favoring a conversion operation, the Treasury announcement came as a surprise. Generally speaking, it was believed that the Government would not undertake a long-term bond issue at a time when public fears of future inflation have practically closed the long-term capital market to private borrowers. The fact that it has decided to do so is considered to be an encouraging indication that future monetary policies will be of a character to attract continuous support from the investors of the country.

If the administration were contemplating any kind of monetary inflation which necessitated resort to the printing presses as a means of financing uncovered outlays, it is reasonable to infer that it would not betray the confidence of investors by selling them promises to pay redeemable in heavily depreciated dollars. In fact, a direct appeal to investors at this time would be a futile as well as a confiscatory operation, if the administration contemplated later resort to paper-money issues or intended subsequently to rely exclusively upon short-term loans carried largely on credit by the banks of the country.

The emergency spending program will necessitate heavy additions to current budgetary outlays during the coming months. Investment funds to finance these expenditures will be forthcoming, no doubt, if fears of inflationary monetary experiments are set at rest. In the absence of decisive and reassuring official statements regarding prospective stabilization plans, the savings which are now being withheld from long-term employment will not be placed unreservedly at the disposal of either the Government or private industry.

However, the Treasury conversion announcement encourages the public to believe that the administration recognizes the importance of enlisting investment support instead of turning to fiat money. That is why the offer has elicited favorable comment in financial circles and among people who realize that the restoration of general prosperity depends upon the revival of investment activities as well as upon increased consumer buying.

Bribing the Electorate.

Sir Herbert Samuel, who twice has served Great Britain as home secretary, does not subscribe to the belief that the world is turning to Fascism and dictatorship, yet he is a critic of modern tendencies under democratic forms of government. The former British official is taking advantage of his visit to the United States to point out some of the weak points in representative government in various parts of the world.

"Democracy is faced by great dangers, great temptations," Sir Herbert said. Among these dangers he listed the politicians who "bribe the electorate with legislation that taxpayers can not afford." Bribery of this sort, he said, was a prominent cause of the recent economic crises. Politicians who try to win favor with the electorate by squandering public money, he told an audience at Johns Hopkins University, are a greater menace to democracy than politicians who accept personal bribes.

Sir Herbert made it plain that these remarks were not aimed at the United States alone. Perhaps his thought was inspired chiefly by the dole in Great Britain, although he did mention hearing that "there was some little extravagance with regard to soldiers' pensions" in the United States. At any rate, his criticism is applicable to all countries where the spending power is abused by political bodies.

In politics expediency rules. Questions are liable to be decided, not on their economic merits, but in accordance with the pressure brought to bear upon legislators by politically powerful groups. Sir Herbert has put his finger on a vital problem confronting representative governments—one that promises to become more acute as governments extend their activity further into economic fields.

Justice With Dispatch.

Six criminals involved in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel have been sentenced to life imprisonment. The doors of Leavenworth Penitentiary have closed on Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates, and "Machine Gun" Kelly will soon be looking out from behind the bars of Atlanta. Officers of the law have triumphed over one of the most reckless and dangerous criminal gangs in the United States. Operatives of the Department of Justice deserve generous credit for their detective work and their presentation of the case before the Federal court in Oklahoma City.

Another aspect of the case is also worthy of note. Only about two and a half months elapsed between the time Mr. Urschel was kidnaped and the booking of two of his abductors at Leavenworth. Kelly and his wife were sentenced only 16 days after their capture and three days after their trial began. The American public is accustomed to seeing criminal cases extended over six months, a year, two years or even a longer period. The triumph of the courts over those formidable enemies of justice—delay and postponement—is no less significant than the achievement of the law enforcement officers.

In this case there was no painful waiting while an overworked court ground out a year's work before starting the trials. There were no lengthy postponements at the behest of underworld lawyers. Gangsters who threatened to kill witnesses and prosecutors in the case had little time to carry out their plans. Motions for new trials were not allowed to stand in the way of prompt execution of the court's judgment. In this case the wheels of justice moved with dispatch as well as with certainty.

When the courts act promptly the administration of justice becomes highly impressive to the public, on whom officers must rely for cooperation, as well as to law violators. If this case is a precedent which the courts intend to follow in the handling of major criminal cases, it becomes a most significant factor in the drive against crime.

Nazi Censorship.

No single measure more forcefully illustrates the extreme to which dictatorship has been carried in Germany than the Hitler censorship decree. Freedom of the press died when the Nazis came into power. German newspapers have been closely guarded, supervised, intimidated, and in some cases edited by agents of the Hitler regime. Now they have ceased to exist as organs of public opinion and as conveyors of unbiased news. The German press is a gigantic agency of propaganda.

In the words of Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of "public enlightenment," the government at Berlin has undertaken "to supervise formation of public opinion and see that it does not pursue paths leading away from common weal." Only one group of individuals is privileged to ordain what Germany shall think. This coterie will decide what facts the German people may learn as to what is taking place in their own country and the world at large. Dissemination of news that does not conform to Nazi views becomes a heinous offense for which, in some cases, the penalty is death.

Publishers have become, under this latest decree, mere tools of the State. Even news writers are under license. Articles that are construed as "anti-Nazi" may subject them to prison sentences. If an article that is true in every respect appears to be treasonable when viewed through Nazi spectacles, the individuals held responsible for its publication may face a firing squad.

It remains to be seen how long a literate people will endure a condition which compels them to rely upon governmental propaganda and a censored press for information regarding current events in their own country and elsewhere.

A Wife-Trap.

Law and equity together are supposed to be equal to the task of dispensing justice between man and man or between man and wife, but occasionally an instance arises which baffles the resources of jurisprudence. Such a case confronted Judge Eugene Dunne in Baltimore this week.

In pressing his suit for divorce, the husband testified that he had been forced to cut the household allowance in 1932, and that soon thereafter he missed small sums from his trousers pockets. He thereupon contrived a "wife-trap," designed to detect his wife in the nocturnal act of rifling his trousers. The device "consisted of a hinged arrangement operated by a spring. It is held together by outside pressure, and when that is removed it flies open, causing a toy detonating cap to explode with a noise like that of a small pistol."

The husband testified that nothing happened for several nights after he had set the trap, but that on the morning of July 28 last, while he was in the bathroom, it went off. Rushing into the bedroom, he found the trap on the floor, his wallet in the pocket of his trousers, which he had left across a chair, and his wife in bed, "with her eyes staring like a wild woman's." The husband added that his wife denied she had attempted to rifle his pockets, but had merely fallen over his trousers.

With this testimony before him, what did the judge do? Did he rebuke the husband and sustain the time-honored privilege of a wife to rifle her husband's trousers? Or did he gently reprimand the wife and then grant her a divorce on the ground of extreme cruelty? No; he concluded that the resources of equity were unequal to the task of dealing out justice. He dismissed the suit and the crossbill and coolly wiped his hands of the case.

There it stands. The questions at issue remain undecided. The machinery of justice breaks down. Nobody is satisfied. The judge had before him the opportunity of making a path-breaking decision, one that might have sent his name rumbling down the corridors of fame. He could have made himself secure in the affections of housewives for all time by deciding in their favor; or he might have won the plaudits of henpecked husbands throughout the universe by holding that their trousers pockets are inviolable, even in the deep watches of the night.

Road Work Delay.

The District of Columbia is making prompt use of its allotted share of the $400,000,000 apportioned to the States by the Public Works Administration for highway construction. The District fund for this purpose amounts to $1,918,469, and twelve road projects, estimated to cost $1,463,000, already have been approved. Approximately three-fourths of the total quota, therefore, is being expended without undue delay to provide work for the unemployed.

Only two States, New York and Wyoming, are in the same class, both having obtained approval of highway improvements calculated to utilize about 75 per cent of their allotments. Of the $22,330,101 appropriated for the Empire State 136 road projects under way will absorb $16,927,000. Wyoming has submitted 65 highway improvements that will utilize $3,195,000 of the State's $4,501,000.

In contrast to these leaders Pennsylvania has utilized only $2,196,000 of its $18,891,000. Texas was allotted $24,000,000 and has arranged to use only one-fourth of that amount. Wisconsin has not submitted plans to cover half of an appropriation of $9,724,000. Missouri has projects ready for only a third of its quota, while Michigan's projects call for only $1,627,000 of her total of $12,180,000. California has offered 64 projects to cost $9,224,000, and has a total allotment of $15,607,000.

The total figures of the Public Works Administration show that, with 2,160 highway projects approved, contracts have been awarded in 1,359 instances, and construction actually begun in 757. Secretary Ickes has addressed the Governors of all the States urging them to expedite their highway programs so that work may be provided as quickly as possible. The compilation made by the Public Works Administration as of October 5 shows that of the $400,000,000 available the 2,160 road projects approved call for only $135,501,000.

Horace's "Dude Ranch."

From the Boston Transcript.

The location of Horace's Sabine farm has been as much disputed as the birthplace of Homer—

Seven wealthy towns contend for Homer dead,
Through which the living Homer begged his bread.

The parallel, of course, ends with the claims. Horace, however needy he may have been in his youth, never lacked for bread nor good Falernian wine after Maecenas became his patron. His life was unclouded by sordid cares. He had troops of friends, ample leisure for the perfecting of his gift undistracted by the inconveniences of poverty.

Horace himself described his country estate as "a cottage in the Sabines with enough ground to furnish food for my table." But those of us who have visited Newport know to what luxurious dimensions a cottage may be expanded. And Horace, who was befriended by Augustus Caesar and counted men of great wealth among his familiars, could hardly have lived at ease housed like a plowman. He spoke in the same vein as Oliver Wendell Holmes, who thought that "a modest brownstone front" would be ample for his needs. It is not likely, either, that Maecenas would have bestowed a mean gift on the poet, nor that Horace would have been disposed to keep open house there for luxury loving Roman guests if the place had been as humble as he implied. Some one has conjectured that "it was the dude ranch of the Sabines."

In any case, the Italian Minister of Fine Arts, after examining all the evidence, has set the seal of government approval on the ruins of a villa situated within sight of the little town of Licenza, and this will for the future be known as Horace's Sabine farm. Unlike the rude hut uncovered near Tivoli, and thought by some scholars to be the veritable site, the remains of the buildings on the slopes overlooking Vicenza indicate that if they were restored they would be found worthy of a great poet and ample for the exercise of the most lavish hospitality.

The Tortoise Wakes Up!

The Once Over.

By H. I. Phillips.

BUY NOW!

Buy now! Whatever you spend is only a contribution to a great national movement.

• • • •

You will not make merely a purchase of merchandise; you will help prime the NRA motor.

• • • •

Spending $1 today may hurt a little, but it will make spending $5 practically painless in a few months.

• • • •

Don't say, "Oh, that's just another slogan!" You'll be like the doughboy who decided bugle calls were too monotonous to answer.

• • • •

It's all right to be thrifty, but you can keep America flat on her ears by overdoing it.

• • • •

You all cheered for recovery. Who did you expect was going to do the work?

• • • •

Why say you can't afford it? When your house is burning down would you hesitate to put a nickel into the pay-station to get the fire department?

• • • •

You'll hear the old Scoffers' Brigade saying that the recovery act can't work, but the fellow who tries to belittle a movement like that is like the man who stands on his private yacht and criticizes the way the sailors are handling the lifeboats.

• • • •

Never mind singing the national anthem; go on out and spend a little dough. It looks more sincere.

• • • •

Flag waving is okay, but it never balanced a budget.

• • • •

If you cheered when the New Deal was first proclaimed and you balk at going on a little spending bender now, what role are you rehearsing for, patriot or kibitzer?

• • • •

That hat looks phooey, anyhow, and if that suit gets any higher polish on it you can use it for a shaving mirror.

• • • •

For once in your life surprise the little woman by telling her you are tired of her in that fur coat.

• • • •

Don't say, "Look how much higher prices are now than they were six months ago," unless you were satisfied with conditions six months ago.

• • • •

Money makes the nightmare go.

• • • •

It may be the root of all evil, as the philosophers say, but there never was a time when the country needed more rooters.

• • • •

The trouble with the average shopper is the same as the trouble with the average golfer; he is too tight. And is gripping too hard.

• • • •

For six months President Roosevelt, Gen. Johnson and the NRA board have been doing the work; now they are asking you to do something.

• • • •

Don't wait for the other fellow to do the spending; he's waiting for you.

I shall remember you not by your charms;
Your platinum hair, your lips and all the rest
Of what I've never gathered in my arms—
With those you've been old-fashioned at the best.
But I'll remember and I'll cherish you
Despite some disappointments and regrets,
As one who had a saving grace—you do
Consistently refuse my cigarettes.

Daily Talks About Books and Authors

A. E. HOUSMAN

This distinguished Latin scholar, a graduate of Oxford and a professor at Cambridge, has published two very small volumes of original verse, which are apparently a permanent contribution to English literature. Their originality of thought is equaled by their simplicity of expression; their intensity of emotion by their fluidity of music.

Last May he delivered a lecture at Cambridge called "The Name and Nature of Poetry." This can be read through in half an hour, but it contains enough material to think about for the rest of one's life. Every one who writes verse and everyone who loves poetry should read this tiny book, and will find it full of valuable suggestions. The author explains the essence of poetry, as distinguished from everything else. The emotions it arouses are physical rather than intellectual. The spinal chill.

Incidentally, there is plenty of room in regular English metres for all the strength of thought or originality in expression that one may possess. It is much more difficult to make an impression by singing in tune better than any one else, than it is by making either intentional or unintentional discords.

You Can't Make a Failure Successful By Paying His Annual Losses

By Robert Quillen.

It is high time for us to quit kidding ourselves.

The longer a sick man refuses to face the truth, the less chance he has to get well.

Consider the present state of this NRA business.

The idea was sound. United effort would have made it a complete success.

But the President and his lieutenants based their hopes on patriotism. They expected the people to cooperate unselfishly as in time of war—to make sacrifices and forget profits for a time and thus save themselves and one another.

But the fires of patriotism did not kindle. The enthusiasm of officials was not contagious.

The people were willing to be saved, if salvation was free, but they refused to help.

Little fellows get a Blue Eagle for the window, but they trimmed expenses a little more, did the usual work in an hour less, and used the NRA as an excuse to raise prices.

Big fellows did the same thing on a larger scale. Having shortened hours, they were forced to hire a few more man. But they cut the wages of others to make up the difference and required a general speeding up to get the usual work done in fewer hours.

Of course there were patriotic and wise exceptions, but none, as a rule did more than he was forced to do. The majority thought only of getting, not of helping.

Faith and hope improved conditions a little, but the gains were insecure.

The people as a whole remained apathetic. They did not increase their buying more than necessary. They waited to see what would happen. Their attitude seemed to be: "All right; you said you would save us. Now let's see you do it."

There was and is no enthusiasm for recovery—no up-and-at-'em go-getter spirit—no happy and eager scheming to make a dollar.

And once more it is demonstrated that you do no good by helping a man up if he can't stand on his feet.

Economists said that a billion or two scattered abroad would give everybody money. But prosperity requires a never-ending flow of billions from employer to worker to merchant and back again to the employer.

These times will continue so long as people, big and little, sit and wait for the Government to save them.

They will end when all of us get tired of waiting for artificial salvation and grimly set about the business of saving ourselves.

Press Comment

Is NRA Permanent?

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The most significant and indeed sensational statement in Gen. Johnson's speech to the American Federation of Labor on Tuesday night was that proclaiming the passing of the old economic order of independent enterprise and the establishment of a permanent system of partnership between industry and labor, with the Federal Government the dictator over both.

The Supreme Court has yet to pass upon the constitutionality of the National Recovery Act. There is a widespread belief that it will be loath to disturb a purely emergency measure, passed in the face of a national crisis. It might adopt a different attitude toward enthronement of a permanent Governmental dictatorship of industry.

Labor's Cooperation Needed.

New York Times.

It is not capital but labor that worries the administration and threatens recovery. It was natural that organized labor should take full advantage of its opportunities and the administration has been distinctly liberal and kind to it. Having received privileges and advantages some of which were forced upon employers, organized labor should be content and cooperate heartily to make the NRA a success. The desire for more power, the passion for strikes, the preposterous row between the carpenters' and ironworkers' unions, which has stopped construction work on the Department of Justice Building, reveal a temper which has caused the administration a justified uneasiness.

Soviet-Japan Quarrel.

New York Herald Tribune.

It really begins to look as though the Kremlin were now as ready to hurry through the preliminary gestures and submit to a test of strength as are the Japanese militarists, who have been so frankly pleading the inevitability of war with Russia as the major reason for big army appropriations.

The reports of non-Japanese travelers in eastern Siberia now seem to confirm the gossip in Manchuria about the elaborate Russian military preparations in the Vladivostock hinterland. These might be interpreted as a perfectly natural defensive reaction, in a peacefully inclined nation, to Gen. Araki's repeated saber rattling if the whole tone of the Kremlin's remarks to and about Japan had not recently and abruptly changed from that of the meekest long suffering to that of the bruskest possible counter-challenge.

Such crises have arisen before, and their lesson is that it is not yet too late for second thought on either side. Neither Russia nor Japan is quite as ready for a fight to the finish as each would like to be.

Carlisle Bargeron

I AM told that I was on wholly unsound ground in assuming that Mr. Roosevelt had any feeling against Jackie Coogan when he referred to the high salaries of "immature" persons at Hollywood. His "immature" did not refer to age at all, it is pointed out, so he must have meant "immature" minds. And had he been referring to age he could not have had Jackie in mind because, I am informed, Jackie has retired and is attending preparatory school. Come to think of it, I haven't seen him in the films in a long time.

Bargeron.

This straightening out of things, however, does not remove the problem of how the administration is to readjust Hollywood salaries.

• • • •

UNDOUBTEDLY they will be based upon actual service rendered, or considered by the administration to be rendered, rather than the present vile capitalistic system of box-office worth. The plan at present is to pay a movie actress $5,000 a week if she in turn brings in more than that to persons who employ her. It is what is known in our vicious system as investment and profit.

An inkling of Mr. Roosevelt's feeling that in the future compensation should be based more upon service was given in his inaugural address. And evidence of it is seen in his steady promotion of the professors, in his bringing them to the public attention and making it possible for them to make "fabulous" sums out of syndicated articles. So speedily did Prof. Moley move in this respect that he tarried with us for awhile only and now has joined magazine journalism.

• • • •

THE plan, as I take it, is to get better pay for the "thinkers." They have been a neglected class. Apparently it has been our attitude that we were doing enough for them when we let them think, other countries not being so generous in this wise, and that they should be satisfied. Whether those countries which clamped down on thought now feel justified in their course because of the restlessness of our thinkers, I don't know.

They might very well, though, point a derisive finger at us and say:

"You see, you let them go ahead and think—and now they want pay for it."

• • • •

THE new plan, so far as I can learn, does not contemplate compensating thinkers for what they think. It will be necessary simply that they think, can qualify under specifications which, of course, will be prescribed, as thinkers. Most assuredly there will be grades like our first, second and third class postmasters. The system is bound to be tinged with partisanship, Democratic thinkers faring well under Democratic administrations, and Republican thinkers under Republican ones, but perfection can not be attained at once.

The main difficulty will be encountered, however, when the administration gets to the actual working out of the two levels, the one for thinkers and the one for the movie stars. What are to be taken as the standards?

Is the compensation-standard attained by Profs. Moley and Tugwell, by Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Dall, young Jimmy—who sells insurance and dispenses patronage in Boston—and Elliott, whose profound aviation-thinking got him a job as Mr. Hearst's aviation editor—is this to be accepted as the standard for all thinkers, or rather for the first grade ones?

And in the revision downward of entertainers' salaries what are to be the measurements? Presumably there will be a jury here in Washington before whom entertainers will have to appear and their compensation will be measured to the emotions they cause.

One thing is certain about this plan: Louis Howe is sitting pretty. He will rate both as a thinker and as a clown—and draw compensation for both.

Because his Sunday night radio sketches with Walter Trumbull have Amos and Andy beaten a thousand times.

Just Folks.

The Wrong Guess Always.

Some seven and twenty years ago
She married him for weal or woe,
So late in Nineteen Hundred Six
She thought his favorite meal to fix.
She hummed a song of sweet delight
Thinking how pleased he'd be at night,
But when they sat them down for tea:
"I had lamb chops for lunch," said he.

Being then an inexperienced bride,
The disappointed lady cried.
But in a week or two once more
She planned a supper he'd adore.
So very fond she was of him
She toiled to please his every whim,
But with the meal before him spread,
"I had a steak for lunch," he said.

Through Nineteen Eight and Nine and Ten
His favorite food she cooked again:
But fish or fowl he'd always say
"I had this dish for lunch today."

And now it's Nineteen Thirty-three
And still she lives in hope that she Sometime, somehow will cook a meal
Of liver, bacon, ham or veal
Or lamb, with early garden peas,
Which will the man she married please.
But strangely always wrong is she.
"I had this grub for lunch," says he.

New Troop Organized.

A new Scout troop, under the leadership of Maynard P. Shoemaker as scoutmaster and John Collier as chairman of the troop committee, has been organized by the Men's Society of the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. The number of the new troop is 625 and it will meet at the chapel of the church, Harfield street and Massachusetts avenue, every Friday at 7:30 p. m.

The rest of the staff leadership consists of Carl Langmack and Joe Rose as junior assistant scoutmasters and Herbert Lord as senior patrol leader.

At the meeting of district commissioners Monday it was decided that each troop shall have the privilege of choosing two Scouts to represent them in the Armistice Day ceremonies at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier on November 11.

Trek to Gettysburg Planned.

Plans are being developed for a large group of Scouts and scouters to participate in a two-day trip to Gettysburg November 18 and 19. The trip is being conducted under the auspices of the scouters of the Fourth division, who extend an invitation to groups of scouters and Scouts from other divisions to participate in the trek.

Plans which are being shaped by Edward M. Perkins, district commissioner of the Fourth division, call for the automobiles leaving the District at 2 p. m. Saturday, returning Sunday night.

W. C. Cronenberg, scoutmaster Troop 14, conducted by the Luther Place Memorial Church, Fourteenth and N streets northwest, announces a two-day camping trip to take place tomorrow and Sunday. The troop will travel by automobile to Tall Timbers, Md., 75 miles south of Washington.

Sea Scouts Under Full Swing.

New leadership and reorganization for the Sea Scout ship Portsmouth was approved by the council Sea Scout committee meeting Wednesday night, at which Col. Edmund S. Sayer presided. The Portsmouth was organized in June, 1931.

Work on the Sea Scout base is progressing and the Sea Scout room at the base will soon represent a ship's deck, complete with bulwarks, masts, signal yard, bell, wheel and all seagoing devices to make it present a nautical appearance.

Troop 8, conducted by All Souls' Episcopal Church, Cathedral avenue and Woodley road, has launched a full program of autumn activities.

Single green bars will henceforth be worn by Fin Wright in the Bear Patrol, Jack Kelsey in the Flying Eagles and Dave Lyon in the Stags.

Children Lured By Slot Devices

Pollard, Told Lunch Cash Goes Into Machines.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12 (AP).—Gov. Pollard today was considering the suggestion that the State impose a prohibitive license tax on slot machines.

The executive said he is investigating slot machine gambling in the State and has asked advice of police officials with a view to abolishing the machines.

"I am informed that school children are throwing away their lunch money in slot machines and that there is a large-scale gambling industry in the State," the governor said. "Local authorities agree that slot machines are violating the spirit if not the letter of the anti-gambling statutes."

Kingsford-Smith Fails to Keep Date

Flier Forced Down Short of Sydney Goal.

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 12 (AP). Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith had a date for today in Sydney when he left England on his record flight to Australia, but despite a fine seven-day flight, he will not be able to keep it.

The flier hopped off this morning from Wyndham for this city, but hampered by a lack of maps and the topography of the country, he alighted this evening at Camooweal, Queensland, 1,250 miles short of his goal.

Artist Who Found Mills' Beauty Dies

Aaron H. Gorson Sold to Mellon and Schwab.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Aaron H. Gorson, 81, Russian-born painter whose gifted brush put a poetic interpretation on the American industrial scene—above all the steel industry—died here last night.

Gorson came from Russia to Philadelphia and then went to Pittsburgh where he set on canvas the brilliant picture of steel making.

Andrew Mellon, Charles Schwab and the late E. H. Gary purchased some of his paintings.

British Regard Crisis Abroad As New Menace

Grave Period Now Harks Back to 1914 Unrest; Geneva Is Key.

(This is the second of a series of stories outlining the political and economic situation, as viewed by statesmen in the leading capitals of the world.)

London, Oct. 12 (AP).—Europe, in the opinion of British observers in Downing street, American officials in London and informed publicists, this week is passing through one of the gravest periods in postwar history.

Attention throughout Europe is centered on Geneva for a sign of a break in the disarmament deadlock.

The crux of the situation behind the crisis, according to competent observers in London, is the effect of the historic rivalry of Germany, France and Italy on a growing economic nationalism among the continental powers.

Germany, with the Nazi regime firmly in power, is looked upon by her neighbors as Europe's powder magazine.

Positions Endangered.

France sees her position in western Europe, and Italy her stand in the Mediterranean, at stake.

In the Balkans and in Russia, and clear across Asia to Tokyo and the Far East, repercussions are feared unless the latest crisis sweeping Europe is solved.

The British people, busily engaged in consolidating the benefits of the mild national economic revival during the last two years, are thinking as little of becoming entangled in Europe as they were during the June days of 1914.

Ever since Great Britain's national political crisis of 1931, which had its roots in the nation's financial position, this country generally has improved and still is slowly improving.

London remains the world's financial capital. The new empire relationship established at Ottawa is paying dividends.

Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, insists this recovery is not "a flash in the pan." Unemployment has been reduced 600,000 in the year. Among the nation's expanding activities are the vital heavy industries, iron and steel, engineering and shipbuilding, the textile trades, the electrical industries, some branches of agriculture, and the automotive industry.

During the last four months, Great Britain's foreign trade has reached a remarkable degree of stability, according to American officials whose business it is to watch the British trade trends.

Finance at High Mark.

The half-year budget figures just announced were the best in five years. So good were they, in fact, that Chancellor Chamberlain at a Mansion House dinner said that after balancing the budget, England might have some left in the national pocketbook to use for the redemption of debts. The guests laughed at the chancellor's humor, but the minister is not given to exaggerated statements.

From her island seclusion, England looks out and sees nothing but political and economic storms. Confident of her own ability to regulate her own national economy, she nevertheless views the situation with apprehension born of the experience of 1914.

Minnesota's Repeal Vote Received Here

(Associated Press.)

The State Department yesterday received official notification that Minnesota, on October 10, ratified the twenty-first or repeal amendment.

This was the twenty-fifth ratification received. A total of 33 States, however, have voted for repeal.

Through Parisian Eyes

Skyscraper, Elevator Speed Astonish French Visitor

By Andre Vulliet.

This was my first crossing. Like most of my countrymen, I had considered that Europe was enough for me and that a trip to America was too much of an adventure. It goes without saying that I never saw a skyscraper.

In Paris, the height of our houses and buildings is limited by the municipality to seven or eight floors. This preserves the harmony of the city, but our impressions of altitude are limited.

Of course, there is the Eiffel Tower with its 1,000 feet. But it is not a building where persons live. It stands by itself, wrapped in the prestige of bygone supremacy, like an old actress. We still respect it and would certainly not dare go on its top more than a few times in our lives.

Reward for Good Boys.

For the good little boy it is the reward for months of high marks. For the adult, it is the supreme ascension towards infinite heights, the one sensation that you can only appreciate after an elaborate education, the different stages of which are the Arc de Triomphe (150 feet) and Notre Dame (300 feet).

In approaching New York, my eyes immediately caught sight of the skyscrapers, and my imagination started working itself up for the new sensations. Hours of bliss to be spent on top of those giants and in their elevators!

I decided to go up the Empire State Building, which every one knows in France, since it stole the "thunder" from the Eiffel Tower. It was 6 o'clock in the evening, and the sight was even more striking than I expected. I can not describe what I felt when I realized there at my feet was a population equal to Belgium's. It was grand.

But what I can tell you about is my second best impression of a skyscraper: the working of the elevators.

Those Speedy Elevators.

To think that it takes only one minute and a half to ascend 1,200 feet of the Empire State Building, that the Radio City Building has a car that shoots you up its 70 floors in 37 seconds seems incredible.

Do you know what you have to do to go up the Eiffel Tower? You first wait on the ground, in a long queue, to be admitted. Then you wait for the elevator. It is an enormous two-story car which is neither an elevator nor a funicular. It has an automobile horn. First they blow a little trumpet, then the horn, and you start slowly moving.

On the first platform you stop a while. On the second you shift into another elevator. It is an old hydraulic machine. You make acquaintances, you bet on whether the sight is going to be clear or hazy. With fair luck, you can be back in about an hour.

A large party or a family can get in at the same time on your apartment house elevators. Ours are about as big as a telephone booth, and their maximum is always limited to three persons. It is a mystery to me why our elevators should not go downward, but it is forbidden to use them for that purpose.

Baseball Clubs Appeal Payments to Policemen

A city ordinance, by which the Philadelphia major league baseball teams would be forced to pay $5.50 for each policeman and fireman on duty at games, was appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court yesterday.

Officials of the clubs declared the ordinance an unlawful delegation of police power to the director of public safety.

Firm Official Pleads Guilty to Kidnaping

Muskegon, Mich., Oct. 12 (AP). William T. Holt, 49, vice president of a brass company here today, entered an unexpected plea of guilty to complicity in the kidnaping and torturing of a business associate in an effort to make him confess a theft from the firm.

Two private detectives, Leonard O'Connor and Angelo Martinelli, of Chicago, pleaded guilty previously.

Austria Gives Fascist Chief High Position

Heimwehr Leader Assails Socialist Foes and Sees Swing to Right.

Vienna, Oct. 12 (AP).—Prince Von Starhemberg, leader of the Austrian Heimwehr (home guard), appointed today by Chancellor Dollfuss to be vice leader of the Patriotic Front, declared tonight that his appointment marked another stride toward Fascism in Austria.

He indicated, however, that the entry of the Heimwehr into the Dollfuss program did not mean Dollfuss would command the Heimwehr.

Starhemberk emphasized that he himself is "and will be commander in chief, retaining as before his full freedom of action and independence.

"The Patriotic Front rejects the Social-Democratic party," he added, "because it is a class-war party and because it repeatedly has been demonstrated that its leaders do not shrink from high treason to gain their aims.

"The Patriotic Front likewise rejects the Social Democratic labor unions because these are organizations for class war.

Austrians who were, or perhaps are in Socialist organizations, he said, must be won back to patriotism and "the leadership of the Patriotic Front will gladly welcome fellow countrymen who turn their backs on Marxist ideas."

Calling attention to the Socialist party Congress scheduled Saturday, the semiofficial Abendzeitung said:

"This party congress, which amounts to a Socialist council of war, must not be permitted. The Austro-Bolshevik series of treasonable actions must end.

"Chancellor, be hard! End the Red nuisance."

President's Mother White House Guest

Chief Executive Motors to Leesburg With Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt to Visit Mrs. William C. Eustis.

President Roosevelt has been joined in the White House by his mother, Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, who will remain in the Capital several days. The President and his mother motored to Leesburg, Va., where they called on Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis at her country home, the Oaks. Mrs. Eustis is the daughter of the late Mr. Levi P. Morton, Vice President of the United States during the administration of President Harrison from 1889 to 1893.

Later in the afternoon the President received the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who is now in New York, from where she will return some time today, will be the guest in whose honor Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, will entertain at a luncheon on October 24.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Hull entertained a small company at tea yesterday afternoon in their apartment at the Carlton, when the guests were invited to meet Senator and Marchesa Marconi. There were about 12 guests, including the Ambassador of Italy, Signor Rosso, and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Senator and Marchesa Marconi were among those lunching in the Presidential dining room of the Mayflower Hotel yesterday.

Earlier in the day Signor Rosso entertained at luncheon in celebration of the winning of the Thompson Trophy by Lieut. Francisco Agello, of the Royal Italian Air Force.

Ambassador Muhtar Gives Luncheon.

The Ambassador of Turkey, Mr. Ahmet Muhtar, entertained informally at luncheon yesterday in the Embassy.

The newly appointed Minister of Bulgaria, Mr. Stoyan Petross Tchomakoff, and Mme. Tchomakoff arrived in Washington Wednesday evening.

Countess Laszlo Szechenyi, wife of the Hungarian Minister to London, has come to Washington from Newport to see her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Roberts. Mrs. Roberts formerly was Countess Cornelia Szechenyi.

Mrs. Roper Aids V. F. W. Celebration Plans.

Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, has accepted the chairmanship of the patroness committee for the annual Armistice Day celebration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Saturday evening, November 11, at the Wardman Park Hotel. The event this year will take the form of a ball and is given to raise funds to carry on the relief work of the organization. The list of patrons is headed by President Roosevelt, and will include members of official, residential and diplomatic society.

The Assistant Secretary of War, Mr. Harry H. Woodring, is chairman of the patrons committee for the event.

Meetings of the various committees arranging the gala dance are holding meetings frequently and plans are well under way for the event.

Representative and Mrs. Fred A. Britten will return to the Capital on Monday, after spending 10 days in Chicago.

The Second Secretary of the Turkish Embassy, Ussaki zade Bulent, who has been stopping at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles, returned to Washington by plane Thursday evening.

Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, wife of the Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton Hotel, the company numbering seven.

Mrs. Eugene R. Black, wife of the Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, entertained at luncheon at Rossdhu yesterday in honor of Mrs. H. Warner Martin, whose husband is the assistant to Gen. Black. Mrs. Black was the daughter of the late Mr. Henry Grady of Georgia.

Miss Lee to Make Her Debut During Holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Cazenove Lee will introduce their daughter, Miss Marguerite du Pont Lee, to society during the Christmas holidays. Miss Lee is a student at Vassar and will not return to Washington until just before Christmas.

Mrs. Julius P. Woodley entertained at luncheon yesterday for Mrs. Cyrus C. Cole, wife of Rear Admiral Cole.

Mrs. Woodley, with Mrs. Blucher Ehringhaus and the latter's daughter, Miss Betty Ehringhaus, arrived at the Shoreham Hotel on Tuesday for two months. They are from Norfolk, Va.

The first meeting of all the committees, debutante, postdebutante, girls' and men's advisory, married couples and the men's floor committees of the fourth annual Halloween costume ball will be held at the Mayflower Hotel in the main ballroom Sunday at 2:30 o'clock.

Capt. and Mrs. W. D. Puleston arrived in Washington yesterday from Old Point Comfort, Va., and are at the Wardman Park Hotel. Capt. Puleston is in command of the U. S. S. Mississippi, which arrived recently at Hampton Roads from Cuba.

M. Pierre du Pasquier, of Paris, is a guest at the Wardman Park Hotel for a short visit.

Mrs. Charles Addams and her daughter are spending a few days at Wardman Park Hotel before rejoining Mr. Addams at their home in New York.

Mrs. C. Goodloe Edgar, of Detroit, has leased the house at 1410 Twenty-ninth street, Georgetown, and is in residence for the winter. Mrs. Edgar is the widow of Gen. Edgar, and spent much time in Washington during the war. She is the former Miss Mary McComas, daughter of Senator McComas of Maryland. Mrs. Edgar still maintains a country home near Washington, "The Still House," at Williamsport, Md.

Mr. Edward C. Gardner will introduce his niece, Miss Mary Louise Marsh, to society at a tea dance at home on Christmas Day, instead of on Friday, December 22, as originally planned.

Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, of Washington, is stopping at the Biltmore Hotel during her stay in New York.

Miss Dorothea Lane has as her guests in her apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street, Mrs. E. K. Koehler, of Cincinnati; Mrs. James C. Sprigg, jr., of New York, and Miss Emily Cookman, of Philadelphia.

Dr. and Mrs. Walker Hosts at Dinner.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Walker entertained at dinner last evening at the Chevy Chase Club in honor of Col. and Mrs. George Williams, who have come up from the Canal Zone for a few week's visit in Washington and West Point.

The guests were the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Michael MacWhite, Mr. Merchant Mahoney, First Secretary of the Canadian Legation, and Mrs. Mahoney; Capt. Enrique A. Prieto, Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy, and Senora de Prieto; Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Montgomery, Miss Kathleen Smith and Mr. Francis Stoughton Walker.

Miss Helen Walker and Miss Evelyn Walker entertained at a luncheon yesterday at their home on Ashmead place in honor of Miss Florence Feaver, sister of Mr. H. F. Feaver, Third Secretary of the Canadian Legation, and Miss Betty Williams, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Albert R. Fishburn, of London, is at the Shoreham Hotel for a few days, after which she will visit her mother, Mrs. Frank Tarter, in Kansas City. She will return to the Shoreham Hotel the last of this month, when she will be joined by Mr. Fishburn, who is in London. They expect to spend the winter in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Valentine, of Chicago, are at the Carlton Hotel for a few days, accompanied by Mrs. A. I. Valentine and Miss E. Valentine, also of Chicago.

Manahan, Cronin Sail for West.

Commander S. A. Manahan, U. S. N., and Brig. Gen. Marcus D. Cronin, U. S. A., retired, are among the passengers sailing today from New York on the Santa Paula, on a trip through the Panama Canal to the West Coast.

Mrs. Samuel J. Masters is at the Shoreham Hotel and expects to leave in 10 days to open her winter home at Miami Beach, Fla. She recently visited Chicago, after spending the summer at Poland Springs, Me. She is expecting Mrs. George Hall Porter, of Chicago, to arrive Sunday to accompany her to Florida.

Mrs. Joseph Bricard Matre and Mrs. Andrew G. Landrus were hostesses at a bridge luncheon yesterday at Rossdhu Castle.

Mr. Paul Lutz was host at a birthday dinner last night at Rossdhu Castle. A very pretty custom of the castle is to make a special feature of the birthday cakes with candles.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jennings Price have reopened their apartment at the Shoreham Hotel after visiting Maj. W. Sanderson Detwiler, at Lancaster, Pa., following a summer at Cape May and Atlantic City.

Charles H. Fischer And Wife in Capital

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henri Fischer, of New York, are spending this week at the Shoreham Hotel. Mrs. Fischer is president general of the National Society of Colonial Descendants of America. Mr. Fischer is a former United States Consul at Milan, Italy. One of the most valued possessions of Mrs. Fischer is a large medallion, jeweled in turquoise and diamonds, given her by the members of the organization of which she is president general.

Mrs. Fischer has been active in politics of the Democratic party in New York, having been one of the advisory board of the Roosevelt Southern Club of New York. She is a girlhood friend of Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, and attended the Athenaeum School with her at Columbia, Tenn.

Last February a rule in the House of Representatives was broken in honor of Mrs. Fischer, when she was presented to the House by Representative Willa B. Eslick, of Tennessee. The rule was made by Speaker Garner after many celebrities had been introduced from the floor. Mr. Garner was not presiding at the time of the introduction.

Miss Langhorne, Soon a Bride, Is Entertained

Niece of Lady Astor Will Be Bride Tomorrow at "Greenfields."

Miss Phyllis Langhorne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Langhorne, of Greenfields, near Warren, Va., whose marriage to Donald Bruce Eyster, of West Virginia and New York, will take place on the lawn of the Langhorne home tomorrow afternoon, is being entertained at a number of parties preceding the wedding.

Miss Langhorne, who is a niece of Lady Astor, was the guest of honor at a dinner given last evening at the Farmington Country Club by Miss Ruth York and Mrs. John Wise, of New York. Mrs. Wise is visiting her mother, Mrs. Edward Tayloe, at Edgehill, near Charlottesville.

This evening Miss Langhorne will be entertained at the Farmington Club by Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Morrill, of Cincinnati, and Enniscorthy, Albemarle County. The bridal party will be in attendance at this affair.

The bride-elect was entertained at a tea and shower given by Mrs. Percy Brown at her home, Hillcrest, near Charlottesville, earlier this week. Mrs. George Austen poured tea and was assisted in the dining room by Miss Frances Lile, Miss Ellen Barbour Compton, Miss Josephine Peyton and Miss Evelyn Micou.

Those invited to meet Miss Langhorne were Miss Ruth York, Miss Sarah Forsyth, Miss Isabel Shaffer, Miss Molly Minor, Miss Elizabeth Nolting, Miss May Speed, Miss Janet Stone, of New York and Morven; Miss Mary Minor, of Richmond; Miss Ellen Compton, Miss Mary Dillard and Miss Elizabeth Dillard, of Scottsville; Miss Frances Lile, Miss Nancy Wilson, Miss Alida Wilson, Miss Josephine Peyton, Miss Lawson Cook, Miss Elizabeth Micou, Miss Evelyn Micou, Miss Helen Bean, Miss Mary Shepherd, Miss Virginia Randolph, Miss Emily Weaver, Miss Evelyn Mott, Miss Gay Johnson, Miss Alice Dabney, Miss Betty Lee, Miss Anne West, Mrs. F. Mrs. Hunter Faulconer, Mrs. Cary Johnson, Mrs. C. K. Davenport, Mrs. William Earl, Mrs. Everard Meade, Mrs. Logan Morrill, Mrs. Theodore Phillips, who is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Albert Morrill; Mrs. John S. Wise, Mrs. Al York, Mrs. Pete Hildreth, Mrs. Meclewski and Mrs. Joseph Yon.

The wedding will take place on the spacious lawn at Greenfields at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and will be performed by the Rev. E. B. Meredith, of Scottsville, and the Rev. William H. Ladd, rector of St. Paul's Church. Preparations are being made for 500 guests.

Card Party Will Aid Children's Hospital

Benefit Affair Scheduled for Next Friday.

The Children's Hospital, for which Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt recently made a plea for help in raising funds to procure a new heating plant, will benefit from a card party at the Shoreham Hotel, Friday, October 20.

Mrs. William Mark Conrad is chairman of arrangements and Mrs. Charles Hoyt March is vice chairman.

Patronesses are Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, Mrs. George H. Dern, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Eugene Black, Mrs. William W. Cook, Mrs. Robert Davis, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, jr., Mrs. Robert M. Gates, Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, Mrs. J. T. M. Johnston, Mrs. Victor Kauffmann, Mrs. Hiram Warner Martin, Mrs. William McMaster Mills, Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, Mrs. Edwards Shouse, Mrs. Thomas Thompson, Mrs. George C. Thorpe, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. Elonzo Tyner, Mrs. J. Thompson Wailes, Mrs. Horace H. Westcott and Mrs. Ralph Worthington.

Symphony Tickets Given to Veterans

Mrs. Hicks Makes Gift to Walter Reed Patients.

Mrs. Frederick Hicks has donated a block of tickets to all of the concerts of the National Symphony Orchestra this season, to be distributed among the patients at Walter Reed Hospital.

For the opening concert at 4 o'clock next Sunday in Constitution Hall and for all succeeding Sunday concerts, a block of 16 tickets will be available to the veterans, as well as a block of 8 tickets to all of the orchestra's "symphony series" concerts, most of which will be given on Thursdays.

The tickets will be distributed through the Red Cross.

Virginia Weeks Becomes Bride Of Navy Officer

Wed to Lieut. Charles Weeks in Home Ceremony; Will Live Here.

In the presence of a few relatives and intimate friends the wedding of Miss Virginia Weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Weeks, to Lieut. Charles Weeks, U. S. N., son of Col. and Mrs. C. W. Weeks, of Fort Benning, Ga., took place yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the bride's home on Rowland place. Chaplain Sidney K. Evans, U. S. N., performed the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of brown velvet, made with a short train and long, flowing sleeves. Her close-fitting turban was of a matching shade of brown velvet and she carried bronze chrysanthemums.

Miss Paula Weeks was her sister's maid of honor and only attendant. Her frock was of blue crepe, made with a high neckline. Her small hat also was of blue, and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Weeks, mother of the bride, wore a black velvet gown trimmed with ermine.

Lieut. C. C. Ray, U. S. N., acted as best man. Later in the afternoon Lieut. Weeks and his bride left for a wedding trip, and will return to Washington to make their home. Lieut. and Mrs. Weeks are distant cousins.

Minister Hanna Will Sail Today

Wife to Join Him in Guatemala After Trip to Germany.

The United States Minister to Guatemala, Mr. Mathew E. Hanna, will sail today from New York aboard the Santa Paula for his new station. Mrs. Hanna will remain in Washington until early next week, when she will leave for New York to sail for Germany on Wednesday.

The Minister and Mrs. Hanna entertained at luncheon in the Shoreham Hotel Wednesday in compliment to the new United States Minister to Nicaragua and Mrs. Arthur Bliss Lane.

The other guests included Mrs. Hanna's sister, Baroness Gerda von Blumenthal; John C. Wiley and Willard L. Beaulac, both of the State Department.

Capt. Miller Robert Taylor has taken a suite at the Carlton Hotel for a short stay.

Mrs. H. G. Durfee, who left Washington the latter part of June, has reopened her apartment at the Shoreham Hotel, where she will spend the winter season. She spent the summer in Maine and Canada and recently completed a cruise around the Gaspe Peninsula.

Mary Marsh to Make Debut on Christmas

Mr. Edward C. Gardner will introduce his niece, Miss Mary Louise Marsh, at a tea dance at home Christmas afternoon, instead of Friday, December 22.

Mrs. Shields, G. A. Thompson Are Married

Prominent Barrister and His Bride Will Live in St. Louis.

The marriage of Mrs. Florence Street Shields to Mr. Guy A. Thompson, former president of the American Bar Association, took place yesterday at 12 o'clock in the Church of the Epiphany. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Dr. Ze Barney Phillips, rector of Epiphany Church and former rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church in St. Louis. Witnesses at the marriage were Mr. George H. Shields 3d, son of the bride, and Mrs. George H. Shields 3d, and the two sons of Mr. Thompson, Edmonstone, a senior at Yale, and Alexander, a senior at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va.

Mr. Thompson and his bride left for a short wedding trip, and will be at home after November 1 at 32 Washington Terrace, St. Louis. Mrs. Thompson has been at 3900 Connecticut avenue, stopping with her son, who for some weeks has been an assistant administrator in the NRA.

The wedding fell on the first anniversary of the date on which Mr. Thompson delivered his annual address to the American Bar Association, meeting in this city. The following day, October 13, he delivered the address at the laying of the cornerstone of the magnificent United States Supreme Court Building, now approaching completion. Both the bride and bridegroom knew Dr. Phillips in St. Louis during his pastorate there.

Mr. Thompson's first wife and the bride's husband, Col. George H. Shields, died about six years ago. Col. Shields was a son of the late Gen. George H. Shields, who, with his partner, the late Gen. John W. Noble, were a leading law firm in St. Louis years ago. Both were generals in the Union Army, and Gen. Noble was Secretary of the Interior in the McKinley Cabinet.

Mrs. Thompson was Miss Florence Street, daughter of the late Mr. James D. Street, head of the James D. Street Oil Co.

Luncheon Given By Arts Group At New Home

Plans Laid for Exhibit of Paintings and Other Events.

Members and friends of the recently organized Seven Arts Group in Washington gathered yesterday at The House of the Seven Arts for a luncheon which marked the opening of the handsome new clubhouse, which formerly was the Egyptian Legation.

Mrs. William H. King, wife of Senator King and president of the arts group, presented Mrs. George C. Thorpe as speaker. Mrs. Thorpe discussed the ideals and aims of the new organization. Other speakers were Mr. Alexander Trowbridge and Mrs. Paul Herzog, who outlined the tentative program of exhibits which the club is planning for its first year.

A formal opening will be held the end of the month, with an exhibition of famous paintings as the principal attraction. Other features will be an evening of esthetic dancing, and the third evening will be devoted to the display of sculpture. An elaborate costume ball will close the days of the formal opening.

Dr. Jasper Mayer, of Los Angeles, made a brief address yesterday on the importance of art in every-day human endeavor.

Among the guests were Nicholas Khalil Bey, Charge d'Affaires of Egypt; Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Minister of Sweden; Baroness Douglas von Bruegel, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of the Netherlands; Senora de Prieto, wife of the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy; Senor Don Rafael Fuentes, Second Secretary of the Mexican Embassy, and Senora de Fuentes; Count Pierre de Leusse, Attache of the French Embassy, and Countess de Leusse; Mr. Claude Boisanger, Second Secretary of the French Embassy; Senor Cesar de Quiros, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Daniel Devore, Baroness von Lowenfeldt, Mrs. John Dwight, Mrs. Henry McHarg, Mrs. James Ellwood Jones.

Mrs. Paul Herzog, Mrs. F. D. Berrien, Mrs. Charles H. March, Mrs. Harry Semmes, Mrs. William H. Bell, Mrs. Charles Bell, Mrs. Francis Savage, Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Mrs. Charles L. Hussey, Mrs. Harry Huse, Miss Meta Evans, Mr. and Mrs. George Ousley, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Forbes Morgan, Mrs. Ellis Yost, Mrs. W. R. Ritter, Mr. Alexander Trowbridge, Mrs. Corrin Strong, Mrs. William Skully, Mrs. Ralph Worthington, Mrs. William King, Mrs. George Oakley Totten, Miss Gretchen Hood, Mr. William Fletcher Smith, Mrs. Ernest Smith, Miss Ada Rainey, Mr. Manuel Giron, Mr. Louis Calles, Mr. Corrington Gill, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Shafer, Mr. Michael Logan and Mrs. Robert Munro.

Following the luncheon, Miss Gretchen Hood, contralto, gave a brief recital.

Midget Lamp Clamps Onto Corner of Book

It's Ideal for Daughter in College Who Has to "Cram" for Exams.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

There may be some students who spend four years in college and never cram, but we believe they're few and far between. You must have heard daughter tell about those stuffy hours in the closet while she burnt the midnight oil over her books because school rulings say lights out at such and such an hour. Don't you remember when you used to do the same thing?

A little reading lamp on display in a G street store is apt to bring back vivid memories. It's exactly the kind of thing you could have used to such perfection then and is suited ideally to daughter's scholastic struggles now.

It clamps onto the book cover and throws an excellent light over the leaves of the book, but in no way scatters its brilliance around the room. And don't forget, it will be a blessing for daughter when exam time comes around.

A great many women say they're entirely too thin to wear girdles or corselets of any sort, but it's a rash statement to make. According to style experts, the slender figure often needs to be held in and smoothed over as badly as a robust one.

You buy a $75 evening frock and you wonder why it doesn't live up to its price, why it bulges here and hangs there. If you bought a carefully fitted foundation garment and wore your gown over this you might find the answer to your question.

A G street shop has some made of a soft, silky material with light rubber backs and jersey uplift brassiere attachments which give you a million dollar figure whether nature did or not. They're $7.50 and real bargains for that.

---

Initials have become so popular that it's no small wonder they're taking on newer and more novel forms. Have you seen the interchangeable ones which fit into a small metal frame and may be transposed at your pleasure?

If your name were Alice May Smith you could use the A. M. S. sometimes, or the A. S. others, or just the plain S, if you liked.

---

It sounds like a myth, but it isn't. It's one of those truths stranger than fiction—a $2 value for 57 cents. Stop by a downtown store and ask for the one-minute facial package and you'll find a large bottle of liquid skin cleanser which has won its reputation from the effective manner it cleans the pores. There's also a small flask in which you can carry the liquid on your travels and a small funnel to facilitate filling it. As though all this weren't enough, there's also a box of cotton pads for application and removal.

Here's a value hard to resist for personal use and a real tempter for a Christmas present.

For a snappy outfit which costs little and looks like a lot, you can't beat the hat-and-glove-to-match combination. Suppose you have a brown coat, stop by an F street store and pick up a pair of rust-colored jersey gloves, then to another shop and choose a little woolly rust hat, and you have a stunning ensemble. If your coat is black, why not a vivid green or red? The gloves are $1.50 and the hats from $1 to $3.

---

Have you ever seen any of the ornate old English salt-and-pepper shakers which look somewhat like miniature reproductions of carriage lanterns? There are some copies of these in a G street shop which are likely to take your fancy. They're made in a dull silvery metal, which gives them an aged look, and they're selling at $1.50.

'Y' to Hear Talk By Mrs. Roosevelt

First Lady Will Address Gathering Monday.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be guest of honor and speaker at an all-member meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association at the central building, Seventeenth and K streets northwest, Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, Miss Hettie P. Anderson, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A., announced. Admission will be by membership card.

Monday night's meeting will be a continuation of the fall conference started by leaders at a meeting last week at Treetops, the home of Mrs. Luke I. Wilson. Mrs. William L. Corbin is chairman of the conference committee and will preside at Monday night's meeting.

Other features on the program will be the presentation of a playlet, "Rip Van Winkle," by the Girl Reserves; a message from the National Y. W. C. A., by Miss Elizabeth Eastman; a message regarding the Community Chest, by Miss Bertha Pabst, and a talk by Mrs. William Adams Slade, president of the Y. W. C. A., on "As We Begin Again."

Women Fight Depression With Needle and Thread

Relief Workers Show Them How to Aid Selves and Others.

It's a woman's world.

Where, years ago, automobiles of a well-known make were stored, with overalled mechanics in attendance, today on the second floor of the Ford Building, on Pennsylvania avenue, women have taken charge.

Yesterday sewing machines were whirring, scissors were snipping, calico scraps were falling and needles were flying. The atmosphere was reminiscent of an old-time sewing bee, as 80 women carried forward the work of making 400 quilts.

"We've just had an order for 400 quilts from the Emergency Unemployment Relief," explained Maude Bradbury, presiding genius of all the activity, as she turned aside from inspecting a half-completed article.

Need Is Urgent.

"They're wanted at once. This cold spell has brought the first pinch of winter discomfort to thousands of needy in the city. We expect to meet the order within ten days."

More than 150 women, who would otherwise be numbered among the District's unemployed, are finding remunerative part-time work each week at the Ford Building.

While it is today one of the many District work-relief projects of the Federal Unemployment Relief Administration, the sewing project was started a year ago as a private endeavor of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

It was called the clothes conservation committee, organized by club women at the request of the District committee on unemployment. The District Council of Social Agencies lent help and advice.

Mrs. Bradbury Leader.

Mrs. Bradbury, for many years a club worker, was placed in charge of the work. Her husband, Dr. Wymond Bradbury, one of Washington's well-known physicians, had died a short time before.

The committee soon outgrew its original purpose, which was to serve as a receiving and distributing agency for discarded clothing.

The staff of two women originally employed to recondition clothing, by mending and relining, was increased to six in February. To occupy idle moments they began doing commission sewing. Proceeds were turned back into the committee funds with which material was purchased for making underclothing, house dresses for women and suits and dresses for small boys and girls.

By midsummer the staff had grown to 150 women, doing part-time work, from two to four days a week. One such employe was a 19-year-old girl, sole support of 10 brothers and sisters, an invalid mother and aged grandmother. Work was apportioned according to the needs of applicants, those with more dependents being given more hours' work than those with lighter responsibilities.

U. S. Takes Over Project.

Until the Government took over the project this September, articles were distributed on application to any needy after verification of the authenticity of the appeal.

Today, the output of the unit is distributed through ten accredited social welfare agencies in Washington and through the Community Chest.

There are racks on racks of coats and dresses for women and girls; suits and overcoats for men and boys, awaiting distribution. There are shelves of shirts, sweaters, pajamas and undergarments. There are piles of rugs, made of rags from attics and remnants from department stores. There are quilts and counterpanes, from the plainest to the most elaborate materials and workmanship.

The project gradually took on the aspects of a handicraft school. Jobless women without commercial talents drifted into the busy workroom, to be pressed into service and to find themselves in time capable, even expert, sewing women.

Many Get Real Jobs.

"Many of them have graduated to the alteration departments of local shops and stores," Mrs. Bradbury said happily.

"Some of them had to be taught how to thread a needle when they first came. Some of them would never have been in need if they had known how to sew. The greater number are capable and don't stay with us long. They find something on their own initiative, or I find it for them.

"In helping these women to become self-sustaining, and to find for themselves a place in industry, we feel we are doing more than when we were simply distributing discarded clothes to the poor."

Yesterday, representatives of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture were working side by side with the sewing women, teaching them modern methods of fashioning garments.

The day's lesson consisted of preshrinking cotton materials by immersing the bolt of material in warm water for 15 minutes, after which it was dried and ironed; and in cutting children's garments in such a manner as to utilize every inch of material.

Universities Help.

George Washington University, the University of Maryland and the Home Economics Association of the District of Columbia will cooperate with the Federal department in tutoring the women.

Throughout the winter, biweekly lecture classes will be conducted in the sewing room. Diet, child training, clothing renovation and health problems will be discussed.

The lectures were launched last week, when Mrs. Ellis Logan, of 1661 Crescent place northwest, past president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, discussed "The Psychology of Color."

Using the rugs and quilts the women had made for illustration, she told them they were adding beauty to the lives of others through the efforts by which they were serving their own lives.

"It was wonderful how those hopeless faces, those tired, sad faces, lighted up at the suggestion that there was an ideal and a far-reaching purpose back of their work," said Mrs. Logan in discussing the opening lecture.

Explanation.

By Katherine W. Smith.

Slightly smiling, eyes a little
Widened with amused surprise,
I will take my leave of you, while
Hoping that you realize

I may smile and feel amusement,
Having been completely torn
By all other known emotions
But these last. My smiles are worn

Because I feel exhaustion pressing
On my heart * * * Do I seem bold
To tell you, dear, that I'm not laughing
Just because I'm shallow-souled?

Velvet Afternoon Frocks Luxurious Though Simple

Directed by Amos Parrish

Its a year for elegance . . . for rich fabrics, for glowing colors, for dignity in lines. What a year for velvet! It's elegant, it makes color glow, and it probably has greater dignity of line than almost any material you can think of.

Velvet afternoon dresses are lovely examples of what you can do with very simple lines. They use few trimmings except such simple things as self-shirrings and cut-out work.

High at the Neck.

Most of them come up rather high in the front, draping slightly at the neckline. And the newest dresses are quite long. . . . ankle length, in fact. Though if you want a dress that can go more places you'll choose yours in street length.

The sleeves do most of the decorating on these velvet frocks. Some women who have arms too pretty to cover like their sleeves short . . . puffed and shirred as you see in the sketch. Others pick the long dolman sleeves . . . very wide at the armholes and tapering to snug wrists.

Either of these sleeves is comfortable for bridge playing, or for dining. And such occasions—teas, formal bridge parties, informal dinners and restaurant dining—are the ones you'll most need an afternoon velvet for.

Information as to where styles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department of The Washington Post on request.

Transparent or Uncut.

Most everybody can wear velvet this year too . . . since the dull uncut bagheera becomes many women who do not look well in the sleek transparent kind. Bagheera is better in colors . . . port wine (tinged with brown), blackberry, green and brown. Transparent velvet is good in all of these colors, but perhaps is at its luxurious best in black.

Leaflet on Accessories.

Velvet, because of its very richness, needs carefully chosen accessories. We've taken up the problems raised by this question in a leaflet which you may have if you'll fill in the coupon and send it with the proper inclosures.

Chins Up! They Are Important As Beauty Item

Right Clothes, Proper Posture, Careful Treatments Can Give Allure.

A clear, firm chin line adds both beauty and character to any face. And while such a chin is popularly supposed to be one of the "contours of youth," many women of 50 or more manage to preserve it. On the other hand, girls of 15 or thereabouts frequently lose it through careless posture, whether standing, sitting, or reclining.

When standing or sitting, it is imperative that the girl or woman who would preserve a clean-cut chin line, should hold her head high, with chin in an easy horizontal position.

When reading and writing, do not drop the head down so far as to produce one or more folds under the chin. When sleeping, the smaller the pillow, the better for the chin line. No pillow at all is best. And many pillows are positively taboo!

Skin Food Recommended.

The use of a good skin food smeared generously over the neck and under the chin is to be recommended once a day, preferably after the nightly cleansing treatment. This may be followed, if the throat is heavy, if one has double chins, or sagging cheek muscles, by a smart slapping of the offending flesh with the back of the hands. The right undercheek and chin may be thus vigorously roused to muscular health and lively circulation by using the right hand. The left hand is used for treating the left side of the face and chin.

If one has time to spare; it is a good idea to "tie up" the cheeks and and chin with a heavy, wide bandage of clean cotton. The "tie up," with which every woman who has ever had a facial massage is familiar, lifts sagging muscles into proper position and tends to erase lines and creases. It is restful and soothing, moreover.

Right Clothes Help.

Correctly chosen millinery and gowns and coats with properly cut necklines do much to give grace to a congenitally unfortunate throat contour. Graceful hairdress is a helpful measure.

If the chin is heavy or receding, avoid having a knot of hair or cluster of curls at the exact chin level. Arrange the hair a little above or below the chin level.

If the chin is square and aggressive in appearance, strategic placing of rouge high on the cheekbones may serve to call attention away from the chin. A short face can be made to look longer if powder is patted generously on the chin. To shorten a long face, rouge the chin a bit.

Books

Scribner Declares War on Practice of Dumping "Remainders."

The fact that you can go into a corner drug store and buy a $7.50 book for $1.68 or a $2.50 book for 98 cents is a sore thorn in the side of the publishers. To be sure, the books are three, four or five years out; but they are clean copies of original editions, and often decidedly worth reading. The machinery behind such bargains is a form of "dumping." Printed sheets of the books are sold by the publishers after the book has lost a certain vogue and the purchasing firm binds them and sells them as "remainders." Now, it appears, the original publishers are revolting. Scribner has come out flat and states that in the future it will not allow "the binding of sheets to be remaindered." By cutting off the supply, the trade hopes to remove so painful a competition to its current books.

A new journal of current events appears. "The Britannica Bulletin," put out by the backers of the encyclopedia, will be issued at least five times a year. The first number, out October 9, contains 60 pages. Among the contributors are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Grace Abbott, of the Federal Children's Bureau; Ely Culbertson and Prof. Irving Fisher.

Frederick Way had such a yearning for the old Mississippi River days that when he was 24 his father gave him an ancient steamboat as a Christmas present. He took the Betsy Ann up and down the Ohio River, trying to restore the brave days of Mark Twain. What adventures befell him are told in "The Log of the Betsy Ann," which McBride will publish on the 23d of this month.

Manhattan Muse.

A book of verse, "OUT OF MY HEAD," by Margaret Fishback; Dutton, $2.00.

With so obvious a peg to measure by as the inimitable Dorothy Parker it is impossible to avoid some comparison here, however odious. Miss Fishback still must remain one of the tapers in Miss Parker's sunglow if this second of her slim volumes is better than her first.

With her back yard the lawns of Morgan on Murray Hill and her playground Central Park, she makes faces in doggerel at "Rockefeller's Fifty-fourth street residence" and grows rhapsodic as the sun sets over the Manhattan view of "the cock atop the Hecksher Building." New York, one gathers, is her pet and peeve. "Life and Loves of a Woman of Manhattan, A. D. 1933" might well serve as a subtitle for these verses.

Miss Fishback has a notable talent for titles of whimsy, double-entendres and an unabashed sauciness. For a trip on a street car past uninteresting scenery take along a copy of "Out of My Head."

Cortez.

A biography, "CONQUEROR," by Arthur D. Howden Smith; Lippincott, $2.50.

The conquest of New Spain to the average American layman is, at best, a matter of dates and one man—Cortez. In this entertaining and authentic volume, Mr. Smith's skillful characterization gives color and life to a people whose existence and aspirations are far removed from our present-day world.

Cortez, with a career to carve for himself, chose the only course open to ambitious young men of his day. Great personal charm and moderate ability contributed to his earlier successes. History corroborates the important part which Malinal, Cortez's Indian mistress and interpreter, played in his most memorable achievement, the conquest of Mexico and the Aztecs.

The book relates the early background of Cortez, his struggles for favor and power and his triumph of blood and steel. It gives a sturdy picture of the man and the epoch.

Gambling Man.

A novel, "DARK HAZARD," by W. R. Burnett: Harper, $2.50.

After his bitter authenticity in "Little Caesar," one is inclined to say "No dice!" to this gambling story, "Dark Hazard," by Mr. Burnett.

Something has softened him. It may have been fame. It may have been the easy money of the movies. Incidentally, "Dark Hazard" has already been sold to the movies as a vehicle for Edward G. Robinson.

No longer does Mr. Burnett kick his hero relentlessly down to Hades at the end of an ill-spent youth. No, sah! Jim Turner, gambler and general irresponsible, is left facing something that looks suspiciously like a sunrise.

The story is written with able craftsmanship, but somehow the plot does not convince the reader. One or two main incidents ring hollow. The best efforts of Mr. Burnett are not enough to put the breath of life in gambling Jim Turner.

Modern Portia Believes Jails "Too Pleasant"

Dorothy Frooks, of Peekskill, Would Put Petty Violators on Park Benches.

"The most effective way to eradicate crime in this country," Dorothy Frooks, prominent lawyer, declared today, "is to adopt the French system of identification, the carte d'indentite. Make it imperative for every officer of the law to know every person in his district. Force every person to register, giving important facts of his life, and have him carry his card of identification always. This will do away with the alibi racket that criminals now employ."

Miss Frooks, whose home is in Peekskill, N. Y., is in Washington attending the anticrime conference. In the course of the various sessions she is giving her ideas to other delegates on the most practical ways of ridding the country of social evils.

Proposes Shorter Terms.

"I believe in shorter prison terms and less coddling of prisoners. Some of our jails are as inviting as country clubs. No wonder people have little hesitancy in committing crime when their punishment is to be sent to such pleasant places. Why not turn over these comfortable jails to the unemployed young women who are sitting on park benches, too honorable to stoop to wrongdoing? Put the perpetrators of petty crimes on the park benches. In countless cases they committed those misdemeanors in order to get into a comfortable jail where they would be supported by the taxpayer's money!"

"Peace profiteers," those wealthy individuals who own fortunes in tax-exempt bonds, were also scored by the slim, young barrister.

"The owners of those bonds use their vast incomes to buy more tax-exempt ones. It's a vicious circle that is keeping 96 per cent of the people in poverty. When a man is hungry and without shelter he is likely to commit a crime. If for no other reason than that, we should do away with this privileged class."

Won War Medal.

Miss Frooks, in addition to the degrees of LL.B. and LL.M., has a medal which was given to her by the Patriotic Service League as a reward for recruiting 30,000 men to the Navy during the World War.

She was in school in Washington, at Miss Paul's, at the time this country entered the war. Because she liked public speaking, she went to New York and enlisted in the Navy. By the time she was 17 she was a chief yeoman, the highest position any woman can hold in the United States Navy.

At the close of the war she enrolled at New York University. After she had been graduated from there, she attended St. Lawrence University Law School, Hamilton Law School, in Chicago, and the University of Chicago.

After she had been admitted to the bar she was retained by the Salvation Army, the first woman lawyer to be employed by that organization.

"It was my work with the Salvation Army that aroused my interest in the eradication of crime."

Women's Guild Tea At University Today

President and Other Officers Will Receive.

Mrs. Delos Kinsman, president of the Women's Guild of American University, and her officers will greet the guests and members of that organization at a tea in the Women's Resident Hall on the campus today from 3 to 5 o'clock.

The officers who will be in the receiving line are Mrs. H. Wellen Fisher, Mrs. Frank Ballou, Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, Mrs. W. S. Dewhirst, Mrs. W. E. Springer and Mrs. Harry Oberholser.

Music will be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Randall and Mrs. Kinsman will welcome the guests. Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Edwin Holt Hughes, Miss Frances Battelle, Mrs. W. S. Corby, Mrs. Thomas Sidwell and Mrs. George B. Woods will preside at the tea tables in the reception room. The assistant hostesses are Mrs. Peter M. Anderson, Mrs. A. C. Fisher, Mrs. Lynn Edminster, Mrs. W. E. Emley, Mrs. Fred J. Kelly, Mrs. S. D. Shankland and Miss Ruberta M. Olds. Several young women who are attending American University will also assist. They are Cornelia Cochran, Marjorie Stuart, Hanna Anderson, Ruth Martin Simpson, Margaret Woods, Kathryn Brown, Harriett Parks, Catherine Church, Pauline Rariseau, Margaret Moses, Margaret Watrous, Frances Noble, Virginia Hall, Florence Evans, Emily Nickles, Louise Learned, Ann Henderson and Alice Compton.

Velvet Is Perfect Frock on Bridge Afternoons
$22.75
This is a year for velvet, and formality is merely a matter of finding the velvet frock that lends you the most glamour. For bridge afternoons, here's a frock to be remembered. As most velvets do, it comes rather high-shirred in front and ends in a brilliant clip. The sleeves do most of the decorating with amusing shoulder rolls and pleats tapering to snug wrists. Because of the very richness of velvet, the sash calls for fur tassels. In luxurious green, brown, black, for misses. And only $22.75.

Outdoor Meals Piquant; There's A Knack to 'Em

Broiled Porterhouse Favorite Dish for Open Air; a Few Suggestions.

By Ruth Chambers.

Cooking out of doors, over a campfire or outdoor fireplace, is fun enough to be classed as a popular outdoor sport. Food cooked in this way seems to have exquisite flavor it never attains indoors. Of course, the keen appetites which are brought to these repasts lend a piquant sauce all their own.

Even these stimulated appetites may be blunted when something goes wrong and the cooks—often amateurs—haven't known the best way of doing things.

Here are directions and recipes which take away the possibility of failure in these open air culinary endeavors.

A Favorite Meal.

A favorite meal for outdoors preparation is a broiled porterhouse steak, cut thick, with baked potatoes and other vegetables roasted at the same time.

Construct an outdoor fireplace with stones or bricks, or use freshly cut green logs, or dig a ditch deep enough for a fire. Let a large fire burn down until it is a mass of coals. Place a grate across the rocks or logs about three inches above the coals. Place steak on center of the rack and brown well on one side, turn and brown on other. For a steak 1½ inches thick, this will require about 40 minutes.

Wrap medium-sized potatoes in green leaves and bury them in the red hot embers. When potatoes can be easily pierced with a fork, they are done. Allow about 20 minutes for roasting. Remove from the embers, cut them open and put a pat of butter on each.

Corn, onions, sweet potatoes, carrots, turnips and apples may be roasted in the same way.

Lamb—Hunter Style.

Here is another delicious outdoor dish—lamb, hunter style:

2 pounds lamb, from leg
6 slices bacon
6 tomatoes, sliced
6 onions, sliced
Salt
Pepper

Have the lamb cut into 1-inch squares. Choose a strong, pointed green stick about ¼-inch thick or a heavy iron wire fork for a skewer. Thread a slice of bacon onto the stick, then alternate squares of lamb, tomato and onion. Last of all thread the other end of bacon over the stick. Broil over hot coals, never over blazing fire. When the outside is browned, hold farther from the coals so that it will cook more slowly. Serve with graham rolls.

There are many savory mixtures which may be cooked in a frying pan over an open fire. For instance ground beef and bacon.

Ground Beef and Bacon.

2 pounds ground beef
12 slices bacon
1 onion, diced
Salt and pepper

Mix ground meat with onion and pat into small flat cakes. Wrap with bacon, season and place in frying pan on grate of outdoor fireplace. Turn when thoroughly browned on one side. When both sides are browned, the meat will be done. Serve with chili sauce.

Mexican Sandwiches.

Then there are Mexican camp sandwiches which are hearty enough and piquant enough to satisfy the hungriest comer to your camp fire.

1 pound bacon
1 pound shredded dried beef
1 cup grated cheese
¼ cup chili sauce

Place bacon in cold frying pan and cook slowly until crisp. Remove from pan and drain on brown paper. Remove half of fat from pan. Crisp dried beef in remaining fat. Add chili sauce and blend. Add grated cheese and stir until melted. Spread on buttered buns, top with a slice of bacon and serve while hot.

A fitting dessert to go with these outdoor meals is found in marshmallows, toasted over the fire.

Romper Is a Handy Garment for Baby

At Creeping Time Youngsters Need Roomy Clothes.

A romper takes the place of a dress for the baby past six months of age. Infant dresses are suitable only so long as the baby's chief occupation is sleeping.

When he begins to express his energy through attempts to move about, he needs a garment suitable to the occasion.

Rompers may be worn over shirt and diaper. The bulkiness of these garments and baby's peculiar ways of sitting and moving about demand rompers that are roomy, especially in the lower back. To provide this extra room without making the front too long, two pleats, each one-half inch wide, may be laid in the back section at the side seams, exactly in line with the hips. Then, whether baby sits in his doubled-up fashion, crawls or falls around, his movements will be unhampered.

To prevent the romper slipping down over the knees as he creeps, the leg opening should be curved high in front and slightly squared at the inside of the knee.

Family Goes to Sea For Little Get-Together

Oak Park, Ill. (AP).—There's nothing like the intimacy aboard an ocean liner for a family reunion, says Mrs. Frank C. Caldwell.

So she has made reservations to take 17 members of her family on a voyage from New York to California by way of the Panama Canal. She says they'll sail December 8.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. John J. O'Connor Led Move for Chest; Served Red Cross Abroad.

Harris & Ewing.
MRS. JOHN J. O'CONNOR.

Specializing in welfare work, both in her college days and through special courses since, Mrs. John Jay O'Connor brought her interest to Washington, where, as president of the Council of Social Agencies, she was one of the first to perceive the advantages of a Community Chest for Washington and was largely instrumental in bringing the Chest here.

With the advent of the Chest her interest continued, and she is a past vice president of the Chest, member of the executive committee and a trustee and has served as chairman of the dependency committee of the budget committee. She also was chairman of the Washington Women's Committee on Mobilization for Relief and Welfare in 1932.

A vice chairman of the Women's Crusade, Mrs. O'Connor also is a member of the boards of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, Travelers' Aid Society, Washington Child Guidance Clinic, Neighborhood House, application bureau, Y. W. C. A., and the industrial workers' committee. She is a member of the national and local Consumers' Leagues, Women's Joint Congressional Committee and the Red Cross, serving with the latter as assistant volunteer director of relief and service in Chicago during the war. She also has represented the Red Cross in Rome and in South Amercia.

As chairman of the committee on transients and chairman of the committee on volunteers, of the Council of Social Agencies, Mrs. O'Connor has done much to bring about progress in the handling of both these services. She is interested especially in women volunteers for welfare service.

"Washington needs, as never before, volunteers to help during the coming winter," she says. "The success of welfare agencies depends upon active, well-informed board members. The welfare of our community rests, in a large measure, upon volunteers, trained and experienced, who will undertake responsible services."

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 12:20 to 1:20 p. m., from 5 to 6:15 p. m. and from 8:20 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 to 10:30 a. m. and from 2:15 to 3:45 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will quite possibly make you feel in an exuberant mood. You will feel "on top of the world" and see yourself as "cock of the walk." Take care not to hold your head so high nor to throw out your chest so far that you will fail to see the hurdles as they come along. Pitfalls aplenty will be in your path, and alertness and true humility will be needed to avoid them all.

The child born on this October 13 will not always put the best foot forward although he will always try to. He will probably be awkward and ill at ease in the presence of his elders; strangers will upset him, and in some cases even bring on stage-fright. Do not bark at this little one; speak gently and understandingly to him.

If October 13 is the date of your birth, you like to see justice done; you are quick to detect deceit and equally quick to denounce it openly. You like to have your own way as long as it causes no inconvenience to others. You do not stand for interference from anyone, be they family or friend. You are very outspoken; there is no doubt in your mind as to what is right and what is wrong, and when others fail to live up to what is right, you do not hesitate to kindly but firmly call their attention to it. You do this not in any sense to condemn, but to put them aright. You do not interfere with others, nor pry into their business. You make a good many temporary enemies but these people in time come to see how correct you are in your judgments and are often inclined to come and thank you for having pointed out the error.

Born on October 13, you like to have a lot of time to yourself. You welcome the opportunity to help another in need at any time and your assistance is most generally spiritual in nature rather than material. You do give freely of your money, however, though not directly nor openly. You are inclined to hold yourself aloof and you have great poise. Many, before they get to know you, misunderstand these qualities or characteristics and either hold you in great awe or fear you. You are not the type of person who will have great popular appeal, but you will bring lasting benefits to many people with whom you come in contact.

Successful people born on October 13:

The Family Marketer

Carrots, Tomatoes, Grapefruit Down; Peas Go Up; Rutabagas Here.

Two of the most popular sellers recently have taken to see-sawing in price. Peas, which we can always count on to add an inviting touch of greenness to a plate have resigned their two-pounds-for-a-quarter position and mounted to two pounds for 29 cents.

We wouldn't view their present rise with such alarm if we did not fear it means the beginning of a sure and steady upward trend such as our friends the lima beans enjoyed the last of their season.

However, there's some compensation in carrots. They've dropped from 19 cents for two bunches to 15 cents. And we're glad to say they're looking bigger and better as the season advances.

Tomatoes Down.

Hothouse tomatoes offer a pleasant surprise today. Instead of their usual 20 cents a pound, they're down to 15 cents in some of the chain stores. When the midwinter season comes along and we're paying 40 and 50 cents a pound for them, it will be nice to look back on their present amiable price.

Brussels sprouts perhaps are one of the steadiest vegetables on the market. They started in at 15 cents a pint some time ago and have maintained the same level. It's a pleasure to find one thing which seems to be unaffected by the ups and downs of market values.

For a long time it has looked like we could depend fairly well on mushrooms to continue a steady decline, but today we notice they've jumped from 29 cents to 33 cents. Even at that, however, they aren't the luxuries they were for a while at 60 cents.

Florida oranges are just beginning to seep in. They are far from their best, but even at that we may say safely that they are sure to pull down the prices on California oranges. In two or three weeks we will see them on the market in great abundance, for extremely reasonable prices.

Cranberries Cheaper.

Florida grapefruit is cheaper today than it usually is. However, three for 19 cents is more than we'll be paying for them a short time from now.

Cranberries, which have been selling 2 pounds for 29 cents, are down to 25 cents today. Just to look at them conjures up visions of roast duckling and great brown turkeys. What fowl dinner would be complete without cranberry sauce?

Probably the newest thing on the market today are the rutabagas. They may not be general favorites, but, at least, they're simple to prepare.

You wash them, pare them and cut them in slices. Cook uncovered in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain, mash in the saucepan, season with salt and pepper, add butter, reheat. Time of cooking, 30 to 45 minutes.

Women Today 3 Inches Taller Than Back in '93

Less Worrying, Proper Diet Cause Growth, Medical Man Declares.

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—The average woman of today is three inches taller than the average back in 1893, dietitians, meeting in conjunction with the American College of Surgeons, were told by Dr. Charles F. Read, of Elgin, Ill.

Speaking yesterday, Dr. Read, who is superintendent of the Elgin State Hospital, said he attributed the growth in women to a better knowledge of balanced diets and a subsequent lessening of nervous ailments. Balanced diets, he said, act to prevent nervous disorders.

It is bad business, the surgeons were informed by Dr. Alfred W. Adson, of the Mayo Foundation of Rochester, Minn., to correct children at meal time, because it destroys their digestion and reacts upon their nervous systems. It has a like effect upon the parents.

"Fear," the doctor said, "is the chief cause of all nervous troubles and it must be avoided. Take your time about everything, eat plenty of good food, get the proper amount of sleep, have a bit of recreation each day and you won't be bothered with nerves."

The "worrying doctor" found support among the surgeons. Dr. J. Bentley Squier, of New York, retiring president of the college, said:

"The day when the doctor loses the human touch and his patients become just so many numbers to him in a hospital, is the day when medical science will begin to lose ground."

"Child birth," said Dr. C. Jeff Miller, of New Orleans, "is no longer a natural process, and should be supervised by a physician as closely as a serious disease."

A Brilliant False-Card.

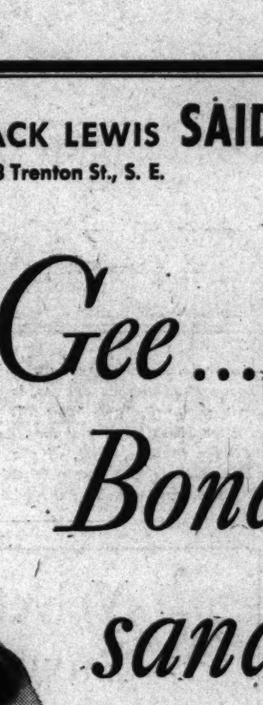
In yesterday's article I discussed a hand submitted to me by Mr. Carl S. Uhrig, of Pittsfield, Mass., the topic of which was the wisdom of Declarer's concealing his strength in order to compel the defending players to continue leading a suit which could do him no harm and much good, by presenting him with control of the situation. I am indebted to the same gentleman for another hand in which the Declarer, by a very brilliant false-card, was enabled to make a contract which, to say the least, was very ambitious on the meager holdings of the two hands.

The hand was:
South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



Th bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1♣ | Dbl. | Pass | 1◇ |
| 2♣ | 2◇ | 2♡ | Pass |
| 2NT | Pass | 3♣ | Pass |
| 3NT | Dbl. | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

West's Opening lead was the diamond 5, on which East played the nine, and which South won with the King. This was the key play of the hand, which was designd to encourage anothr lead of diamonds before the Ace of Spades was removed from the closed hand. The Declarer now led a small heart as West, on his Penalty Double, was marked with the Ace. West could see no advantage in refusing to win the trick, and at once returned a small diamond, positive that East held the Knave; otherwise why should South refuse to win the trick as cheaply as he could? South then ran off five club tricks, the King of hearts and the Ace of spades for the game. By into error as to the diamond situation, a decidedly sketchy contract had been fulfilled.

As, Mr. Uhrig well pointed out, opportunities for similar close plays appear under many other guises. By making one suit appear much weaker than it is, you keep the enemy hammering away at an almost impregnable fortress, and by the time they discover their error they have lost one of the most important assets in notrump play—namely, the factor of time.

Tomorrow's Hand.

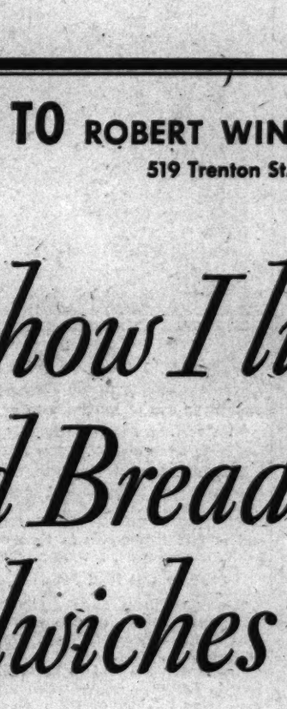
When West opens the spade Queen against a contract of three notrump, in what manner should South plan to develop the hand?



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Woman's Stomach Yields 48 Spoons, 2 Bolts, Needle, Pencil and Glass.

New York (AP).—An operation on a woman patient at the Central Islip State Hospital gave evidence she had been going in for a strange diet. Dr. E. R. Hildreth reported he took the following from the woman's stomach: Forty-eight teaspoons, two bolts, a needle, a pencil, a large screw and a sizable piece of glass.

The teaspoons came from the hospital dining room, while the other articles apparently were picked up around the grounds. The physician said the woman had sufffered no ill effects from her strange diet.

Angry Kellys Seek Loophole In Life Term

Wife Threatens Escape if Mother Goes to Different Prison.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 12 (AP).—Prison "for the rest of your lives" was the Government's sentence today to George and Kathryn Kelly, last of the Urschel kidnaper principals to be branded guilty.

Convicted after a three-day trial, the machine gun hoodlum and his modish 30-year-old wife with surly mien heard Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught pronounce the maximum sentences under the "Lindbergh law."

A share of the $15,000 reward for their capture probably will go to 12-year-old Geraldine Arnold and her father.

The girl directed officers to the Kellys' Memphis hiding place after they used her as a "shield" in their flight.

Six of nine persons convicted in the two Urschel trials now are under life sentences and two of them—Harvey Bailey and Albert Bates—already are in Leavenworth Prison.

"My Pekingese dog would have got a life sentence in that court," muttered Kathryn.

"I'll go stark, raving crazy if they separate me from mother," she added. "If they send us to the same place I'll be good.

"They know I've got plenty of friends who will come and get me if I say the word, but if I'm with mother I won't want to escape."

Authorities have indicated they might be sent to separate prisons.

The jury took one ballot last night and sealed its verdict. It filed into the jammed courtroom at 9:35 this morning.

Judge Vaught overruled new trial motions and ordered:

"The defendants will stand up."

"Do either of you have anything to say before I pronounce sentence?" he asked.

"No," Kathryn replied. Kelly shook his head.

"The jury has found you guilty and the court concurs in their verdict. It is the judgment and sentence of this court that you and each of you be taken to the Federal penitentiary, there to remain for the rest of your lives."

As she sat down, Kathryn tried to smile. It was more of a grimace.

But as she descended the steps to the patrol car waiting to take her back to her cell, she grinned.

The Kellys will appeal. Kathryn said she was confident the new kidnaping law would be held unconstitutional.

About her 15-year-old daughter, Pauline Frye, to whom she deeded a house, jewelry and automobiles worth thousands of dollars, Kathryn was not concerned.

"I'll worry about her, of course," she said. "But she'll be all right."

District Attorney Hyde said the Nation "owes a debt to the Urschel family for its courageous stand for law and order," and added:

"The Government will bend every effort to secure the remainder of the ransom money. Aproximately $125,800 still is hidden or in the hands of a fence."

Mine Truce Cuts Nation's Labor Discord

Coal Fields Expect Peace; 7,000 Strike on Coast; Indiana Troops Out.

(Associated Press.)

Promise of an accord between workers and their employers in western Pennsylvania coal mines operated my steel companies cast a note of optimism last night in strikes that disrupted as widely varying industries as cotton picking and tool making.

The steel manufacturers at last announced workers in their coal mines would be placed under the "check-off" system demanded by the union.

The number of strikers in California passed 25,000 as 7,000 Los Angeles garment workers walked out charging they were paid as little as $5 weekly. They declared employers had signed the President's agreement calling for $15 a week.

Military Rule in Indiana.

Military rule was established in Sullivan County, Ind., following explosions north of the town of Sullivan. A 10 p. m. curfew was ordered, and assemblages, loitering and carrying weapons were forbidden.

Illinois coal miners spent the day celebrating the thirty-fifth anniversary of Virden day, when 14 men were shot and killed while striking for the eight-hour day.

Detroit Strikers Parade.

A strike in the National Steel Co.'s plants at Weirton and Clarksburg, W. Va., and Steubenville, Ohio, continued when company officials rejected the National Labor Board's proposal that both sides call off the strike. At Weirton, a company official said the strike was over.

More than 4,000 striking tool and diemakers paraded through downtown Detroit. About 1,000 employes of eight silk and rayon mills in Pawtucket and Central Falls, R. I., walked out. Police and 150 silk strikers clashed at Childs, Pa., and 4 young women were arrested at Bayonne, N. J.

Al Smith Honored By New York U.

Honorary Degree Doctor of Laws Conferred.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—The University of the State of New York tonight conferred upon Alfred E. Smith the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Smith's new honors—he has received degrees from five other universities or colleges—came to him in Chancellor's Hall, across the street from the State capitol, where he served New York four times as governor.

He was presented for the degree as a student of Government who had become "a leader of thought in America."

Mob in Louisiana Lynches Prisoner

Suspect in Girl's Death Taken From Jail.

Labadieville, La., Oct. 12 (AP).—A Negro, arrested yesterday for questioning in connection with the slaying of Miss Louisiana Larose, 15-year-old white girl whose body was found in a field, was taken from the jail here today and lynched.

The Negro was seized quietly by the mob and hanged from a girder of a bridge.

When officers cut the body down they found a note pinned to the clothing warning "all persons" against attacks on women.

Maryland Girl Injured By Tumble From Auto

Injured when she jumped or fell from an automobile on the Marlboro pike near Forestville, Md., early yesterday, Marjorie Miller, 23, Clinton, Md., was treated at Sibley Hospital for a possible fractured ankle and head injuries.

Roving Reporter of Post Told Some Things by Black Cat.

By Harold Stone
(Washington Post Roving Reporter).

"Roving reporter, eh? Heh, heh! How's to let somebody tell you about rovin' what really knows their rovin'?"

Imagine my surprise when, as I slipped through the alley late last night enroute to The Post editorial room with copy then well over dead-line, to be accosted by such a statement. To make matters worse there wasn't a human being in sight. Just a black alley cat—but cats don't hold derisive conversation with reporters even in the alleys of Washington.

But who's afraid of a big, black cat?

"All right cat, suppose you get me told!"

Crashes In—and How?

"Listen, big boy, I've been in some of the best places in this town," the voice said again. Unmistakably it was from the cat.

"Of course, I don't make any display about it. I sort of slip up on folks unawares, but, like One-Eye Connolly, I crash in—and how! You think you've had a tough round—did you ever try to get a handout from a Chinese restaurant? Boy, its enough to make your huge frame shiver.

"Friday the thirteenth. Everybody I see will be throwin' something at me. Well, there's one feller I'm going to do a dirty trick tomorrow—that's that cop that marks the tires and sticks the tags on these cars back here. He's always throwin' things at me. But I'll get him—I'll run a couple of circles around him tomorrow so he can't walk either way without crossing my path—and is he superstitious!

Tight Places—Listen!

"Another thing, you think you've been in tight places. Were you ever on top of some floating scenery when the stage hands decided to set it for the next act? Unless you were a black cat like me you don't know the consternation and commotion you can cause. I didn't even want to go on the stage—I was waitin' for a mouse I saw up there."

"Cat, where'd you come from and what's your name?" I asked.

"Listen, big boy, did I ask you any personal questions? I know you reporters—anything for a story with a thrill. Can I help it because there seems to be a little uncertainty about my family tree? Suppose it is a little dark—this past of mine, should I tell you the scandal and have you put it in the paper? Not on your life.

"Well, so long—I got business ahead. Tomorrow's Friday the thirteenth. And every cat has his day just like the dogs."

Judge Joins Mencken Plea For Hangings

Baltimore, Oct. 12 (AP).—The declaration by H. L. Mencken that all habitual criminals should be hung today drew support here from Judge Eugene O'Dunne, of the Supreme Bench.

"I am 95 per cent with Mencken for the hanging of habitual criminals," Judge O'Dunne said.

Meeting Today Set to Oppose Alley Houses

Campaign Spurred by End of Civic Planners' Convention.

A field tour of building and planning projects in the Capital yesterday closed the joint convention of the American Civic Association and National Conference on City Planning.

Speakers at the morning meeting in the Interior Building included Robert Fechner, director of emergency conservation work; John D. Coffman, of the National Parks office; Robert Y. Stuart, forestry chief in the Department of Agriculture; and Wilbur H. Simonson, Government landscape architect.

The 150 delegates, who transferred the joint convention from Baltimore to Washington on Wednesday, following the morning session attended an exhibit of plans and maps for emergency construction projects. A luncheon at the Cosmos Club preceded the field tour.

The drive against alley dwellings and insanitary housing here, spurred by Robert D. Kohn's address Wednesday night to the delegates, will move forward today when a group of prominent citizens is expected to be chosen to aid in the Federal campaign.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will attend the meeting, called by Frederick A. Delano, president of the American Civic Association and chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and may be named to the committee.

Mr. Kohn, housing director in the Public Works Administration, is planning two "demonstrations" in Washington to serve as a model for the entire country. One is the rehabilitation of a white section, the other is the creation of an ideal residential area for Negroes.

Coat Industry Initiates NRA

Mrs. Roosevelt Attaches First Label in Shop Ceremony.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt became the Nation's first "coat consumer" under the Blue Eagle of national recovery today.

Slipping a thimble on her finger and threading her needle with housewifely skill, the wife of the President stitched the first NRA label to a coat of black worsted, with a collar of silver fox fur, cut to resemble the Blue Eagle emblem, presented her by representatives of the coat and suit code authority.

A similar coat was presented her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall. The ceremony was staged in a manufacturers show room in New York's cloak and suit district.

"I hope," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "that women, in shopping for clothes, will consider before making their purchase whether the garment has been produced under fair labor conditions."

Mrs. Dall's coat was the same, save that the silver fox collar was of standard cut.

George W. Alger, director of the coat and suit code authority of the NRA, presented the coats in the presence of manufacturers' representatives and union officials.

Chicago Milkmen Threaten Strike

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—The Pure Milk Association today threatened to halt deliveries of milk to the Chicago market unless the Federal Farm Credit Administration acts to enforce terms of the milk agreement signed by producers and dealers.

The announcement came after a meeting of 300 delegates of the 18,000 dairy farmers in Wisconsin, Indiana and Illinois, who are members of the organization.

3 Bandits Rob Grocer Of Money and Truck

Joseph Shankman, 400 Kennedy street northwest, was robbed of $161 by three colored men early yesterday as he drove through Soldiers Home grounds.

Shankman, a grocer, said the men drove up beside his truck and ordered him to stop. One of the men took the money from his pockets while the other two held him, police said. His truck, which the holdup men took with them, was found.

Honor Paid Two Employes, 50 Years in Trolley Service

Associates Present Purses to Benjamin Solari, Jacob Watson.

Veterans of 50 years on Washington street cars—horse, cable and electric—Jacob Watson and Benjamin Solari were honored last night by fellow workers and officers of the Capital Traction Co.

President John H. Hanna, himself an employe and officer of the company since its organization in 1895, was in charge of the ceremonies and presented the men with purses of $50 each and with letters praising their long and faithful services.

Both men were employes of the Washington & Georgetown Railroad Co., predecessor of the Capital Traction Co. Watson started in the stables when he was 16, and Solari, a native of Italy, started working on the horse cars when he was 23.

Both men can recall every flood, snow and severe freeze that marked some of the years gone by when weather was weather and horse-car men had to breast the frigid breezes.

Watson is now a motorman attached to the Navy Yard division, and Solari is a motorman of the Fourteenth street division.

$300,000 Suit Against Bank Goes to Trial

Mrs. Louise T. Chambers, Plaintiff, Traces Stock Deals.

Before Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue and a jury in District Supreme Court, trial of a $300,000 suit brought by Mrs. Louise T. Chambers against Riggs National Bank was begun yesterday.

The suit is based on transactions that occurred when the Farmers & Mechanics Bank, of Georgetown, was an independent institution. It since has been taken over by Riggs, sued as the successor.

Mrs. Chambers charges manipulation of her account by Harry V. Haynes, former president, who served a term in Lorton Reformatory for embezzling funds of the bank. Eighteen men, directors and officers of the old Farmers & Mechanics Bank, are also defendants.

First testimony was given by Mrs. Chambers, who traced several stock transactions which, she said, she had made on advice of Haynes. The trial is expected to last several days.

Loss of $166,000 in stock and several thousand dollars in cash was claimed by Mrs. Chambers. Accrued interest and dividends increased the total.

Relief Saves 1 American in 8

Hopkins Pledges Support Through Winter for 15,100,000 on Rolls.

(Associated Press.)

Harry L. Hopkins estimates 12 per cent of the population, or roughly one American in eight, are on relief rolls.

In exact figures, the Federal Relief Administration puts the total at 15,100,000, on State, county, local and private rolls.

"Let no one think that we are not going to have a great many people depending on relief for their existence this winter," Hopkins said.

"The needy unemployed are going to be taken care of. The Federal Government is not going to countenance relief on a standard so low that needy unemployed are only a calory or two ahead of the grim reaper."

Glass Beer Fraud Defendant Guilty

Ordered 26 Cases, Keg for Senator's "Party."

Theft of 26 cases and 1 keg of beer last summer resulted yesterday in Jack Watkins, colored, being convicted of grand larceny in District Supreme Court yesterday.

According to Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica, Watkins went to the beer establishment operated by Nelson Carver, 479 L street northwest, told him that Senator Carter Glass was "throwing a party," and wanted the beer.

Later two men claimed the beer and gave a $96 check, purportedly signed by Senator Glass.

Senator Glass had no knoweldge of the transaction.

Contractor Guilty In Breaking Jaw

Appeal Delays Sentence in Assault Case.

Rufus E. Milor, Washington contractor, was found guilty of assault on a Department of Justice chauffeur by a Police Court jury yesterday.

The jury recommended extreme mercy. Judge Isaac R. Hitt reserved sentence pending motion for appeal by Milor's attorney.

Milor was convicted of breaking the jaw of William Jeter, 40, colored, of 1528 Q street northwest, while Jeter is alleged to have sworn before Milor's wife in an argument with another colored man in a Fourteenth street garage.

Franklin Bank Opening Waits On Two Plans

Proposal of Comptroller Meets Disapproval of Depositors.

The Franklin National Bank stood between two plans for reopening last night—one reported approved by the Comptroller of the Currency and another backed by depositors and officers of the closed institution.

Announcement by the comptroller that he had approved a reorganization plan for the bank drew the assertion from Thomas P. Hickman, conservator, that this plan is in conflict with one approved by the depositors.

The conservator, however, sees no reason for alarm in the announcement that a reorganization plan has been approved by the comptroller since he has been summoned for a conference today with other representatives of the bank.

"I believe the Treasury Department is ready to approve opening of the bank on the plan we have submitted," Mr. Hickman said last night.

The plan offered by the Treasury Department calls for reorganization of another bank. This, Mr. Hickman points out, would be against the wishes of the depositors.

More than 75 per cent of the depositors have agreed to investing 30 per cent of their deposits in participating certificates, and an additional 10 per cent in nonassessable preferred stock, without liability.

This stock will receive regular dividends and be retired from earnings of the bank. This is the foundation of the plan referred to by Mr. Hickman.

Police to Direct Relief Parade

Detail Picked to Handle Today's Demonstration by 2,000 Idle.

A special detail of police today will handle the demonstration and parade by the Washington Unemployed Council, in which 2,000 men and women are expected to march to the District Emergency Relief headquarters, John Marshall place and C street, to demand "more relief and the right to live."

Leroy A. Halbert, director of unemployed relief, said he would receive five representatives of the marchers and allow them 15 minutes to present their program.

Forming in two section—one at Twenty-fifth and I streets and the other at Eighth street and Rhode Island avenue—the parade will unite and march over a route designated by the Police Department.

Democrat Club Told Of U. S. Crime Fight

Workings of the Department of Justice in its apprehension of racketeers and kidnapers were described last night by William H. Stanley, an Assistant Attorney General, before the Young Democrats' Club of Prince Georges County, Md.

The meeting, held in the county police court building, Laurel, Md., was also addressed by J. Enos Ray, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Maryland district.

Wine-Making In California Reaches Peak

State Expected to Yield 30,000,000 Gallons as 1933 Vintage.

San Francisco, Oct. 12 (AP).—With the highways of the producing districts cluttered with grape-laden trucks bearing the 1933 crop to the wineries, the crushing season has reached its peak in California with prospects of a 30,000,000 gallon vintage.

Revised estimates of the Wine Producers Association may show a few million gallons below this latest calculation, but in any event the State will face the repeal of prohibition with in excess of 50,000,000 gallons in storage or process of fermentation.

The 170-odd bonded wineries have on hand approximately 12,700,000 gallons of dry wine (14 per cent and under) and 10,250,000 sweet or fortified wines with an alcoholic content of 14 to 24 per cent by weight. This is in addition to about 55,000 gallons of champagne.

Wine-Making Active.

Feverish activity in the State's wine-making industry, spurred by the practical certainty that legal sale of the products of the vine is near, has brought about investments of large sums in plants, warehouses and wine making machinery. Three of the larger plants, the Asti, Guasti and Roma, have been enlarged to a storage capacity of approximately 3,000,000 gallons each, and old wineries are being reopened with some new ones being established.

As a result of the rush to stock up in contemplation of repeal and the perpendicular drop in fresh grape orders from the big consuming areas of the East, such as the New York-New Jersey market, railroad revenues for the transportation of wine grapes have decreased to approximately 50 per cent of last year. A somewhat smaller crop yield is a contributing factor.

The lessened demand from the East is attributed in wine-making circles here to the reluctance of illicit wine makers to make wine in view of the uncertainty of disposing of their product in competition with legalized, winery-made brands.

Claret to Lead.

If the wine in process goes into the same blends as normally, claret will be the ranking product. Of the wines in storage, it leads by a considerable margin, there being approximately 5,220,000 gallons of aged vintages on hand. Sherry comes next, with 3,899,000 gallons, followed by 3,294,000 gallons of Riesling, 3,727,000 gallons of port and a million and a half to a million gallons each of Angelica, Muscatel and Zinfandel. Angelica and Zinfandel are peculiar to California, having originated in this State.

Shortage of cooperage accounts, chiefly for the present limitations as to quantity by E. M. Sheehan, director of the Wine-Producers Association States, California will be prepared to market a quantity this year which would fill the demands of a normal year prior to prohibition. The State in past years had produced about 94 per cent of the total amount made in the United States.

American winegrowers, he states, "are confidently relying up sufficient tariff protection to assure that the domestic product can be sold at prices to both producers and consumers."

I. H. Fill Is Named President of Dairy

Bristol, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—I. H. Fill, of Richmond, Va., is the new president and general manager of the Southern Maid Dairy Products Co., succeeding E. G. Otey.

Mr. Fill will have general supervision over the company's plants in Bristol, Bluefield, Appalachia, Johnson City, Kingsport, Welch and Williamson.

The Southern Maid Dairy Products Corporation succeeded the old Southern Refrigeration Co., Southern Ice Cream Co. and the Holston Creamery Co. E. G. Otey will retain chairmanship of the company's executive committee.

Mr. Otey found it necessary to resign from the presidency and general managership of the company upon his appointment as vice president of the First National Bank, Bluefield, W. Va. As an officer of that bank he is at present in charge of liquidating the Bank of Bramwell, Bramwell, W. Va.

Mr. Fill was formerly general manager of the Chapin-Sacks Corporation and later divisional manager of Southern Dairies, Inc., in Richmond, Va. He held these positions successively for the last 23 years.

He will maintain headquarters in Bluefield, W. Va., temporarily, but has not decided definitely whether he will reside permanently in Bluefield, Bristol or Johnson City, Tenn.

Bank of England.

London, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 1,280,000; circulation decreased 1,288,000; bullion decreased 8,000; other securities increased 537,000; public deposits increased 1,165,000; other deposits increased 614,000; notes reserve increased 1,289,000; government securities decreased 24,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 47.73 per cent, compared with 47.46 last week.

The Demand for Short Hours

Green in Error in Basing It on Our Productive Capacity

By Ralph West Robey.

Any one at all familiar with the problems which still confront us in our drive for prosperity can only regret the insistence of the American Federation of Labor for a 30-hour week. President Green, in leading the annual A. F. of L. convention to adopt a resolution setting this as the immediate goal to be attained, has not performed a service for labor. On the contrary, he has hurt rather than helped its cause. Such demands, in so far as they have any effect, merely add confusion to the general outlook and put another obstacle in the path of speedy recovery.

This point of view about the demand is not the result, it should be emphasized, of a lack of sympathy with the attempt of labor to improve its position. Quite the contrary, in fact, for I think labor has a legitimate basis for complaint in the way it has been treated in this, as well as earlier, depressions. Further, I recognize that the improvement in the condition of labor today, as compared with the past, largely has been gained against strong opposition. Always, there is a large number of people that believe almost any betterment in labor's well being will create havoc in the economic organization. The problem of the 30-hour week, however, is not one of just overcoming the opposition of such individuals. Rather, it is a question of the standard of living which can be supported by our economic organization.

Mr. Green Goes Astray on Production Capacity.

It is in connection with this point that the reasoning of Mr. Green goes astray. It is his view, as explained to the A. F. of L. delegates in his discussion of the 30-hour week, that a reduction of the hours of labor to this point is necessary because of our great productive capacity. According to him we have developed a "capacity so voluminous, so wonderful, . . . the needs of society can be easily supplied by the machinery and workers of the nation on a shorter work week and day basis." To him it is a choice between the six-hour-a-day and five-day week, on the one hand, and a "standing army of unemployed" on the other hand.

To those who have devoted little if any thought to the problems of economics this line of reasoning probably carries conviction. On every side they see evidence of an ability to produce which today is being unused. They know, too, that this unused productive capacity is present in the case of almost every article entering our lives either directly, as in the things we consume, or indirectly, as in the heavy industries. Further, they realize that people can not buy things and thereby start such factories and absorb existing surpluses, unless they have work. It appears logical, therefore, to conclude that if the hours of labor were reduced and our 10 or 12 million unemployed were put back to work, in consequence, our problem would be solved.

Fundamental Fallacy Involved In This Simple Conclusion.

Actually, of course, this conclusion is based upon a fundamental fallacy. What it says in effect—and what Mr. Green puts so positively in the quotation given above—is that as the productive capacity of a country increases, the hours of labor should be reduced. If this is true, then it must follow that if we were to double our present productive capacity, and for the moment assuming the 30-hour week proper now, we should reduce hours of labor to 15 a week. Again, that if this capacity in turn were doubled, hours should be cut to seven and one-half a week, &c.

Obviously there is something wrong with this line of reasoning. Otherwise it would be simple for us to reduce the hours of labor to a purely nominal number. All we would have to do would be to have the Government float a bond issue and duplicate every factory and producing unit in the country.

The error is that productive capacity is being confused with productive efficiency — that the size and number of factories are being confused with how much it costs in terms of human energy and wear and tear on capital to turn out the products. It is such efficiency, or labor and capital cost, that is the controlling factor in hours and wages of labor. Productive capacity alone makes for neither high wages nor short hours. As a matter of fact it is not even related to them except through efficiency.

Wheat Prices Are Unchanged At Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Oct. 12 (AP).—Cables from abroad failed to indicate any pickup in foreign demand for Canadian wheat, and trading consequently lagged on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. At the end of the first hour prices ruled unchanged from the previous close.

October option was quoted at 60. After fluctuating over a ¼ cent range, November traded at 60¼, December at 59¾ and May at 64¾ cents. The more distant futures moved within range of ⅛ cent.

Aside from a 2-minute flurry at the opening, only scattered trades were executed. Export sales were negligible and hedging pressure was only moderate.

Reflecting easiness in North American markets yesterday, Liverpool quotations were ⅝ to ⅞d lower near the close.

A little scattered selling and lack of interest combined to send coarse grain values fractionally lower, but trading in the department also was dull.

Liverpool, Oct. 12 (AP).—Wheat futures closed easy.

German Tobacco Production Gains

German tobacco production during the 12-month period ended June 30 was nearly 12,000,000 pounds, or 22 per cent above the figure for the preceding tobacco year, according to Consul W. A. Leonard, Bremen, in a report made public by the Commerce Department.

The 1932-33 tobacco crop, the report shows, atmounted to 62,097,000 pounds, as compared with 51,009,000 during the 1931-32 season. The value of the new crop is estimated at 32,678,000 marks, compared with 32,298,000 marks in 1931-32, an increase of nearly 50 per cent.

Increased output of tobacco in Germany, the report states, was partly due to the German authorities alloting a larger area for cultivation of tobacco during the 1932-33 season, but principally to a larger yield per acre. The area under tobacco during the past season totaled 26,967 acres, an increase of 4 per cent over the figure for the preceding period. The yield per acre during the 1932-33 season is reported to have been 2,323 pounds per acre, as compared with 2,038 pounds in the preceding period.

Building Permits Valued At $32,558 in Virginia

Danville, Va., Oct. 12.—Building here is on the increase. The city engineer reports the total value of building permits issued during the past month was $32,558, the largest amount for several months.

Fewer Forest Fires Reported.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 12 (U.P.). Fewer forest fires were reported in Pennsylvania this year than at any time for a great many years, according to a report of the Department of Forest and Waters. In the first eight months of the year, there were 1,464 forest fires reported as burning 23,865 acres. In the State forests, there were but 56 conflagrations burning over 1,793 acres.

Germany May Import Walnuts From America

That a part of the American walnut crop may find an outlet in the German market is revealed in a report from Consul Lester L. Schnare, Hamburg, made public by the Commerce Department.

Germany, the report points out, is said to be the largest importer of walnuts in Europe, average annual receipts amounting to about 12,000 tons. At present, approximately 85 per cent of these imports come from Roumania, France, Yugoslavia, Italy and Bulgaria.

British Retail Sales Improve During August

A noteworthy phase of Great Britain's progressive economic improvement is the increased retail sales turnover, according to advices to the Commerce Department from Assistant Commercial Attache C. E. Lyon, London.

During the month of August, British retail sales exceeded those of the corresponding month of the preceding year for the first time since January, 1931, it is pointed out.

Reports from leading retail stores in five sections of England, Wales and Scotland show a higher volume of sales in August, 1932, than in the corresponding period of last year. For Great Britain as a whole the volume of retail sales was 2.9 per cent higher.

The main conclusion to be drawn from this development in the retail field, according to the report, is that the rise out of the depression trough, beginning in April and May of this year, had by August acquired such momentum that the usual summer slack was avoided.

There is nothing resembling a boom or buyer's rush in the new situation, Lyon states. August of last year was deep in the depression and recorded a total turnover that was so far below the normal for August that it was not hard to exceed the figures in 1933. Nevertheless, it is signficant that 31 months preceding August of this year had reported sales that were lower than their corresponding months a year earlier. This long sag, it would appear, has now come to an end.

Virginia Collects $78,669 Beer Tax

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12 (AP).—Virginia State revenues from 3.2 beer during the first month of its legislation in the Old Dominion totaled $78,669. These figures were announced today by State Tax Commissioner C. H. Morrisett, who said they were far in excess of "first guesses."

The excise tax of one cent a bottle and $2.75 per 31 gallon keg brought into the State coffers $48,784 during the month of September. The State license taxes for the period between September and January 1 totaled $29,885.

In addition to these taxes which were collected by the State, Mr. Morrisett said localities had collected thousands of dollars levied upon the retailers, wholesalers and bottlers of beer in addition to the small State tax.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

(Associated Press.)

The position of the Treasury October 10 was: Receipts, $12,912,683.16; expenditures, $17,782,749.44; balance, $1,152,575,816.97; customs receipts for the month, $10,541,638.34.

Receipts for fiscal year to date (since July 1), $824,818,170.54; expenditures, $1,058,344,804.03, including $315,526,110.37 emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $233,526,633.49.

Wholesalers Trade Slows Up in Volume

Advance Is Curtailed by Fall-Off in Buying; Hardware Gains.

New York, Oct. 12.—With the fewer gains recorded in retail distribution, the upswing in wholesale trading has been diminished further, according to data compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. Buyers appear to be occupied in the movement of merchandise now on hand and are awaiting the establishment of a definite trend in preference as well as price ranges before considering new commitments.

Road sales and future orders have become slower, although a part of this may be the result of inability to obtain goods. While shipments of merchandise into the rural sections have slackened to some extent, orders are reported easier to obtain than at this time last year. Strikes have created a shortage of silks and dress materials, which have affected seriously ready-to-wear trades and allied lines.

Orders have been placed freely, however, for holiday goods, novelty items and dress accessories. The best showing this week was made in hardware, groceries and drugs.

Dry Goods Lag.

There has been considerable lag to the movement of dry goods, and weather conditions have not been conducive to any sizable reorders of fall garments as yet.

The dollar value of current business in the wholesale trade, however, remains substantially ahead of that of 1932, despite the drawbacks.

Larger orders, however, are being received for women's dresses, and reorders are starting to come in for men's clothing. The delivery situation in most divisions now is less acute than it was a month ago, with shipments running in excess of orders, in most instances.

Hardware Pick-Up Gains.

The pick-up in hardware orders, which started in August, has gained further momentum, and from country points orders for roofing materials have trended upward. After the hesitation noted during the last ten days of September, orders for plumbers' and steamfitters' supplies are becoming more numerous, and there has been some improvement in the movement of small farm implements.

While the demand for paper is less insistent than during the middle of September, orders are running larger than seasonal, continuing the satisfactory increase of the past three months.

Orders have increased for the better lines of table glassware, and there also is a livelier demand for decanters and liquor glasses.

Volume Runs Heavier.

The volume of business in the wholesale grocery trade is running heavier than last year, despite the inactivity of canned goods, due to the complications of the codes, which do not come up for a hearing until next week.

There has been a renewal of buying in dried fruits, on the other hand, with interest intensified in many items by the shorter tonnage than had been set by earlier estimates. Egg prices have been discounted, to a great extent, by the unusually heavy surplus in storage, and higher quotations now are in prospect.

The butter market is unsteady, with heavy Government purchases an unstabilizing factor. Sales of most brewers reached the peak for the year during August, but demand has fallen off since then, because of the cooler weather, and price recessions are becoming frequent.

NRA Boosts Steel Costs by $5,670,000

New York, Oct. 12.—Cost of operations of eight leading units in the steel industry will be increased $5,670,000 a month under the NRA steel code, on the basis of July-August output, it is estimated by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York. The estimated monthly increase in costs of the eight corporations is as follows:

| | Annual Ingot Capacity (Tons) | Monthly Increase In Costs |
|---|---|---|
| U. S. Steel | 27,342,000 | $3,000,000 |
| Bethlehem Steel | 9,360,000 | 1,000,000 |
| Republic Steel | 4,968,000 | 600,000 |
| Youngstown Sheet & Tube | 3,120,000 | 350,000 |
| National Steel | 2,232,000 | 250,000 |
| Inland Steel | 2,000,000 | 220,000 |
| American Rolling Mill | 1,900,000 | 200,000 |
| Gulf States Steel | 480,000 | 50,000 |
| Total | | $5,670,000 |

Steel Auto Ferry Sold.

Prairie du Chien, Wis., Oct. 12 (U.P.).—The Wanamingo, first steel ferry to carry automobiles on the upper Mississippi River, has been sold to a concern in Arkansas. The boat for a long time was in service between Prairie du Chien and McGroger, Iowa. The craft is now making the long trip South.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Encouraged by favorable trade returns, the stock exchange registered a cheerful tone today. Interest again centered around home industrials, most of which improved. Home rails eased on disappointing traffic reports, while shipping, transatlantic and textile issues were firmer. The market closed firm.

Paris—Weakness in rentes depressed domestic issues on the bourse. International issues, however, especially gold and central mining shares, were firm. The closing was irregular.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse were steady and improving. Electricity shares averaged 5 centum higher. The bond section was quiet and stock quotations were maintained at the close.

Bank of France.

Paris, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs: Gold decreased 58,000,000; sight balances abroad decreased 1,000,000; bills discounted at home decreased 698,000,000; bills bought abroad unchanged; advances increased 97,000,000; circulation decreased 447,000,000; current accounts decreased 616,000,000. Rate of discount, 2½ per cent.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Financial markets throughout the country were closed today in observance of Columbus Day. In New York State the day was a legal holiday and all national and State banks were closed.

Estimates based on reports already published place freight car loadings of major carriers for the week ending October 7 at 647,000 cars, compared with 625,636 actually loaded in the same week last year, an increase of 3.4 per cent.

The Dun & Bradstreet weekly food price index increased 1 cent to $1.92 for October 10, compared with $1.73 a year ago, a gain of 11 per cent. The latest index now stands 7.7 below the year's peak of $2.08, reached on July 18.

Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, says a store-door pickup and delivery service will be inaugurated shortly by his line. The Burlington will operate its own trucks in cities where there is sufficient business, he said, and in others will arrange with local trucking companies.

S. S. Kresge Co., reports September sales at $10,634,773, an increase of 12.7 per cent over a year ago.

Chesapeake & Ohio Railway's freight traffic last week totaled 29,798 cars, compared with 34,841 the week before and 30,713 a year ago.

Daily shipments of rayon showed a substantial rise in September over August, with the result that stocks of yarn in producers' hands are now at the lowest point, relative to production, in the industry's history, and constitute less than a week's supply, says the monthly publication of Tubize Chatillon Corporation. The outlook, it adds, is for a continued demand through the rest of this year.

The Iron Age composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.036 cents a pound, and $16.61 a ton, respectively. The scrap average is down slightly to $10.87 a ton.

Dun & Bradstreet report the aggregate value of building permits for September in 215 cities totaled $32,243,704, compared with $32,391,868 for the preceding month, and $30,437,268 for the same month last year.

Prices of Hogs Hold Steady To 10 Cents Up

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—Moderate activity marked hog trade today with prices ruling steady to 10 cents higher. Receipts were not heavy at 18,000 head with 8,000 billed direct to packers.

The top advanced 5 cents to $5.15 with the bulk of good light and medium weight hogs moving at $4.90 to $5.10.

Outside markets were not especially active and prices were generally steady to moderately higher.

Cattle trade was dull and slow. Few cattle of quality were on hand with the bulk steers here selling between $5 and $6. A few choice light heifers sold up to $6.50 with several loads of yearling heifers going at $6 and $6.35.

Sheep trade was weak with prices generally 15 to 25 cents below yesterday's close. Best range lambs were held around $7.35, but desirable natives were going at $7 to $7.15 with a few of the best held well above $7.25. Aged muttons were weak to lower. Trade was slow.

Silk Mill May Open In Strasburg, Va.

Strasburg, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Probability that a new silk mill will be opened soon in Strasburg offering employment to more than 50 men and women appeared here today when a representative of a Providence, R. I., silk mill was here on the mission of opening a silk mill in the King street site now owned by the First National Bank, but formerly owned and operated by M. E. Binze.

After looking over the King street silk mill site the Providence representative declared he was favorably impressed with the opportunities offered here for such a busines and indicated that inasmuch as it was the intention of their company to open a mill somewhere in Virginia that they might move machinery here and start operations in a short time. They are understood to have the privilege of either leasing or buying the building.

Two other companies are said to be interested in the same site for a silk mill here. One of the firms is said to have headquarters in New York and the other in Paterson, N. J.

French Fix 1933 U. S. Import Quota

The French import quotas for the fourth quarter of 1933 for imports from the United States of certain agricultural products have been fixed as follows, according to a cablegram to the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache H. C. MacLean, Paris:

Frozen pork, 10 metric tons; meats, salted or in brine, uncooked, not prepared, including hams, 104 metric tons; sausages, salamis, &c., 9 metric tons; condensed milk without sugar, 18.6 metric tons, and bran from all grains, 199.5 metric tons.

The following quotas are fixed for the combined imports from all countries not granted individual quotas, including the United States: Canned meats, 23.8 metric tons; condensed milk containing sugar, 15.3 metric tons, and lactic meal or flour containing sugar, 0.4 metric ton.

Gold Nugget Pays School Fee.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—A gold nugget worth $25 was accepted by University of Utah authorities as tuition fees for Mary Nesbit, high school graduate, of a remote Utah mining region. Miss Nesbit wrote to the University that she had no money, but offered the nugget, which she sent, as payment.

Wall Street Plans Improvement For Clearance of Securities

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—With Wall street barely recovered from the shock the New York Stock Exchange's threatened removal to New Jersey, it is reliably reported that it is preparing another surprise by revolutionizing the mechanics of security transfers and settlements.

The exchange has acquired the bank building of Lee Higginson & Co. in Broad street.

As understood in sources close to the exchange—officials are declining to comment—it is planning a new central clearing and bank unit to be housed in this building, diagonally across the street from the exchange.

Perhaps the most striking aspect of the plan is that it contemplates the entry of the exchange into an extensive business now performed by the banks, including the storing and safekeeping of securities, and also, possibly, in the arranging of call loans.

The plan would largely obviate the movement of securities between offices, and all but do away with the financial district's familiar "chain gangs" of messengers.

Under the plan, the securities would be kept in the central institution and transfers accomplished merely by booking entries and "earmarkings."

The plan contemplates the most sweeping steps ever taken by the exchange in simplifying its complex operations, and would involve a vast expansion of the present operations of the Stock Clearings Corporation, where the accounts of the various members are compared and exchange of balances arranged.

The new system is expected to call for the formation of a bank of perhaps $25,000,000 paid-in capital

It is understood the plan is still tentative.

Buenos Aires Will Construct New Highways

A comprehensive highway construction program for the Povince of Buenos Aires, Argentina, involving the expenditure over a period of from 5 to 15 years of 180,000,000 paper pesos was recently approved by the Federal Government National Highway Bureau, according to advices to the Commerce Department from its Buenos Aires office.

The total amount will be distributed, it is pointed out, in more or less equal parts over three zones of the province, one being the neighborhood of the City of Buenos Aires, and the other two the northern and southern zones of the province.

The project calls for the construction of a total of 5,039 kilometers of highways of which 1,921 will be paved, 2,553 improved and 785 ordinary dirt roads.

The provincial government will at the same time undertake to construct roads totaling 20,000 kilometers, consisting chiefly of short roads giving access to various towns and to main roads.

Congestion now existing on roads giving access to the City of Buenos Aires will be relieved by the construction of new highways in this area. Work on the Avenida General Paz will be completed, for which purpose 40 per cent of the proceeds of the gasoline tax in the capital will be appropriated.

Third of Listed Stocks Pay Regular Dividends

New York, Oct. 12.—More than a third of the 1,211 stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange still are on a regular dividend basis after four years of declining corporate profits, and of the 435 dividend-payers more than half afford a yield ranging between 4 and 8 per cent, according to a compilation prepared by Frazier Jelke & Co. About 200 are preferred stocks and all but 23 issues receive distributions at regular intervals.

"New corporate financing has been greatly restricted in recent years by unfavorable financial conditions and in the last few months by the Securities act of 1933," the firm points out in its bulletin. "No nationally known corporation has arranged any important public financing and few well known underwriting firms have originated new issues since the Federal regulations became effective."

Brazil to Require Certified Prices

The Bank of Brazil advises that hereafter, in certifying to the correctness of the prices shown in the commercial invoices of shipments to Brazil, the Chamber of Commerce or the organization or individual designated by the chamber to effect certification must also certify that the prices stated herein agree with the current export market prices, according to a cable received October 3 from Ambassador Hugh R. Gibson, Rio de Janeiro.

Under Brazilian regulations, in effect since March 15, 1933, it is required that prices in commercial invoices covering shipments to Brazil must be certified as correct by the Chamber of Commerce at the place of origin, or by an organization or individual designated by the chamber for this purpose.

To meet this requirement, the commercial organization which effects certification has been requiring the exporter to present an extra copy of the commercial invoices bearing a sworn statement to the effect that the prices charged in the invoice are the exact amounts charged the consignee, on the basis of which, certification is made that the prices stated in the invoice are true and correct. With the new requirement, the certification will now also have to state that the prices stated in the invoice are the same as the current export market prices.

Italy to Be Good Market For U. S. Office Supplies

Italy is a promising market for American calculating machines, according to Vice Consul Paul D. Thompson, Milan, in a report made public by the Commerce Department.

The value of such office appliances has become increasingly apparent to Italian business men, he points out. Statistics for combined imports of adding and calculating machines show that total receipts in 1932 were valued at 562,435 lire. In the first five months of the current year total imports were valued at 287,222 lire. It is believed that calculating machines accounted for the larger part of this total.

Life Insurance Head Urges Run Safeguard

J. B. Reynolds, Kansas City Leader, to Suggest Contract Changes.

Chicago, Oct. 12 (AP).—A demand that life insurance companies modify their future contracts to prevent a "run" on their resources such as he said occurred during the past year, was made today by Joseph B. Reynolds, president of the Kansas City Life Insurance Co.

In an address prepared for delivery before the American Life convention, he recommended that the loan value of a policy be obtainable only upon the premium date and that the surrender value be laid only after a stipulated advance notice had been given.

"What happened in the past," he said, "was a demand for life insurance companies to carry the entire financial burden arising from a Nation-wide economic pressure."

If suicides continue at their present rate, E. E. Cammack, vice president of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., said insurance firms would be forced to readjust their premium scales.

"An increase of 11 per cent in the mortality rate governing an ordinary life policy requires an increase of 5½ per cent in the premium," he said. He attributed an increase in the mortality record as partly due to suicides in recent years.

U. S. Brandt, president of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co., of Columbus, Ohio, reviewed the pro and con arguments on Federal control of insurance.

"After we have weighed all the evidence," he said, "our verdict should hinge upon the answer to the question: 'Rather bear those ills we have than fly to others that we know not of.'"

England Favors Virginia's Apples

Winchester, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.). Continued active demand for Virginia apples on the Liverpool, England, market was reported in cables from brokers of the United Kingdom by growers here today. With the English shilling at about 24 cents on the basis of exchange, Virginia Yorks brought from 18 to 25 shillings at auction this week.

Jonathans sold from 17 to 27 shillings, Grimes from 14 to 22 shillings and Greenings from 13 to 18.

Shipments from New York this past week to all United Kingdom markets were: Liverpool, 30,303 barrels, 816 boxes; London, 4,674 barrels, 1,512 boxes; Southampton, 9,352 barrels, 4,536 boxes, 1,691 baskets; total, 44,329 barrels, 6,864 boxes and 1,691 baskets.

National Aviation Buys Securities Unit Control

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—National Aviation Corporation has acquired a majority of the assets of the Aviation Securities Corporation, of New England, Edward O. McDonnell, president of the former announced today.

The transaction involves approximately $1,000,000 of the New England company's securities for which National Aviation is issuing an additional 66,974 shares of its own stock. National acquires 9,300 shares of Pan-American Airways stock and 36,500 shares of Curtiss-Wright "A" stock. This increases National Aviation's holdings in Pan-American to approximately 75,000 shares—the largest stockholder in the company, so far as is known.

Oregon Hop Crop Sets High Record

Salem, Oreg., Oct. 12 (U.P.).—The Oregon hop harvest, just completed, totaled approximately 100,000 bales, or 20,000,000 pounds. That is the heaviest yield in many years.

Prices of the new crop are averaging 40 cents a pound, as compared to 15 cents a year ago. Most growers were well pleased, though some had contracted their crops at lower prices, and some expected prices considerably higher than were paid. For a time in early summer, when the 1932 yield was running short, hops brought as high as 75 cents a pound here.

Hop pickers, 70,000 of whom were employed in Oregon, started work at 1 cent per pound. Claims that this was insufficient, coupled with several strikes, raised the wage to 1½ cents.

Money Markets.

(Associated Press.)

Owing to the fact that markets were closed yesterday the customary daily gold price quotation, and the statement of the Federal Reserve Bank condition, and of loans to brokers were omitted.

The gold price announcement will be resumed today and the other statements ordinarily issued on Thursday will be released today.

Auburn Autos Lose $354,154 In 3d Quarter

Cigar Machinery Company Pays Dividend of 37½ Cents.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Consolidated net loss of the Auburn Automobile Co. and subsidiaries for the months of June, July and August, comprising the third quarter of the current fiscal year ended August 31, 1933, was $354,154, W. H. Beal, president, announced today. This compares with consolidated net loss of $459,435 for the corresponding quarter of the preceding year.

The consolidated balance sheet of the company and its subsidiaries as of August 31, 1933, reflects current assets amounting to $9,451,862, of which $4,674,254 was in cash and Government securities. Current liabilities were $579,510, or more than $16 of current assets for each $1 of current liabilities.

Directors of the International Cigar Machinery Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the company's common stock, payable November 1 to stockholders of record October 21, 1933.

Directors of the American Machine & Foundry Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on the company's common stock, payable November 1 to stockholders of record October 21, 1933.

New York Central Railroad had August net income of $1,106,342, contrasting with a deficit of $852,981 for the same month of 1932. For the eight months ended August 31, the road had net deficit of $4,524,985, compared with $15,454,649 in the same period of last year.

Liberty Bond Redemption Is Explained

A. G. Lanston Gives Details of Plan in Connection With New Issue.

Details regarding the redemption of fourth Liberty Loan bonds and the new issue were explained yesterday in a statement issued by Aubrey G. Lanston, manager of the First of Boston Corporation, with offices in the American Security Building.

The following fourth 4¼s are called for redemption as of April 15, 1934:

All outstanding permanent coupon bonds bearing serial numbers the final digit of which is 9, 0 or 1. Actually these bonds comprise the entire series distinguished by the letters J, K and A. All permanent bonds of the J series have as their last digit number the figure 9, in all K series the final digit number is 0, and in all A series the final digit is 1.

All outstanding temporary coupon bonds bearing serial numbers the final digit of which is 9, 0 or 1. The final coupon of these temporary bonds became due October 15, 1920. Such call bonds will receive all past due interest from that date to April 15, 1934, if redeemed pursuant to this call.

All registered bonds bearing serial numbers the final digit of which is 9, 0 or 1.

Transfers and Exchanges.

Denominational exchanges of called coupon bonds terminates on the redemption date April 15, 1934. All transfers and exchanges of called registered bonds terminates at the closing of the transfer books March 15, 1934.

Fourth 4¼s called for redemption, and not exchanged for the new issue, should have the April 15, 1934 coupon detached—such coupon to be collected in the usual manner. Early presentation of called bonds may be made on or after February 15, 1934. It is desirable that surrender of called bonds be made well in advance of the call date, April 15. It is of particular importance to note that in the case of registered bonds the books close March 15, 1934, and early presentation of registered bonds should be made.

Starting with the opening of business on Monday, October 16, subscription will be received for Treasury bonds maturing October 15, 1945, callable at 100 with four months' notice on or after October 15, 1943. Such bonds will bear an interest rate of 4¼ per cent for the first year and 3¼ per cent thereafter until maturity or call. This new loan will have the same tax provisions and exemptions as the outstanding Fourth 4¼s. Bonds will be issued on either coupon or registered form in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000, and may be exchanged and transferred in the same manner as outstanding Treasury bonds. The bonds will be acceptable to secure deposits of public moneys and will bear the circulation privilege to the same extent as now provided for Treasury 3⅜s, 3½s, 3s, &c.

Privilege of Exchanges.

Holders of Fourth 4¼s are offered the privilege of exchanging all or part of their bonds (whether called or uncalled) at 100 for the new issue. The Treasury Department circular specifically states that this optional exchange states is for a limited period only, beginning on October 16. Consequently, any exchange subscriptions should be tendered by banks and recognized dealers to Federal Reserve banks and branches of the Treasury Department so as to be received immediately upon the opening of the books.

Payment for the new issue on exchange subscriptions must be made by surrender of the Fourth 4¼s when the exchange subscription is entered. Banks who might wish to purchase additional Fourth 4¼s through the open market for use in tender against an exchange subscription can tender their subscription through one Federal Reserve bank and advise that the Fourth 4¼s in payment thereof will be surrendered at some other Federal Reserve bank, branch or direct to the Treasury Department, in which case the designated official agent of the Government will advise the reserve bank, branch or the Treasury Department that such Fourth 4¼s have been surrendered to them in payment of the exchange application of the subscribing bank.

Banks wishing to sell Fourth 4¼s in the open market should be in a position to make a prompt delivery to a Federal Reserve bank, branch or the Treasury Department, as the purchase of the bonds may be made by another bank wishing to tender them in payment of an exchange subscription.

Allotment to Subscriptions.

Five hundred million dollars, or thereabouts, of the new issue will be allotted against cash subscriptions at a price of 101½ (which price includes accrued interest from October 15 to November 1, 1933—the amount of this accrued interest is approximately $1.77 per $1,000). Such payment against cash subscriptions must be made on or before November 1, 1933. Since payment in cash subscriptions is not called for except on or before November 1, 1933, and the new issue will carry accrued interest in all purchases and sales in the open market after delivery, the actual cost to a subscriber of the bonds on a cash subscription is approximately 101.323, or slightly less than 101 11-32 as of November 1.

Applications, unless made by an incorporated bank, trust company or responsible and recognized dealer in Government securities, must be accompanied by 10 per cent payment of the bonds applied for.

The new issue actually offers to subscribers a 3¼ per cent interest rate from October 15, 1933, plus a premium of $10 in income for the first year. Theoretically, therefore, one might assume that on exchange subscriptions they are being offered the practical equivalent of a 10 to 1-year 3¼ per cent obligation at par.

Under the same theoretical basis, the cash subscriber obtains a practical equivalent of a 10 to 1-year 3¼ per cent obligation at slightly less than 100 11-32 as of November 1.

On October 11 Closing.

Based on the closing markets of October 11, the new 10-12-year Treasury obligation would probably be worth as a straight 3¼ per cent bond, a price to afford a yield of from 3.10 per cent to 3⅛ per cent. The dollar price as a straight 3¼ per cent bond would, therefore, range from 101 9-32 to 101 2-32. The $10 additional income for the first year might raise this range from 102 9-32 to 102 2-32.

Inasmuch as interest accrues at the 4¼ per cent rate for the first year, this differential will cause a falling off in price to approximate that of a true 3¼ bond at the end of one year. As of November 1, assuming the market for the long term Governments remained at its closing level of October 11 and the new issues sold in line with those yields, the price would range from 102 3-32 to 101 28-32.

As of October 15, called Fourths not tendered in exchange would yield 0 per cent to the call date at a price of approximately 102. Such uncalled bonds will, therefore, probably sell at such a discount from 102 as to give a comparable yield to other six months Government securities. At this time June 15 ¼s yield .16 per cent. Six months' bankers' acceptances yield ¾ of 1 per cent taxable. The tax differential on a 4¼ per cent coupon is approximately .68 per cent. Fourths might, therefore, sell to yield in the neighborhood of .10 per cent to .25 per cent.

Uncalled bonds will sell at a yield determined as comparable for a one-year Government security plus the market estimate of future exchange values in additional calls. This price could easily exceed 104.

Transactions in called bonds under circumstances which will permit the tender of the called bonds by the purchaser will probably be at a price in the neighborhood of 100 plus the estimated premium which it is thought will obtain on the new issue, probably in the neighborhood of 102.

From the reading of the Treasury announcement, exchange subscriptions properly filed will receive 100 per cent allotment. The Treasury reserves the right to make allotment in full upon applications of smaller amounts, but does not define smaller amounts. Cash allotments may very easily be small.

5-Year Power Plan in Britain Is Completed

A construction project lasting five years and costing £27,000,000 sterling was completed a few days ago, when the last steel tower in the electrical transmission system over Great Britain was erected at Braemore, on the outskirts of the New Forest, according to a report to the Commerce Department from its London office.

This is the last of 26,265 towers erected under the direction of the Central Electricity Board for the servicing of all England, Wales and the South of Scotland.

The system now comprises 273 transforming and switching stations, having a transforming capacity of 11 million horsepower. Approximately 2,500 miles of line are now in operation. It is expected that the whole system will be carrying light and power to almost every part of the country by the end of 1934. It is proposed that the grids be loaded to the extent of 70 per cent in 1935 and 100 per cent in 1940, when the output will reach 25 billion units.

The completion of this system means the opportunity for the construction of thousands of miles of distribution lines, which should prove of benefit not only to home owners, but to towns, corporations and trading companies, the report declares.

Hankow Sells Less Tung Oil To America

Exports to United States Cut 5,324,000 Pounds in August.

Tung oil exports to the United States from Hankow, China, during August amounted to 10,332,000 pounds, compared with 15,656,000 pounds for the preceding month, and 7,404,000 pounds for August, 1932, according to the Commerce Department's Chemical Division. Total tung oil exports from Hankow in August were 13,172,000 pounds, compared with 17,982,000 pounds in July.

Exports of tung oil to Europe amounted to 2,840,000 pounds, a gain of 514,000 pounds over the previous month, and an increase of 912,000 pounds over the corresponding month of 1932. It was estimated that stocks of the oil on hand at Hankow the end of August totaled 4,180 short tons.

The following tabulation shows detailed statistics of tung oil exports to the United States and Europe from Hankow for the comparative months and for the first eight months of 1932 and 1933. It will be noted that the total exports to the United States for the first eight months of 1933 greatly exceeded the quantity shipped to the United States for the same months of 1932.

While total exports of oil from Hankow during August were less than for May, June and July, the total quantity was greater than for any monthly total registered in 1932.

Trade Activity Is Beginning To Advance

New York, Oct. 10.—The decline of the Business Activity Barometer, compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., which has continued for the past eight weeks was terminated this week with a rise from 62.6 for the previous week to 63.4 for the week of October 4. This gain, though slight, is encouraging, in view of the continuous decline during the past two months. The current index compares with 51.8 a year ago, an increase of 22.4 per cent, and is now 43.4 per cent higher than the low point of last March.

Despite strike troubles, steel production made the best showing of the different components, while carloadings, electric output and bank clearings also showed some improvement.

The Dun & Bradstreet Business Activity Barometer for the past few weeks follows (1928-1930—100):

Browns, nearby and Western special packs, private sales from store, 23@24; Western standards, 22@23; refrigerator, fancy, 19@20.

POULTRY—Live, weaker. Chickens, freight, 10@12; express, 10@17; fowls, freight, 8@14; express, 10@18; turkeys, freight and express, 15@20; ducks, freight, 10; other grades unchanged. Dressed poultry, steady and unchanged.

BUTTER—Receipts, 13,093. Irregular. Creamery, first, 87-91 scores, 17¼@22; seconds, 16¼@17½; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 13½; No. 2, 12½.

CHEESE—Receipts, 215,383; quiet and unchanged.

COFFEE—Was lower today on selling late in the session by locals and commission houses. Trade interests and Brazil bought.

Santos opened 3 to 10 lower and closed 9 to 21 lower. Sales, 10,000. No. 7 opened 2 lower to ¼ higher and closed 5 to 9 lower. Sales, 5,000. Closing quotations: Santos, December, 7.98; March, 8.06; May, 8.13; July, 8.21; September, 8.44. No. 7, December, 5.66; March, 5.72; May, 5.80; July, 5.87; September, 5.93.

Spot coffee steady and fair. Santos 4s, 8½@9. Rio 7s, 7¼. Cost and freight offers included Santos Bourbon 3s and 4s at 8.15@8.70.

SUGAR—Raw showed further losses of 3 points early today to the basis of 3.37 for spots. At this level there seemed to be a little better inquiry, with holders asking higher prices at the close. Sales reported included 12,800 bags of Cuban from store late the previous day at 3.37 and today bags of Cuban at 3.38.

Futures were firmer on rumors of possible reactions in the Cuban preferential duties, with final prices showing net gains of 3 to 5 points. Sales were 41,650 tons. The trade and Cuban interests were moderate buyers, absorbing considerable liquidation through Wall street and commission houses.

Refined was quiet and unchanged at 4.60 for fine granulated. A moderate withdrawal demand was reported, but new business was light and supplied through second hands at from 4.55@4.57½.

$750,000 Berlin Bonds Bought and Canceled

New York, Oct. 12.—Speyer & Co., as fiscal agents, have purchased and canceled, through the sinking fund, for the semiannual period commencing April 1, 1933, $705,000 bonds of the City of Berlin, 25-year 6½ per cent loan of 1925. Out of an original issue of $15,000,000 bonds there remain outstanding $10,087,000 bonds.

Industrial Operations Remain Unchanged After Slight Upturn

Halting of Recession Leaves Activity at Former Level; Labor Strikes Handicap Factories; Textile Trade Continues Advance in Several Lines.

New York, Oct. 12.—Despite the slight reversal in the downtrend of some industries, according to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., the recovery was not sufficiently wide to offset the persistent lack of gains in most divisions, which left the general operating level about at the same position as a week ago.

Further handicaps to progress have appeared in the untimely current plague of strikes and walkouts, with some fear in evidence that the zealousness of impatient agitators may act as a deterrent to the efforts of the National Recovery Administration to revive languishing trade. With the exception of centers where labor troubles have disrupted normal operations, employment is about on a par with that of a week ago, as gains were reported in only a few districts.

One of the outstanding exceptions to the current trend is provided by the textile industry, as wool consumption and spindle activity continue to gain, with the manufacture of cotton goods a close second. The demand for piece goods has been large, principally from the men's wear lines, although dealers in women's wear goods are becoming more active.

Finished Goods Advance.

Further advances in the quotations on finished goods are contemplated, as current prices are being held firmly. Mills are sold ahead, and in some cases have been forced to refuse orders. Mills making yarns suitable for men's wear in the worsted lines are well sold up, while the demand for yarns for women's dress goods is increasing. A good volume of yarns of all counts also is going to the knitters.

Quotations on finished cotton goods are firmer than they have been for several weeks, with demand continuing active, and consumption of raw cotton increasing steadily. Mill stocks, as a rule, are quite low. All counts of cotton yarns are moving steadily into consumption; some large orders were received during the week. Many spinners are unable to accept orders for delivery inside of two or three months. The most active call has been for the weaving yarns.

With the business now booked sufficient to insure current operating schedules to be maintained well into November, producers of rayon are expanding their plant facilities in order to take care of increased orders.

Velvets Come Into Favor.

For, in addition to the price differential against silk, which has enlarged greatly the use of rayon for dresses, hosiery and other wearing apparel which fall in the lower-price brackets, the fall fashions favor velvets and other rayon pile fabrices. There practically is no yarn available for spot delivery, and it is expected that the limited stocks soon will vanish.

In the past four months there has been a decided change for the better in the rubber industry and there is every indication that this improvement will be maintained at least for the balance of the year. Manufacturers of chemical, pharmaceutical and special process machinery find that the fair business volume which started several months ago is being maintained.

General machinery sales also have gained slightly, but no broadening of consequence in the demand is expected until the measures governing the hours of work will have become operative in all industries, and thus necessitate the replacement of antiquated equipment, in order to bring production up to the desired level. A few orders for machine tools are being received from steel and automobile manufacturing centers.

Volume Rises Slightly.

While present business volume is slightly ahead of that for the comparative period last year manufacturers of paints, varnishes and enamels find that production still is being carried along a narrow margin. Buyers are not anticipating future needs and display no willingness to pile up stock.

The best-selling items continue to be interior paints for use in institutions and schools, and plants. Outside paint sales still are a disappointment. Though prices have advanced, further rises are anticipated, as increases thus far made in selling prices have been considerably less than the increase in the cost of raw materials.

There has been a gradual improvement in the wallpaper trade since April, when the industry reached its lowest point. Present production is about 50 per cent of normal, with the largest selling items in the cheaper brackets. Adherence to the new code has necessitated some price advances, and the trend continues upward, as current prices barely cover the cost of production. Demand for the better grades of paper has been increasing since July.

Lumber Is Improved.

Conditions in the lumber trade appear to be much more satisfactory than they have been for the last few years. Inquiries are increasing and there has been a slight increase in orders. For the first time in several weeks sales of West Coast mills have exceeded the much-curtailed production.

The retail demand has improved beyond the seasonal scope and most yards gradually are placing operations on a sounder basis. Prices are stiffening materially at the source of supply.

Drug manufacturers are holding their own, with volume slightly in excess of that of last year. Price advances have been confined chiefly to chemicals, acids, iodides, quinine, camphor and other articles which are imported or made from raw materials which are imported, on account of the exchange value of the dollar. Soap and cleanser factories are running full time and volume of sales is considerably better than last year. Further improvement is expected on account of advancing prices.

Commodity Prices Climb During Week

(Associated Press.)

An increase of approximately two-tenths of one per cent in wholesale commodity prices during the week ended October 7 was reported yesterday by the Labor Department.

Even with this increase, however, prices still were two-tenths of one per cent under the peak reached in the week ended September 23.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the index of wholesale prices for the week of October 7 was 71.3 compared with 71.1 for the week ended September 30. The year 1926 is taken as 100.

The report showed a slight decrease in the prices of farm products.

The index figure for the week ended October 7 and for September 30 on the major products studied were:

Farm products, 57.5 and 58; foodstuffs, 65 and 64.9; hides and leather products, 91.8 and 91.9; textile products, 76.3 for both weeks; fuel and lighting materials, 73.4 and 72.6; metals and metal products, 82.4 and 82; building materials, 83.7 and 83.2; chemicals and drugs, 72.7 and 72.1; house furnishing goods, 81.1 and 79.4, and miscellaneous commodities, 65 and 61.1.

Will Orders Son to Save.

Salem, Mass., Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Under the terms of the will of the late Dr. Jeremiah J. Corbett, of Lynn, his son, Francis, 16, will receive twice as much as he saves annually for 10 years, at the end of which time he will receive the residue. The will disposed of an estate estimated at $1,000,000.

Store Sales In Fifth Bank Area Increase

Month's Gain Is 2 Per Cent Over 1932 Period; 53 Report.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Department store sales in the Fifth Federal Reserve District last month showed a 2 per cent increase over the corresponding month last year, the Richmond Reserve Bank announced today.

Thirty-one reporting stores listed increases and 22 showed decreases.

Cumulative sales in the district for the first nine months of the year, however, were 8 per cent below those for the same period of 1932.

The fifth district's comparative record was excelled only by the Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago districts, the Richmond Bank reported.

Fifth district sales by reporting centers last month were Baltimore, 9 stores, 5.4 per cent gain; Charleston, W. Va., 4 stores, 11.4 per cent gain; Huntington, W. Va., 3 stores, .2 per cent gain; Lynchburg, 4 stores, .4 per cent gain; Norfolk, 3 stores, 9.1 per cent loss; Richmond, 3 stores, 4.4 per cent gain; Washington, 8 stores, 2.5 per cent loss; other cities, 19 stores, 3.1 per cent gain.

Power Production Advance Is Small

New York, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Electric power output last week ran slightly below that of the previous week and recorded the smallest percentage gain over last year since the week of June 10. The outturn was 9.3 per cent ahead of the 1932 period, against a comparable rise of 10.2 per cent in the preceding week.

Production for the country, as reported by the Edison Electric Institute, was 1,646,136,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,632,811,000 in the previous week and 1,506,219,000 in the corresponding week last year.

Gains over last year in the major geographic regions were generally lower than those reported for the week ended September 30. New England was up 8.4 per cent, against 8 per cent; Middle Atlantic, up 4.5, against 5.7; Central Industrial, up 10.5, against 12.7; West Central, up 1.3, against 3; Southern States, up 14.8, against 15.8; Rocky Mountain, up 22.8, against 29.4; Pacific Coast, up 2.7, against 1.9.

Minority Gets Chemical Hold At Meeting

Virginia-Carolina Concern Passes Into Hands of Kemp Group.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Control of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation with assets of over $28,000,000 passed into the hands of a prior preferred minority group headed by George S. Kemp, of Richmond, at the annual stockholders' meeting here today.

The Kemp slate of 8 nominees for the board of directors of 15 members was elected after several of those present had sharply questioned the right of prior preferred stockholders to name a majority of the board.

Melville Branch, Richmond capitalist, who opposed the election of the Kemp slate, expressed the belief that "a court fight is coming, sooner or later." Albert Levinger, of New York, a director, asserted that the prior preference group had no right to name a majority of the board.

Meeting Is Adjourned.

The stockholders' meeting was adjourned until November 10.

Only the prior preference group mustered a quorum, which will necessitate the holding over of the seven directors chosen last year by the 6 per cent preferred and the common-share holders.

The new board will meet next Tuesday to elect officers and outline policies.

The Kemp slate, elected by a wide margin, consists of Jacquelin P. Taylor, Leon M. Nelson, Thomas Branch Scott, George S. Kemp, Joseph A. Dart, W. H. Slaughter, J. Luther Moon, jr., and F. M. Collier all of Richmond.

Share Issue Waits.

The question of retirement of some 85,000 shares of prior preference stock which precipitated the movement leading to the triumph of the Kemp group never came to a vote.

After Levinger's protest against permitting the prior preference shareholders to name the majority by one of the board of directors, President George A. Holderness ruled that the charter gave these shareholders that right and that the election should proceed. He said the ruling was given on the advice of counsel.

Levinger said that only 54

Walter Huston Greets Old Friends at RKO-Keith's—"Ann Vickers" Is Reviewed

Popular Actor Given Ovation By Huge Crowd

Here to Film New Picture; "Footlight Parade" to Have "Premiere."

Greeted by a prolonged salvo of applause that bespoke the esteem in which he is held by the theatergoers not only of the Capital, but of the entire Nation, Walter Huston last evening at 9:10 stepped upon the stage of RKO-Keith's Theater and renewed old acquaintanceships on both sides of the footlights.

Back in the days of the Wilson wartime administrations, Walter Huston appeared frequently on the boards of the Fifteenth street playhouse as a singing star of vaudeville. He recalled all that last night and was greeted by another round of applause indicative of the public's equally keen recollection of those parlous days. It was a friendly and warming reunion of old friends.

Mr. Huston, as must be pretty thoroughly around by now, is in Washington to make a new picture for RKO-Radio over at Fort Myer. The filming of "Rodney" will probably keep him and his associates in Washington for a period of at least three weeks—perhaps longer. Perhaps not quite so long.

It is a pleasant junket for Mr. Huston. In pictures about three years, this is the first time in two-and-a-half of the three that he has been farther than 100 miles way from Hollywood. That 100-mile jaunt he makes frequently. It is from the studio to his cabin up in the mountains, where he rests between pictures and "gets away from it all."

His First Chance.

In a conversation of some length last night, following his single personal appearance on the stage, this actor who has done such consistently fine work before the cameras that one somehow feels he has never done anything else, remarked that by an odd coincidence his film career was precipitated by a former Washington newspaperman. It was Monta Bell, snatched from his desk assignment in Washington to be Charlie Chaplin's right and left hand men, both, who, having attained the status of director, had a great yen to film "Gentlemen of the Press." His problem was to find a man equipped to do justice to the pivotal role. He found him playing Elmer, in "Elmer, the Great."

Thus it was that Walter Huston crashed the cinema to score an instant hit. The entire cast of that picture, by the way, managed to do pretty well. It marked Kay Francis' debut on the screen and gave Charlie Ruggles one of his best roles. Betty Lawford, who played Mr. Huston's daughter in the film, is now Mrs. Monta Bell. All this Mr. Huston recalled with great glee while dawdling over Mr. Meakin's tasty caviar and cold tea, down in what used to be the orchestra room of the old Keith's.

Host Meakin, incidentally, had earlier revived some of his own dormant lust for the footlights by introducing Mr. Huston up on the stage, forgetting not a line of his carefully prepared impromptu remarks and stammering hardly any.

Mr. Huston, like everybody else, encounters some difficulty in recalling any of his pictures—and they have been many these past three years, "Rodney" being his sixth this year, for example—that have not been satisfactory both from the viewpoint of the artist and at the box-office, although, if pressed, he will surmise that maybe "Rain" wasn't so hot. And his surmise is entirely correct. "Rain" wasn't.

A Publicity Stunt.

He will confess, too, that his famous newsreel debate with Sister Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, out in Angelus Temple, at just the time he was taking the screen in "The Wet Parade," was a publicity plant, pure and simple—that is to say, not too pure and not at all simple! The fact remains that nothing half so effective has been done either before or since.

You will learn from him, too, in conversation, that "Gabriel Over the White House" was an anticlimax when it reached the screen because it was held on the shelf so long after completion that by the time it was finally released most of the things it had forecast as purely visionary actually had happened. Politics.

Walter Huston, if anyone in the world ever did, will need a disguise to keep from being immediately recognized and mobbed by admirers wherever and whenever he appears in Washington, for offstage he is precisely as he is on—except, of course, when in character makeup. The camera plays no tricks on him. He looks the same, sounds the same and is the same—a gracious, kindly, courteous gentleman who lives life with some zest, obviously is fond of people and so makes sure that people will be fond of him.

A real and splendid person.

It is being bruited about the better places that the Warner Brothers production of "Footlight Parade," described by those who have previewed it as superior to either "42nd Street" or "Gold Diggers," will be given one of those gala Hollywood "permeers" at the Metropolitan Theater on Thursday night, October 26, at 8:30 o'clock. There will be but one projection of the feature that night, but whether it will be before a general audience of the paying public, a reserved seat crowd or an invitational group of notables had not been decided last night. However, the date is set and may be pasted in the hat.

Men at War.

There has not been so vivid and so blood-chilling a scene depicted before the cameras in closeup in many months as that mine-strike riot sequence in the current issue of the Pathe News, at RKO-Keith's.

The striking miners up in Pennsylvania are picketing a line when the sheriff walks up and attempts to disperse them. He is sullenly ignored. Then his deputies, armed with clubs, tear-gas guns and other implements of conflict march up and make a concerted effort to stop the picketing.

Of a sudden one of the crowd snatches a club from another and hits him over the head with it. And then it starts. War it is—nothing but war.

After the fighting has subsided, one unlucky combatant is left dead on the street, where he fell, and the sheriff steps up to the microphone to tell why the clash could not be averted. Apparently, it couldn't.

Here is a newsreel shot that makes startlingly clear what conditions are in places that seem remote in cold print, but, as a matter of fact, might be anywhere, times being what they are.

A reminder may not be amiss that on next Monday evening Max Gordon will present Clare Kummer's new comedy, "Her Master's Voice," in the National Theater with Roland Young, Laura Hope Crews, Miss Fuller and a strong supporting cast in the principal roles. The Washington engagement is the last before the new play's Broadway opening and will be the second of the season under the auspices of the American Theater Society of Washington.

Coaching the Coaches.

The football coaches of the educational institutions in and around the National Capital will have an opportunity to appraise the merit of the first gridiron picture of the season, when "Saturday's Millions," Universal's picturization of the story by Lucian Cary, opens at the Rialto Theater on Saturday.

Manager Rodney Collier of the Ninth street house has invited all of the local coaches to be his guests at the opening presentation of the film.

Those expected to be on hand to pick up whatever hints in the direction of improved play they may be able to detect in the picture include Jack Faber, of the University of Maryland; "Dutch" Bergmann, of Catholic University; Hagerty of Georgetown; Jack Espey, director of publicity for George Washington University; Hap Hardell, of McKinley Manual Training School; Lynn Woodward, of Roosevelt High School; Dan Ahern, of Western High, and Mr. Guyon, of Eastern, and Mr. Coggins, of Central.

On the Horizon.

And if any further earnest were needed that a new theatrical season really is under way, it might be discerned in the fact that on next Tuesday evening at 8:45 in Constitution Hall, Leopold Stokowski, conductor, will direct the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra in the first of its four local concerts of the season.

Or that the Children's Theater, originated by Mrs. Clare Tree Major, will inaugurate its season of six Saturday morning plays for juvenile and adult audiences in the National Theater a week from Saturday morning, October 21, with Mrs. Major's own dramatization of "The Five Little Peppers."

Or even that the Chesterfieldian Col. Jimmie Lake, intent on preserving the high quality of his burlesque offerings at the Gayety Theater, on Sabbath afternoon will go alliterative and present Tangara and her "Tango Queens" as the attraction to adorn his rostrum through the ensuing week, two performances daily, smoking in all parts of the house and a refectory upstairs!

Gone Bugs!

Were you troubled with those little bugs last night, too? So thick around the desk that we started calling it the gnatatorium!

Weather Report.

And, boy, never mind finding a place for that porch furniture down in the basement just yet. The only good Indian, it seems, is Indian Summer.

Smoothest of the Comedians

The suave and polished Roland Young, among the foremost of the theater's contemporary drawing-room exponents of high comedy, who returns to the legitimate stage from pictures in "Her Master's Voice," a new play by Clare Kummer, to be seen in the National Theater for the week beginning next Monday night, prior to its Broadway opening.

"ANN VICKERS." RKO-Radio's picturization of the novel by Sinclair Lewis, adapted to the screen by Jane Murfin, starring Irene Dunn, with Walter Huston, Edna May Oliver, Conrad Nagel, Bruce Cabot and Sam Hardy. Directed by John Cromwell. Reviewed Thursday afternoon.

Sinclair Lewis' searchingly analytical novel of "Ann Vickers," like Mrs. Pearl S. Buck's "The Good Earth," lends itself with poor grace to dramatization.

It is a monumental work of such diverse ramifications, reflecting in its 560-odd pages so many facets of the nature and personality, often startlingly contradictory, of its central character—a "career woman" whose private life was oddly at variance with her distinguished public attainment and service—that the adapter can hope to do no more than settle upon some one aspect of the Vickers character and develop it in solitary isolation to such eminence as it may inherently be capable of attaining.

Jane Murfin, a sympathetic and experienced playwright, has seen fit to translate to the screen only the emotional and romantic side of Ann Vickers' widely scattered interests. It is her love affairs upon which Miss Murfin has concentrated. The struggle upward from obscure occupation as a small-town social worker to eminence as a great authority on penology has been subordinated, in the picture, to the various affairs she had with a considerable list of suitors—ranging from a captain in the A. E. F., who proved completely perfidious, to a judge of the State supreme court—and her strange indifference to the birth of sons and daughters out of wedlock.

By this process of narrowing the dimensions of the Lewis canvas, "Ann Vickers," on the screen, necessarily becomes the portrait of a rather shallow, romantic and impetuous ingenue as compared with the ambitious, courageous, daring and tenacious fighter whose acquaintance we make between the covers of the book.

Irene Dunne, in the title role, plays the part with an ingenuous charm that will prove enjoyable to amusement seekers whose tastes are satisfied with the merest superficialties, but at no time does she convey the impression of strength and vigor essential to the fullest embodiment of a woman who fought her way through a man's world to the heights and the privilege of embracing love, finally, after the big battle was won.

Ann Vickers, to be sure, was not always the woman of steel. There were moments when she was completely and enchantingly feminine. The sudden contrasts in her nature were among her greatest fascinations. Of these Miss Dunne makes nothing.

The searing experience in the Copper Gap penitentiary, where the only concept of modern penology was expressed by the cat-o'-nine-tails, the dungeon and the noose, is introduced in the picture for no further apparent reason than to afford an interval of gruesome horror.

The male role of chief importance in the picture—although is was not so dominant in the book—is played by Walter Huston with all of the fine, wholesome naturalness that characterizes all of his work before the cameras or behind the footlights, even if his role is not always admirable. As Judge Barney Dolphin, Mr. Houston contributes a study that gains in forcefulness by the caddishness with which Miss Murfin has imbued all the other men in the film version of the story—Bruce Cabot, Conrad Nagel and Sam Hardy. These did their work, it seemed to some yesterday, not quite well enough. Edna May Oliver, as Malvina Wormser has a role considerably beneath her capabilities.

Minor roles of varying degrees of importance to the revamped narrative are intrusted to Murray Kinnell, Mitchell Lewis, who reappears on the screen after a long absence; Rafaelo Ottiano and Helyn Eby-Rock.

The supplementary features of the bill are numerous and varied. Perhaps most notable is the new issue of the Pathe News which presents close-up shots of a mine-strike riot from first blow until one of the combatants is left dead on the field of battle in the disturbed area of Pennsylvania. Less shocking than this vivid bit of current news will be found Pete Smith's running comment on "Hook and Line," a fishing reel; Ruth Etting's song-playlet, "Knee Deep in Music," and an Aesop Fable cartoon comedy, "Rough on Rats," which now and again also is a little rough on the audience.

The excellence of the acting contributed by Miss Dunne, within the limitations of her drastically abridged character, and Mr. Huston; the daring of Ann Vickers' extra-marital adventures in love and the harrowing scenes at Copper Gap will make "Ann Vickers" an engrossing picture for those who have not read the book.

7 Held in Counterfeit Quiz Had Lost $40,000

Los Angeles, Oct. 12 (AP).—Federal officers and city detectives announced tonight seven men have been arrested in a counterfeiting investigation and that $40,000 taken from a Lincoln, Kans., bank in a robber a year ago had been found in their apartments.

The men were held on charges of conspiracy to counterfeit and possession of stolen property.

Movie Salary Snarl Avoided By Rosenblatt

Code Chief's Silence May Check Issue Back to President.

(United Press.)

Deputy Administrator Sol A. Rosenblatt, the NRA's top sergeant in charge of radio crooners, tap dancers and jugglers, lifted his eyes to the skies last night and said:

"I am silent, gentlemen, silent."

It took 40 minutes for the import of those words to penetrate through the assembled ears of the world press. Then they grasped it. Mr. Rosenblatt was refusing to say whether he would join the campaign of President Roosevelt to reduce the salaries of "immature persons employed in the motion picture industry."

Ever since the President announced that he thought some Hollywood salaries were extravagant, the Nation has been wondering what was going to happen.

Mr. Rosenblatt is the logical man to handle salary cuts if there are going to be any. He is in charge of the movie code, the radio code and virtually all branches of the amusement world. But when he stood steadfast last night it seemed to mean that he had turned the matter right back to President Roosevelt.

It was evident that Rosenblatt didn't want to talk about movie salaries. He was surprised when the world press descended upon him, but he rose from his desk and delivered an urbane greeting:

"You guys are five minutes early."

It became necessary for someone to go to the heart of the matter, so an idle journalist inquired:

"What are you going to do about Jackie Cooper's salary ($1,300 a week)?"

Mr. Rosenblatt looked pained.

"I have statistics," he said, "showing that in the total cost of producing motion pictures an average of 466 persons receive 51 per cent of the total salary and labor payrolls, although more than 12,000 persons are salaried and general employes. Get those figures right, you guys, will you?"

All the guys said they had the figures okay, but what about Jackie Cooper's salary? What about Baby Leroy's salary ($2,500 a picture)? What about that $30,000 a week that Constance Bennett is supposed to get? What about. . . .

Better Illumination of World Held Key to Man's Happiness

Science Would Show New Joy in Seeing Things Now Neglected.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—A new science, which he called the "science of seeing," which seeks to increase man's happiness by improving his vision of the less obvious things in life, was explained today by Dr. Matthew Luckiesh, director of lighting of the research laboratory of the General Electric Co., Cleveland, at a meeting of four service clubs here.

Declaring truth and happiness can not be obtained without concentration on the less tangible things of life, Dr. Luckiesh said he and his colleagues believe the sense of seeing must be more thoroughly developed as the key to mankind's betterment. This, he said, is the purpose behind research of scientists for more adequate lighting.

Improper lighting, he said, increases the nervous and physical energy required to see. Homes, offices, and other places, he said, should be illuminated by a light that is as close as possible, in quality and quantity, to sunlight.

Presbyterians Tonight Hear Mrs. Roosevelt

Conference in Baltimore Will Conclude 250th Anniversary.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will be the national speaker at the concluding meeting of the celebration of the 250th anniversary of American Presbyterianism in Baltimore tonight.

On the same program with her will be Dr. Robert Elliott Speer, New York, senior secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

The meeting will be a climax dinner conference, and will conclude the Francis Makemie celebration which began Wednesday, October 4.

Memories of Makemie were revived during the past week by pilgrimages to shrines of Presbyterianism along the Eastern Shore. Makemie was founder of the string of churches of that faith along the coast of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia which became the neculei of the first Presbytery of Philadelphia.

The conference is expected to give support to the Presbyterian General Council's spiritual recovery crusade.

Presbyterians from all sections of the Nation have been attending the tours and meetings held in connection with the celebration.

These included visits to Makemie churches at Pocomoke City, Snow Hill and Salisbury, Md. Night services have been held regularly during the celebration.

Chicago, Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Wirt Morton, who is a charter member of the Antisuperstition Society of Chicago, will be married tomorrow, Friday, the 13th, to Mrs. Margaret Budd Osborne, of Dubuque, Iowa.

J.I. Buck Arraigned On Federal Charge

$5,000 Bond Set for Man Wanted in Chicago.

J. Irving Buck, of Washington, charged with conspiracy to impersonate an officer, was held for Illinois authorities yesterday under $5,000 bond following an extradition hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Buck is alleged to have represented himself in Chicago as a representative of a Department of Internal Revenue publication. He was arrested here by Federal agents.

He is believed to be a brother to Benjamin R. Buck, of Washington, put under $15,000 bond by a Baltimore grand jury, charged with embezzling $7,921 from Harry M. Rosenbau, Easton, Md., in a bucket shop racket.

Girl's Injury Stirs School Yard Inquiry

Officials Direct Probe Into Playground at Bancroft.

Parents File Claim for Child Who Lost Arm in Fall.

Aroused by the serious injury of 9-year-old Mildred Dunn in a playground swing accident, District and school officials yesterday ordered a thorough investigation of conditions at the Bancroft playground, at Eighteenth and Newton streets northwest.

A swing broke under Mildred Dunn October 3, causing her to fall, breaking her arm near the wrist. It was found necessary to amputate her left arm near the shoulder, and she still is in a serious condition at Garfield Hospital. Infection was given as the cause for the amputation.

An S-shaped piece of steel connecting the swing chain to the swing standard parted.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners, ordered an investigation.

Condemned by P. T.-A.

Bancroft playground has long been characterized by the Parent Teacher Association as a disgrace to the Bancroft School. Situated on a slope, the site has been criticized as ill adapted for playground use. A surfacing of clay frequently is worn off, exposing a subsurface of cinders, critics declare.

Infection in Mildred Dunn's arm has been attributed by some persons to the cinders.

Mrs. R. E. Elgen, president of the Bancroft Parent-Teacher Association, said yesterday that her organization had waged a campaign for improved and better playgroulnd facilities for about eight years.

Mildred is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dunn, 3510 Centre street northwest. She is given an even chance to recover, the hospital reports.

The equipment at the school ground is in charge of the school authorities, although the playground supervisor is supplied by the playgrounds department.

Inspection Rules.

Jere J. Crane, business manager of the District schools, said yesterday every effort is made to inspect the equipment daily, and that the swings are usually taken down each night. When replaced in the morning each swing is supposed to be carefully gone over, he said, but sometimes days may go by without thorough inspection of all the equipment.

He pointed out that equipment often is broken and mutilated by large children, especially rough playing boys.

He denounced vandalism on the part of half-grown boys who get into the playgrounds not protected by high fences.

There formerly was a fence around the Bancroft playground, but it was partly removed when the addition ot the school was built.

Crane characterized the breaking of the heavy metal S piece as a most unusual accident.

The playground supervisor rushed Mildred Dunn home when it was found the injury was beyond remedy by first aid.

Compensation Claimed.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunn yesterday filed a claim for compensation with the District. They mentioned no particular amount. They allege that equipment was faulty and that the girl's arm was infected by gas bacilli from the ground.

District investigators reported they knew of no gas in the playground, but said it might have come out of excavated land. Investigation so far, it is reported, has only shown that the S hook had been broken on the swing, and then replaced so that it came loose when the swing went high off the ground.

The Commissioners have the right to claim governmental function in the case and thus escape payment of damages. On the other hand, they can consent to be sued if an investigation shows District employes were to blame.

Dr. Reichelderfer's investigation is being handled by the claims division of the corporation counsel's office, which will also handle the claim for compensation.

Convicted Banker Wins Appeal Plea

Supreme Court Extends Right to Rosenberg.

The right to appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court was granted yesterday to I. J. Rosenberg, Milwaukee banker convicted of falsifying records. The appeal is to be filed with the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Justice Van Devanter, in granting the appeal, took no action toward staying sentence of the term imposed on Rosenberg. Rosenberg intends to surrender himself to the Wisconsin court to ask a stay, pending the appeal.

If the Wisconsin court should refuse the stay and release him on bond, Rosenberg will appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court for the stay, according to his attorney, William Hughes.

$150 Gems, Cash Stolen.

Jacob Non, 1606 Sixth street northwest, reported to police yesterday that money and jewelry valued at $150 were stolen from his home.

District Finds Bids on Sewer Third of Grant

Savings on Public Works Fund Expected to Aid Other Projects.

The District Engineer Department is expected to construct more sewers than was anticipated with the $1,719,500 public works grant, through savings on low bids.

Bids were opened yesterday on the first of the five projects. The lowest estimate was little more than a third of the grant.

The District asked and obtained $15,000 for the Upper Potomac interceptor, but the Charles J. Spielman Co., Baltimore, bid $5,165. Their bid was only $2.50 under that of the Brenizer Trucking Co., Washington.

Sanitary Engineer Gordon said the District auditor ruled informally that the $9,000 saved on this project may be applied to the outfall sewer extension. The estimate on this project is $220,500.

After all contracts have been let, Gordon said, any unused surplus may be devoted to building the second section of the Piney Branch relief sewer.

McGrady Hopeful Of Negro Outlook

Opportunity Better Than Ever Before, He Says.

"Opportunity, the greatest the colored man ever had, is his right now," Edward W. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor and Assistant NRA Administrator, last night told a Negro audience interested in labor organization at Lincoln Temple Congregational Church.

"The best way to obtain results," he said, "is for the Negro to join with his fellow man in a trade union. The Negro will and must receive his portion of the benefits along with all other groups."

A. Philip Randolph, National president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, urged union organization of Negroes. He declared unless this is accomplished, the Negroes will be worse off at the end of the recovery administration than before.

Other speakers were Spencer Miller, jr., executive secretary of the Workers Educational Bureau of the American Federation of Labor, and M. P. Webster, chairman of the executive board of the porter's union. Dr. Charles H. Wesley, Howard University, presided.

Labor to Open Fight for U. S. Employe Pay

Lobby for 30-Hour Week Will Be Expanded in Next Congress.

A campaign to restore Government pay to preeconomy-act levels and eliminate living costs as a pay basis yesterday was added to the program for Federal employes' relief which the American Federation of Labor intends to carry to Congress.

The A. F. of L. convention agreed to expand the Government employes' lobbying campaign beyond the fight for a 30-hour week when it adopted a report from its resolutions committee headed by Matthew Woll.

The report recalled during the meeting of the federation's executive council in September members "called upon the President to urge him to restore the salary reduction at the earliest possible date * * * in conformity with the purpose of the recovery program."

Labor has insisted the Government should "lead the way back to recovery" by giving its own employes the working conditions and wages it is trying to impose on industry.

President William Green has announced he will throw the powerful labor lobby against Congress to obtain these restorations if the executives of the Government employes' organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L. consider the time ripe.

The meeting with the Government men is being delayed pending action today on other resolutions dealing with their welfare. These include one favoring establishment of a Civil Service court of appeals

Woodring Will Assist In Armistice Day Fete

Harry H. Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War, has accepted the chairmanship of the patrons' committee for the Armistice Day celebration of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, it was announced yesterday. Proceeds of the celebration and ball will be used in relief work.

Tickets and boxes already are on sale. Dr. A. Victor Cercell is chairman of the ticket committee and Walker Colston of the box committee.

Antinudists Force Official Inquiry Into Herndon Colony

Sheriff's Office Becomes Curious and Pollard Asks "Bare" Facts.

A 3-week-old nudist colony at Herndon, Va., has drawn fire from the American Anti-Nudity League and the attention of Fairfax County authorities.

A letter of protest, signed by Dr. Jane B. Coates, of Washington, executive director of the antinudity association, was sent to Gov. Pollard.

The governor took the matter under advisement, and jokingly said he wanted to get all of the "bare" facts in the case.

Tents had been erected last night on an 83-acre wooded tract near Herndon. Preparations are being made for permanent winter quarters. Twenty-five to 30 residents of Washington and Alexandria compose the camp membership.

Deputy Sheriff Vernon Cockrell, of Herndon, said he planned to visit the camp to see "what is going on." Arrests will be made, he said, if anyone is found "walking around naked."

Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson B. Farr has been asked to investigate activities at the colony and to authorize arrests if advisable, Cockrell said.

In her appeal to the governor, Dr. Coates declared:

"Virginia, of all States, has stood on its purity, nobility and cleanness of principles."

She inclosed a circular condemning nudism as a great insult to the womanhood of America.

Back to Life!

Murder Charge Dropped as "Dead" Man Revives.

Save for the fact that "John Elliott came back to life and is now living," as police of London Bridge, Va., put it, officers here would be looking for Austin Davis on a charge of murder, the Associated Press revealed yesterday.

As is now happens, the charge will be one of felonious assault with a sharp weapon.

Elliott was pronounced dead by a doctor and taken to an undertaking establishment, where he was found very much alive.

Faith Lauded In Columbus Day Address

Senator McCarran Talks at K. of C. Session on Explorer.

21 Diplomats at Spanish Embassy for the Exercises.

Courage of the type Christopher Columbus often displayed is needed in America today, Senator Patrick McCarran, Nevada, told Keane Council, Knights of Columbus, last night in Tenth street hall.

Several other ceremonies here yesterday commemorated the 441st anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

"Columbus was a great character," McCarran said. "His courage, fortitude and faith in himself was remarkable.

"Like Columbus, we must have faith in our Government and in our country. Thus we will inspire those in control of our destiny so that they may succeed. We must build and never tear down."

Other speakers included Patrick J. Haltigan, reading clerk of the House; Grand Knight Michael Racioppi and Father John J. Callaghan, Gaithersburg, Md.

Scott Speaks at Embassy.

Dr. James Brown Scott, director of Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, was the principal speaker at exercises in the Spanish Embassy attended by diplomats of 21 nations.

"This world of ours," Dr. Scott asserted, "is gradually making a discovery hardly less important than the great adventure of Columbus, that all peoples are so much alike the differences are negligible. America has shown the way to unite vast communities of people in a union of States.

Other speakers were Luis Martinez de Irujo, charge d'affaires of the Spanish Embassy, and Dr. Max Henriquez Urena, former foreign minister of the Dominican Republic.

Ritual Held at Statue.

State officers of the Knights of Columbus, deposited a wreath at the base of the Columbus statue in Union Station Plaza. Among the participants were Daniel J. Callahan, Washington, supreme treasurer of the organization, and Harold Jones, District deputy.

Mr. Callahan declared the ideals represented by Columbus "should be to all mankind an inspiration to noble conduct and performances."

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover eulogized the explorer in a radio talk.

The Rev. Ignatius Smith, Dominican prior, lauded Columbus at a Kiwanis Club meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

Board to Study Ban on Wards

District's Protest May Be Heard Monday.

The District Board of Public Welfare probably will be given a hearing Monday by the Fairfax School Board on the latter's threated ban on District wards.

Miss A. Patricia Morss, chief of the Child Welfare Division, yesterday conferred with C. T. Woodson, superintendent of Fairfax schools, regarding the board's action. She suggested that the District wards might be transferred to other schools in the county if any is overcrowded.

Woodson said he would present the District's request to be heard at the special meeting Monday. If the District can not be heard then, he said, he would arrange for a hearing at the regular board meeting November 6.

Marconi, Here, Phones His Daughter in Italy

Guglielmo Marconi yesterday telephoned his young daughter in Italy from the Hotel Mayflower, where the inventor of the wireless telegraph and Marchesa Marconi are staying.

The electrical wizard talked with Elettra Marconi at Biaroggio, Italy, telling her of the wonderful reception he has received in this country and saying he would return soon. He will leave Washington today.

Man Inquires to Rent Room, Leaves With $11

Mrs. Louise Beunham, rooming house proprietor, 54 Rhode Island avenue northeast, had a guest who made himself at home yesterday.

Mrs. Beunhan told police a well-dressed stranger came to her home to obtain a room. He asked if he might go upstairs. He left a few minutes later with $11 he had stolen from a purse in a bureau drawer, Mrs. Beunhan told police.

Lutz Elected Head Of Teachers Council

Paul E. Lutz, of Wilson Teachers College, was elected president of the Teachers Advisory Council at the annual organization meeting.

Miss Ethel Prince, Eastern High School, was named vice president; Thomas F. Ferry, Stewart Junior High School, secretary, and George J. Murray, Armstrong, treasurer.

Chief of Uncle Sam's Philatelic Agency Quits After Years Dealing With Collectors

M. L. Eidsness, Jr., to Write Book About Experiences in Building Up Money-Making Business for Government; Byrd Issue Going Fast.

The man who managed one of Uncle Sam's most profitable and fastest growing little business ventures resigned yesterday.

Michael L. Eidsness, jr., superintendent of the division of stamps of the Postoffice Department and chief of the philatelic agency, announced that he would enter private business.

He leaves the philatelic agency on its way to a new record for receipts from the sales of stamps to collectors.

Eidsness is not a stamp collector, but he is an authority on the subject. He plans to devote his leisure time to writing a book about vagaries of collectors he encountered.

Agency Grows Rapidly.

The agency which began as a one-man job in 1922 has grown so that a whole suite is planned for it in the new Postoffice Building.

The most beautiful stamp of all, he contends, is the sepia 30-cent buffalo.

The rarest United States stamp, he declared, is the 1919 inverted airplane. It was a two-color printing and a girl got a few sheets reversed. Only one sheet got into circulation. One good stamp of this kind recently sold for $3,300.

Although its profits will never balance the budget nor even make up the postal deficit, the philatelic agency is breaking all records this year, aided by issues of commemorative stamps and an increased interest in stamp collecting.

Orders Swamp Clerks.

At the agency, which is housed in the City Postoffice Building, clerks are over their heads in unfilled mail orders.

There is an over-the-counter business in the Little America stamps of the Byrd expedition, to carry letters from the Antarctic. Last Monday $7,500 worth of these 3-cent stamps were sold to collectors.

Since July 1, the beginning of the fiscal year, receipts from sales by the agency have totaled $132,000, with officials predicting a record year.

Some index of its growth and the growth of the stamp-collecting fever will be seen in the following record of receipts:

1922, $20,906; 1923, $105,317; 1924, $129,646; 1925, $108,813; 1926, $135,875; 1927, $176,157; 1928, $154,119; 1929, $283,983; 1930, $317,173; 1931, $254,797; 1932, $337,237; 1933, $302,619.

Bicentennial Set Record.

The fiscal year of 1932 holds the present record from receipts of commemorative issues in connection with the George Washington Bicentennial.

Second in demand to the Byrd issue is the special Graf Zeppelin air mail stamp which went on sale October 5. This stamp, in the 50-cent denomination, is being issued solely for use on mail carried on the flight of the Graf Zeppelin to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

Tomorrow another commemorative stamp will be placed on sale. This is a special issue of 5-cent stamps in honor of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko in recognition of his services during the Revolutionary War. Just 50,000,000 of this issue have been authorized.

Excess Stamps Used.

Many collectors put excess postage on the "first-day covers." Thus one stamp pays for the mail service, while the others represent a profit to the Government over the cost of printing and selling them.

Uncanceled stamps also represent a profit, officials pointed out, as they are not used for any postal service.

Poison Hides in Cosmetics, Warning to Beauty Seekers

Doctor Starts Campaign to Remove Harmful Ingredients.

Milady has 16 square feet of skin, enough to make a mat 2 feet by 8, and she uses it just like a doormat.

This is the opinion of Dr. Charles F. Pabst, chief dermatologist of the Greenpoint Hospital, Brooklyn, who is in Washington to aid a campaign for the removal of poisonous ingredients from cosmetics.

"Just now thousands of girls are trying to lose sun tans, which they worked so hard to acquire. In bleaching their skins they are taking a chance on losing their lives," he said.

Most cosmetics have poisonous ingredients that may cause blindness, paralysis or permanent skin blotches, he said.

He can tell of the ravages caused by rouge, lipstick, powder, eyebrow pencil, eyelash darkener, facial creams and hair dyes.

"In hair dyes, for instance," he said, "we find poisons of mercury, lead and silver nitrate, which cause eczema and dermatitis.

"In depilatories there is thallium acetate, which caused all the hair to fall out and sometimes inflicts paralysis. The amazing thing is that there is no antidotes known by medical science for thallium acetate poisoning.

Dr. Pabst, while chief dermatologist at the U. S. Naval Hospital at Norfolk, Va., during the World War discovered the prevalence of "athlete's foot."

Actually, he says, athlete's foot

is just another term for ringworm.

Facelifting is bad, he warns, because very often it causes gangrene and a sloughing of the skin.

He is prepared for a long campaign to put over a "new deal in cosmetics." After a 19-year fight he succeeded a few months ago in obtaining passage in the New York State Legislature of a bill requiring manufacturers to put poison tablets in distinctive bottles labeled "poison."

Two Bakeries Give Data in Price Quiz

Six Others Due to Submit Books to Lynch.

Two of Washington's eight larger bakeries yesterday submitted to Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert E. Lynch data on their manufacturing, distributing and administration costs in connection with the bread price inquiry.

The Continental and the General bakery chains were the first to comply, but others are expected to furnish information today. Lynch has promised trade scerets will not be divulged.

The District investigator may check the books before making his report to Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, early next week.

Hughes' Grandson Wins Amherst College Prize

Henry Stuart Hughes, grandson of Chief Justice Hughes and son of Charles Evans Hughes, jr., was awarded the Porter Prize at Amherst College, it was announced yesterday.

The prize, a donation of the late Eleazer Porter, is given yearly to the freshman ranking highest in examinations on an ancient language, English and mathematics.

Washingtonians Favor "Keep Healthy Week"

Resolutions indorsing The Post-Y. M. C. A. "Keep Healthy" Week, now in progress, were adopted last night at a meeting of the Washingtonians in the Brighton Hotel.

The organization voted to demand a study of "abnormal traffic congestion" at busy intersections. Elimination of left-hand turns in the business district was recommended.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., spoke in behalf of the Community Chest and Thomas P. Littlepage urged support for the NRA.

Bond Default Kept Secret, Pecora Says

Dillon Firm Concealed Failure by Brazil, Probers Told.

Near $4,000,000 Profit in Five Flotations Is Disclosed.

Dillon, Read & Co., recipient of millions in profits from South American bonds they floated, deliberately concealed the fact when one of the issues defaulted, the Senate Banking Committee was informed yesterday by Ferdinand Pecora.

Interest on a $25,000,000 Brazilian issue was paid off from a $500,000 "cushion" in New York, and no inkling given to bondholders that Brazil had failed to deliver the money, the committee counsel charged.

The $25,000,000 issue, intended to finance electrification of the Central Railway of Brazil, was one of five South American bond flotations, netting Dillon, Read & Co. nearly $4,000,000 in profits, investigated at yesterday's hearings.

Hayward on Stand.

With Robert O. Hayward, Dillon, Read & Co. partner, on the stand, Pecora brought out that not one dollar of the $25,000,000 actually went for railroad electrification.

He later developed that more than $5,000,000 from loans made Bolivia by the New York banking house ultimately was paid to the British firm of Armstrong & Vickers for purchase of ammunition.

Charging Dillon, Read & Co. misled bondholders into presuming Brazil deposited funds for June 1, 1931, interest on the Central Railway issue, Pecora read from a letter sent the Brazilian consul general by the New York house.

It stated in part that American holders of the Brazilian bonds "presumed and still presume the payment of interest on that date was met by funds remitted from Brazil."

Denies Actual Default.

Interest actually was paid from a $500,000 fund Brazil left with the company for emergency purposes, so Hayward contended "technically" Brazil had not defaulted.

Pecora said the company's announcement of interest payment had operated to firm the market for the bonds. He presented in evidence a cable to Brazil to this effect.

Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, joining Pecora in questioning the witness, charged Dillon, Read & Co. had "fooled" bondholders into thinking the issue was not in default.

Earlier the witness told of a 60-day trading account established by Dillon, Read & Co. in a $50,000,000 Brazilian bond issue brought out in 1921 with $25,000,000 at a time.

Hayward testified Dillon, Read & Co. made more than $1,400,000 in gross profits from this issue, about $468,000 of the amount going to the Eastern Trust Co., owned by the former firm.

Other Profits Revealed.

Other bond profits amassed by Dillon, Read & Co. included $1,038,998 from the $25,000,000 Central Railway of Brazil issue; $598,789 from a $41,500,000 Rothschilds & Sons Brazilian issue in which Dillon, Read & Co. participated; and $573,360 from a $14,000,000 loan to Bolivia, Hayward testified. Associates of the banking house profited millions in excess of that amount, it was testified.

Pecora plans this morning to conclude his inquiry into Dillon, Read & Co. He will place on the stand this afternoon Howard C. Hopson, Associated Gas & Electric Co. official.

Tributes Paid To Memory Of Newlands

Fountain Honoring Late Nevada Senator Dedicated.

The late Senator Francis G. Newlands, of Nevada, was described yesterday afternoon, in the dedication of a new fountain in Chevy Chase Circle to his memory, as one who had done much "to make the Capital City of the Nation one of the most beautiful in the world," by Arno B. Cammerer, who accepted it for the Government.

The fountain, a gift of family, friends and admirers of the late senator, was dedicated before an audience which included Mrs. Newlands, Charles Moore, chairman of the U. S. Commission of Fine Arts, who delivered the principal address, and Director Cammerer, of National Parks.

The fountain was designed by Edward W. Donn, jr. On it are inscribed the words, "His statesmanship held true regard for the interests of all men."

Fought for City Plan.

In accepting the memorial, Cammerer declared, "Senator Newlands played a public-spirited part in accomplishing this (the Washington plan of 1901), battling with indefatigable energy in Congress for the approval of the plan, supporting various projects under it, and helping in every way possible."

Appreciation also was expressed for State line markers on Connecticut avenue placed by the Garden Club of America and for shrubbery provided by Maryland garden clubs.

Senator Newlands was prominent in the development of both the city and adjoining Chevy Chase. He was one of the founders of the community.

Entered Senate in 1903.

Born in Mississippi in 1848, the late senator moved to Illinois, attended Chicago High School, Yale College and Columbia College Law School, now a part of George Washington University. Admitted to the bar in 1869, he practiced law in the West. After serving in the lower house of Congress he was elected to the Senate in 1903, serving until his death in 1917. He was buried in Oak Hill Cemetery.

81 Vocational Workers Remain After Merger

The 81 employes of the Federal Board for Vocational Education were given 90-day appointments on October 1, 10 days before the board was merged with the Office of Education of the Interior Department, it was learned yesterday.

The merger became effective October 10. It is expected that those employes of the board to be retained will be given permanent berths on expiration of the 90 days, while the others will be dropped.

Engineer Hurt As Train Starts

Struck by Bar Near Track of Capital Limited.

As Engineer Thomas Collins, 61, 324 H street northeast, leaned from his locomotive cab on the Capital Limited as it crawled through the Baltimore & Ohio yards here toward Chicago last night, he was hit on the head by a bar which extended near the window.

Partly stunned by the blow, Collins brought the train to the L Street Station, where he was removed from the cab and taken to Emergency Hospital. His condition is serious.

A substitute engineer took the train West.

Alexander Placed In $15,000 Bond

Pleads Not Guilty in Zimmerman Attack.

Robert Alexander, 20, colored, 1731 S street northwest, charged with wounding Mrs. Louise Zimmerman in an attempted holdup, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to kill at Police Court yesterday.

Waiving a preliminary hearing, he was bound over to the grand jury on $15,000 bond by Judge John P. McMahon.

Mrs. Zimmerman is in a serious condition at Emergency Hospital with a slashed throat received October 5 when a colored man entered her bakery shop at 1706 Seventeenth street northwest and attacked her.

G. W. Eleven Rules Choice in Battle With Big Clemson Team Tonight

Fleet Backs In Colonials' Line-Up

Pixlee to Start "Jack-Rabbit" Quartet in Nocturnal Game.

Hard-Running Clemson Attack Is Headed by Cathart.

BRISTLING with fight, energy, enthusiasm, or whatever makes a football team bristle, George Washington indulged in its final workout yesterday prior to tonight's engagement with Clemson at Griffith Stadium. A lengthy, though not particularly hard session that lasted until dusk enveloped the field, put the team on edge for the impending test.

A few hours after the last echo of G. W.'s cleats had died away, Coach Jess Neely arrayed the Southerners under the arc-lights for a light, limbering up drill. It was the team's first taste of gridiron night life, and the players appeared to enjoy it.

Seeking Third Win.

Riding high on the crest of a winning streak, George Washington is seeking its third consecutive victory. The Colonials defeated Catawba in their opening game of the season and followed through with a smashing triumph over North Dakota. The team is reputedly the best in the history of the downtown school.

Held to a 6-6 tie in its first game, Clemson's Tigers were swept off their feet by the Golden Tornado from Georgia Tech, losing by the lop-sided score of 39-2. But a striking reversal of form was noted last week when Clemson, fighting with its back to the wall, staved off North Carolina State's determined attack to win, 9-0.

George Washington will concede a few points to Clemson in weight, but nothing in speed and agressiveness. The Colonials' impressive victory over North Dakota last week served to boost the odds in their favor tonight.

Coach Jim Pixlee will start his "jack-rabbit" backfield, comprised of Ben Plotnicki, quarterback; "Nig" McCarver and "Tuffy" Leemans, halfbacks, and Chris Doose, fullback. All except Doose are triple-threat men. His strong suit is line-plunging. McCarver and Doose are the only veterans in the quartet, the others having come up from the freshman team.

Sid Kolker and Phil Kline, the only District men on the squad, also are to see heavy duty. It will be Kolker's varsity debut before a local audience, as he did not get in to the Catawba game. He is considered on par with Volkman and Deming, regular tackles. Kline is a fullback.

Capt. Fred Heinemann, guard, is the outstanding lineman in the camp of the invaders.

Strong Running Attack.

Clemson will exhibit a powerful running attack built around its half backs, Stevens and Cathart, and Full Back McGown. Stevens does the kicking and passing in addition to his ball carrying. Either Woodward or Willimon will start at quarter back, with the edge in Woodward's favor because of his experience.

Clemson's Cadet Corps will lend a West Point atmosphere to the game, parading on the gridiron before the opening kick-off. Between halves a crack drill platoon, champion R. O. T. C. unit, will give an exhibition. A display of fireworks before the start and between halves is scheduled.

Probable Line-Up.

Foxx Again Voted As 'Most Valuable'

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Jimmie Foxx, slugging king of the American League, today entered that select circle of players who twice have been named as "most valuable" to their team through the season's campaign, and stands by himself as the only one ever selected twice in succession for that honor.

In a brisk voting tussle with Manager Joe Cronin and Heinie Manush, of the championship Washington club, Foxx emerged with a cleancut margin.

"He is the greatest all-around ball player in the game today," Cronin said recently.

Babe Ruth failed to receive a vote for the first time since 1927. Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, was ranked fourth; Grove, fifth, and Charley Gehringer, of the Tigers, sixth. The vote:

Jimmy Foxx, Athletics, 74.
Joe Cronin, Nationals, 62.
Heinie Manush, Nationals, 54.
Lou Gehrig, Yankees, 39.
Lefty Grove, Athletics, 35.
Charley Gehringer, Tigers, 32.
Al Crowder, Nationals, 28.
Al Simmons, White Sox, 19.
Earl Whitehill, Nationals, 18.
Oscar Melillo, Browns, 12.
Sam West, Browns, 11.
Rick Ferrell, Red Sox, 9.
Bill Dickey, Yankees, 9.
Tony Lazzeri, Yankees, 6.
Joe Kuhel, Nationals, 5.
Earl Averill, Indians, 5.
Buddy Myer, Nationals, 5.
Mickey Cochrane, Athletics, 5.
Bob Johnson, Athletics, 5.
Ben Chapman, Yankees, 4.
Max Bishop, Athletics, 1.
Luke Appling, White Sox, 1.
Willie Kamm, Indians, 1.

Zaharias Wins; Was "Kneesy" Victory

Steele Drop-Kicked for Goal at Auditorium; Boesch Scores.

GEORGE ZAHARIAS drop-kicked Ray Steele for a field goal exactly 20½ minutes after the start of their wrestling match at the Auditorium last night. The end came after Steele had made a series of forward passes with the big hiss and boo decoy, one of which was intercepted by Referee "Zephyr" Burns, who used to be known as "Cyclone" before he slowed down.

Steele started the drop-kicking business early in the bout by planting his knee squarely in the middle of Zaharias' perfect 3.2 waistline. After that, anything went. Both wrestlers strangled, gouged, punched and grunted their way about the ring with reckless abandon.

Zaharias Gets Hold.

About midway of the bout, Zaharias obtained a combination strangle hold and eye gouge and dragged his opponent about the ring like a herring with Burns vainly pursuing him in an effort to diag nose the hold. By the time he caught up with them, Steele was pinned—but oniy for a two count Shortly thereafter he took anc ther two count, but managed to stagger majestically back to his feet and out of harm's way.

Steele Goes to Work.

Displaying those remarkable recuperative powers peculiar to rasslers, Steele then launched a tremendous counter-attack, which apparently had Zaharias as weak as the Nats' series' batting average. After being bounced around the mat like a rubber ball ever-so-many times, Zaharias called his knee into action, drop-kicking his opponent for the final score. Referee Burns made a feeble effort to control the boys, but he was as useless as a blind referee at a lip-reading contest. Some 4,000 spectators booed the contest.

Paul Boesch downed Jacques Humberto in 29 minutes in the semifinal, which started out like a nice, clean bout, but soon disillusioned the trusting. The finale was accomplished through the medium of a series of flying tackles.

In other bouts, Vanka Baleska pinned Frank Brunowicz in 10¼ minutes with a crotch hold and body slam, Swede Olsen disposed of George Hill in 16 minutes and Karl Davis threw Tiger Nelson in 16 minutes.

Centre Bows, 6-0, To Boston College

Newton, Mass., Oct. 12 (U.P.).—Boston College, playing its first hard game of the season, upset predictions by taking a 6-0 victory over Centre College in an intersectional contest on Alumni Field today.

The touchdown came late in the last period when a fighting but tired Centre team, handicapped by lack of substitutes, gave ground and Tom Blake, Boston College left half back, plunged over from the 1-yard line.

Port Chester Marathon Annexed by De Bruyn

Port Chester, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—Paul de Bruyn, German Olympic runner, today won the ninth annual Port Chester marathon, defeating 56 other starters in the 26-mile run from Morningside Heights, New York City, to this town, in Westchester County.

De Bruyn, representing the German-American Athletic Club, covered the distance in 2 hours, 40 minutes and 51 2-5 seconds, to cross the finish line 120 yards in front of Fred Ward, of the Millrose Athletic Association. Ward's time was 2:42.43.

Clemson Cadets, 600 Strong, Here

Clemson College's Cadet Corps, here for the Clemson-George Washington football game tonight, will parade down Pennsylvania avenue today to the Capitol, where it will be received by the South Carolina delegation.

Six hundred strong, with a 60-piece band at their head, the cadets arrived yesterday morning and are quartered at the Tourist Camp. Yesterday they visited the Bureau of Engraving and Printing and Arlington Cemetery. At Arlington they laid a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, and also one on the grave of Lieut. James McHugh, an alumnus of the school.

This morning the corps will parade to the State, War and Navy Building, where it will be reviewed by Secretary of War Dern and Gen. Douglas McArthur, chief of staff, after which it will proceed to the Capitol. Representative McMillan will receive the marchers at the Capitol.

Jockey Wins Five Races.

Newmarket, Eng., Oct. 12 (AP).—Gordon Richards today booted home five winners in the racing at Newmarket to raise his total for the year to 226 and bring him within 20 of the English record set by Fred Archer in 1885. He has 34 more days in which to get his 21 winners.

Coaches Place Blame for Deaths

Lax Supervision, Ignorance of Rules, Poor Medical Attention Cited.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP).—Lack of supervision, ignorance of the rules and poor medical attention today were blamed by the president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the football coaches for deaths from the game, which already total 10 for the season.

Maj. John L. Griffiths, athletic commissioner of the Western Conference and president of the N. C. A. A., said an investigation by his organization had shown those three factors to be responsible for the majority of the deaths, and that a campaign to "eliminate these faults" was being conducted.

Decline Is Noted.

A survey of the fatal injuries tends to show that the efforts of the coaches and of the N. C. A. A. are bringing some results. As compared with the total of 10 deaths this year, in 1932 on October 12 a total of 12 had been reported and three of them college players, as against only one college player this year.

Not one of the injuries this year was suffered in a regular game. Two resulted from blood poisoning, one of the cases developing from a lacerated knee which, the report to the Associated Press said, "was not considered serious until four days later."

The full list to date:

College—Hoot Wilson, 19, Guin, Ala., college freshman.

High school—Robert Burns Donohoo, 14, Salt Lake City; Dallas J. Hibsman, 13, Duncannon, Pa.; Malcolm Dale Crabaugh, 14, Mullan, Idaho; Daniel J. Rodden, 16, Chester, Pa.; Norman Panzatella, 18, Buffalo, N. Y.; Robert Larch, jr., 16, Athens, Ohio.

Maryland Hopes To Upset Tulane

Speeding through the cotton belt on its way to New Orleans, where it meets Tulane in an intersectional battle tomorrow, the Universtiy of Maryland football squad was in high spirits and confident of making a creditable appearance against the Green Wave. Twenty-seven players, with Coach Jack Faber in charge, left Washington early yesterday afternoon for the Crescent City.

Tulane rates a heavy favorite to send the Terps back home on the short score, but the fact does not worry Maryland. Against V. P. I. last week it also was the underdog, but played the Techmen to a standstill for three periods. Maryland is not only bent on holding its rival to a low score, but secretly cherishes the hope of pulling an upset.

3d Straight Triple For Jamaica Rider

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Dominating racing on the metropolitan turf for the third straight day, Earl Porter, 16-year-old Geneva, Ill., apprentice, today scored his third straight riding triple and his fourth of the Jamaica meeting to boost his total number of winners for the last 10 days to 14.

Three races were run before Porter, who led all jockeys at Rockingham Park with 40 winners, got started. Then in succession he won with Sheldon H. Fairbanks' Gold Step, William A. Gallagher's Quickstep and Isadore Seiber's Flying Dragon.

Lloyd Brown Traded for Cissell

Red Sox Send Former Nat to Tribe in Straight Player Deal.

BOSTON, Oct. 12 (Spl.).—The rebuilding of the Boston Red Sox received added momentum today with the trading of Pitcher Lloyd Brown to the Cleveland Indians in exchange for Shortstop Chalmers Cissell in a straight player deal.

The trade sends to the Cleveland Club its first left-handed pitcher in several years. Brown, a southpaw, won 9 and lost 16 games this season for the Browns and the Red Sox, the two lowliest clubs in the league.

Brown was a member of the Washington Club for five seasons before benig traded to St. Louis last winter in the deal that brought Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte to the Nats in exchange for Brown, Carl Reynolds and Sammy West.

Traded in Midseason.

In midseason, the Browns traded Brown to the Red Sox, who earlier had purchased Catcher Rick Ferrell from the St. Louis Club.

Cissell was one of the costliest rookies ever to come into the big leagues, the White Sox buying him several years ago at a price tag reported to be $125,000. Originally he was a shortstop, but this season he played at second base. An appendicitis operation kept him out of half of the Indians' games.

Cissell is expected to replace Johnny Hodapp at second base for Boston.

Cornell Leaves To Encounter Michigan

Varsity Line-Up Intact; Army's Gridmen Turn to Offensive.

(Associated Press.)

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Twenty-seven Cornell football players left Ithaca today for Ann Arbor, where they will meet the Michigan Wolverines, Big Ten champions, Saturday. Coach Gil Dobie named the squad after brief limbering up exercises this afternoon and indicated his varsity would remain unchanged.

Army on Offensive.

West Point, N. Y.—After spending three days working on a defense for the Illinois game ten days hence, Army's cadets turned to the offensive. In an effort to speed up the attack, Head Coach Gar Davidson used True and Groh, third-string backs. Groh's blocking was impressive and True's passing accurate. The Cadets regard the Delaware contest this week only as a warm-up for Illinois.

Off Day at Princeton.

Princeton, N. J.—Princeton's varsity, preparing for Williams, had an off day and was hard pressed to beat the second team, 12-6, in a half-hour scrimmage. The seconds outplayed the varsity by a wide margin in the early minutes, Louis Haggin, full back, scoring on a sweep around end. Later the first string improved and scored twice.

N. Y. U. Fundamentals.

New York—Howard Cann, of New York University, called off the usual Thursday scrimmage and drilled his squad for three hours on fundamentals and a defense against passes which Lafayette probably will use frequently. Charley Siegel replaced Nat Grossman in the quarter back post as Cann sought more speed.

Columbia Stresses Passes.

New York—Columbia, aiming past the Virginia game to the important clash with Princeton October 21, worked long and hard on forward passing, with Ed Brominski tossing the short, flat ones, and Cliff Montgomery the long tosses.

Haskell Team Arrives.

Philadelphia—Haskell's football squad arrived in Philadelphia tonight for its tussle under the floodlights tomorrow with Pop Warner's Temple Owls. Gush Welsh sent the visitors through a signal drill and limbering session at Temple Stadium.

THE favorites, Central and Eastern, plunge into the Washington 1933 public high school football series without further ado today when they meet at Central Stadium in the opening game, on which may hinge the ultimate selection of the champion.

Central, again coached by Burt Goggins, holds a slight edge with unbiased observers simply because Central has defeated two more opponents than the Lincoln Parkers. However, the interhigh games are a different proposition. Comparative analyses generally are useless.

Besides the game itself, the Kocsis-Keegin duel is eagerly awaited. Both can kick, pass and run with the leather, and have starred individually in all their games to date. Both elevens are imbued with the spirit to "Stop Keegin"—"Stop Kocsis." Joe Keegin scored both touchdowns last year to defeat the Columbia Heights entry, 13-0.

Dunlop, Nolan Ready.

Don Dunlop, of Central, and Tommy Nolan, of Eastern, are the dark horses in the back fields. It may be a wide end run or a slash over tackle by either one of these lads that will spell victory and defeat.

The forward walls appear to be about even in weight, but Central, due to its experience in playing four games to Eastern's two has a slight advantage.

Eastern will take the field with Keegin at full, Hawk Shaw and Joe Mills at halves and Nolan at quarter. Along the line, Thompson and Davis will hold down the wings; Campbell and Absher the tackles, Weirshem and Wolfe the guards, with Lewis in the snapper-back position.

Goggins will probably use King at quarter; Dunlop and Gass, his regular backs and Frank Kocsis at full. Wheedon and DeLisio will pair at the terminals. Hay and Holmes will line up at guards; Capt. Pistolis and Nicoloupolous at guards with Dunn at the pivot.

The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

| Eastern. | Position. | Central. |
|---|---|---|
| Thompson | L.E. | Wheedon |
| Campbell | L.T. | Hay |

Three other local scholastic elevens see action today. Devitt clashes with National Training on the latter's ground and Landon stacks up against Severn School at Severn Park, Md. A nearby Virginia battle that is arousing plenty of interest is the Washington-Lee-Warrenton embroglio at Ballston.

Grid Strike Looms At Texas Christian

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 12 (AP).—Texas Christian University may be without a football team within a few days.

With suspension for alleged hazing threatened some members, virtually the entire varsity squad has declared it will strike if any are disciplined.

"If any of us get kicked out on account of this all of us will go," declared Jack Graves, captain of the varsity.

Eighteen members were called before the university's discipline committee yesterday after it was discovered that on Tuesday night the hair had been clipped from the heads of several freshmen.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THE LOSS of that fifth and final game of the world series came high to Clark Griffith, of the Griffith Stadium Griffiths, who is out of pocket approximately $30,000 as a result of Mel Ott's home run that brought the series to a sad and rather premature end.

Thirty thousand simoleons would have been Griffith's end of the sixth game of the series had the Nats been able to prolong the competition and transfer the scene back to the Polo Grounds, where unbelieving New Yorkers would have trekked to see the club that could beat their Giants.

The wail of the banshee is but the murmur of a zephyr compared to the protestations of Griffith concerning the late and lamented series with the Giants, when the club stood to make a handsome profit if its athletes could stem the Giant tide until the sixth or seventh game.

Bulk Goes to Players.

The owners of the contending clubs shared only 6¼ per cent of the intake of the first four games, the bulk of which went to the players and the National Baseball Commission. Of all games played after the fourth, the respective club owners each were to draw down 25 per cent of the receipts. Thus Griffith and Owner Stoneham of the Giants drew the lion's share of only one game.

According to Griffith, it costs a pennant-winning club $20,000 to stage a world series. The new press box atop the Griffith Stadium roof called for a $5,000 expenditure, he said. Traveling expenses, tickets, additional office help and the entertainment of the press stood him $15,000, Griffith declared.

Foresees Wage Cuts.

Griffith quite agrees with the pronouncement by League President Harridge that expenses must be cut if the major league clubs are to show a profit in 1934.

"We had a better season in 1932, when the Washington team lost money," said Griffith. "But we didn't make as much money this year, when we won the pennant, as we did in other years when we didn't win it.

"So, if it's hard to show a profit with a pennant winner, something must be radically wrong. Harridge is right. Player salaries are still too high. There must be a lot of adjustments all the way down the line."

Okay, Mr. Griffith. I've heard, too, that the Washington club hasn't been paying any dividends in late years. But those salary checks to club officials have never been held up, as far as I know.

Bonus for Russell.

One of Mr. Griffith's hired hands, however, will not be included in the downward revision of salaries next season. The same is Jack Russell, whose relief pitching this year was one of the bright chapters of the Nats' successful campaign.

"There's a nice bonus waiting for Russell at my office any time he cares to call for it," said Griffith yesterday. "If any ball player deserved some recognition, it's Russell. He was one of the pleasant surprises to me."

No charge for the tip, Rusell.

Tilden Plans Net Tour For Himself and Vines

Montreal, Oct 12 (AP).—William T. Tilden 2d, dean of the United States tennis professionals, today completed plans for a series of matches in the forum here next spring between himself, Ellsworth Vines, jr., Henri Cochet and Martin Plaa.

Penn Ready for First.

Philadelphia—Penn's squad concentrated on defense in preparation for the opening game with Franklin and Marshall. Harvey Harman has decided on a starting line-up with the single exception of the quarter back post, where either Josiah McCracken, jr., or Bill Shanahan will be used.

Sun Abbot Scores by 1-2 Length in Laurel Juvenile Feature Before 10,000

Hugs Rail With Mount to Beat Out Believer in Feature Race.

Fans Boo Judges After Lone Hand Wins Over Everfair by Nose.

SUN ABBOT, 2-year-old son of Sun Briar, which only recently made good for Trainer Whyte, ran the best race of his young life to reach the sighting pole in front of a slick group of nine juveniles. The race was nameless but the feature of yesterday's program at Laurel, 10,000 fans, many celebrating Columbus Day.

It was only in the last strides that Jockey Duke Bellizzi worked Sun Abbot into the momentum necessary to take the decision by a margin of a half length from Believer, a J. P. Jones representative. Another half length away came Holystone, the favorite, for the show money.

Bellizzi must have known his mount. He hustled along in fifth position on the rush up the backstretch, while Time Off, Believer and Be Shy battled for the lead. Sun Abbot hugged the rail on the turn for the stretch and then set out to catch the then flying Believer.

Biff Wins Opener.

Biff, educated on the half-mile tracks, turned in a smashing race to beat the favored Off Duty and Slipper King in the opening dash for 2-year-olds. The race developed into a stretch duel but Biff and Jockey Williams put it over on Off Duty and Tipton. The winner was lukewarm in the betting and paid a $8.40 mutuel.

Don Meade and J. Fred Adams' Briar Blue teamed to win the second race, a swing of the mile and 70 yards for maidens. This pair wore down Golly in the stretch run. Post Brigade was third. There was a jam at the first turn which killed the chances of several in the field.

Zipalong followed Chatterdoo to the sixteenth pole and then zipped along under the whip of Tony Tipton to score a two-length decision in the third race. Luculent ankled from far back to take the show money.

Fans Boo Placing.

Lone Hand and Everfair finished inches apart in the fourth race and there was much booing when the judges announced the order. There was no doubt that Ruane was third. Renick, on Lone Hand, outrode Williams on Everfair after the latter appeared to have a winning lead at the quarter pole.

Wise Money and Ageis ran themselves into the ground in the sixth race and War Tide came from far back to win going away. In the final Deduce took a close decision from Charlie K. Young rode the last two winners.

Team Dances.

The Indianhead Cardinals will hold their fall dance Saturday night at Lackey High School from 10 till 1.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Strange as it seems, the railroads of America own more locomotives than they do passenger cars. This, however, can not be taken to reflect on the efficiency of the railroads, because in addition to the passenger cars owned by the railroads, there are more than 2,000,000 freight cars—about 40 for every locomotive of all types. On top of this there are nearly 10,000 Pullman cars to be hauled, to say nothing of switching all types of cars in the yards.

The figures are these: At the end of 1932 the American Railway Association reports that the various companies owned 53,217 locomotives of all types, and 49,353 passenger cars. There are 9,258 Pullman cars and about 2,000,000 freight cars in service.

Just why it happens science can only theorize, but it has been shown by demonstration that an ordinary hen's egg can be soft-boiled without the application of heat—if there is enough of the right kind of noise available. This was shown by Drs. E. W. Florsdorf and L. A. Chambers before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

A raw egg, subjected to a sharp sound for a few minutes, took on the appearance of having been soft boiled. The theory is that the albumen, which is hardened normally by heat, undergoes a similar chemical reaction because of vibrations caused by the sound.

Catholic U. Team Prepared for Invasion of Tricky St. John's Eleven Tomorrow

Capital Boys To Oppose Cardinals

Bergman Drives Players in Final Strenuous Drill of Week.

Coach Hoping to Give Gearty Brothers and Nally a Rest.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY indulged in its last hard workout before the St. John's game yesterday, Coach "Dutch" Bergman driving the squad until dark. Today will be given over to comparatively easy work, as the C. U. mentor feels that his men are well prepared for the invaders.

Reserve players will dominate the Cardinals' line-up tomorrow. This is not to be construed as meaning that Bergman regards St. John's too lightly. He simply is anxious to get some idea of the worth of his reserves and at the same time give the battered regulars a much-needed rest.

Gearty's Need Rest.

The Gearty brothers—"Babe" and Tom—particulary are in need of a respite from their ball-carrying duties after rough treatment by Holy Cross. Tom Nally, right tackle, is another who will appreciate watching the game from the bench rather than across from a burly opponent.

St. John's will invade Brookland with a bagful of tricks to spring on its host. A fast, deceptive attack, engineered by a group of backs who have improved rapidly since the opening game of the season. The Bay City aggregation pulled its punches on Gallaudet last week and still won a decisive margin.

Prominent in the visitors' line-up will be five Washington boys who learned and played the game at local high and prep schools before entering St. John's. Angus Lamond, a guard, is the outstanding member of this group.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

Treasury No. 2 slipped into a tie for the lead with the Agriculture Juniors last night in the Ladies Federal League at the Arcadia alleys. Miss Suschine, of Commerce, had high of the night, rolling a 131 game. Miss Sederline, of Treasury, lead with a high set of 353. Treasury No. 2 had high team game and high team set of 527 and 1,450, respectively.

In the Inter-Sorority League at the Columbia alleys, Miss Helen Manger, Pi Sigma No. 4, captured high individual game, rolling 103. Miss Catherine Bech, of the same team, had high individual set with 321. Delta Alpha received high team game honors with a 470 game, while Pi Sigma No. 4's 1,309 set was high for the evening.

Dennehy's 146 game and 408 set topped all the individual scores in the War Department League. Hydrographic gained high game with a 569, while Barbettes' team game of 1,097 was unsurpassed.

Paul Harrison showed signs of reaching his midseason form early this year at the Arcadia alleys in the District League when the fast-moving Arcadia Team took two out of three from the Georgetown Team. Harrison's high game of 174 and set of 402 is an early season record which is likely to stand for some time. Schlegel led the Georgetown Team with a high game of 130 and set of 356. Other matches resulted in the Beacon Sign Co. winning two games from Hyattsville, Temple sweeping Convention Hall, King Pin taking the odd tilt from Lucky Strike and Occidental winning two-out of three from Columbia.

Tomorrow night, Fred Buchholz will trot out his District League champions, the crack Occidental crew, to battle the formidable Lexingtons, of Baltimore. Turned back in both their previous Washington engagements, the Oriole aggregation composed of Lou Knocke, Henry Penn, Doc Pickus, Wilmer Robey and Temple Keene are out to make their first win a notable one. The Occidentals will have five of the first-ranking sharpshooters in Brad Mandley, Joe Harrison, Earl McPhilomy, Astor Clarke and Dutch Newman.

The first block of the special mixed match between Margaret Leaman Lynn and Paul Harrison against Ollie Pacini and Katharine "Sammy" Forteney will be staged tomorrow night at the Temple alleys. The second block will be staged on Monday night at Arcadia. Both matches are scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m.

Roosevelt vs. Alexandria.

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Alexandria High School will open its home season at Baggett's Stadium tomorrow at 3 p. m., facing Roosevelt High School, of Washington.

The Alexandria High School Pep Club will give a series of exhibitions in acrobatic stunts before the game and at the half period.

Barry Next Foe Of McCorkindale

Donald (Reds) Barry, local heavyweight, will be given another opportunity to twinkle in the upper fistic firmament October 23, when he meets Don McCorkindale, latest foreign importation, at the New York or Boston Madison Square Garden.

The outcome of the bout will probably determine the ring future of Barry, who flashed briefly across the big-time horizon last winter only to fade out dismally during the summer. McCorkindale, a native of South Africa, made an auspicious debut in this country by pounding out a neat decision over the highly regarded Patsy Perroni at the New York Garden last week.

2 Chevy Chase Women Tie In Golf

Miss Claytor, Mrs. Wrong Will Battle Today for Crown.

MISS LOUISE CLAYTOR and Mrs. Hume Wrong, with 36-hole totals of 182 each, tied for the women's golf championship at Chevy Chase yesterday and will play off for the title at 10 a. m. today.

At the end of the first 18-hole round Wednesday, Miss Claytor and Mrs. Wrong were encamped in third place, each with 93s. Yesterday both showed marked improvement over their first day's place and registered 90s.

Mrs. Harrison Brand added a 91 to her 92, to clinch third place with 183, while Miss Susan Hacker, twice champion, who led the field with an 89 at the halfway mark, cracked up badly and took 95 strokes, finishing fourth with a 184 total. Miss Hacker, who was seeking her third straight title, meandered into trap after trap and lost her putting touch.

Mrs. Y. E. Booker had a 95—97—192, and Mrs. Landra B. Platt scored a 94 after shooting a 100 the first day.

Stringer Takes Honors.

J. Fred Stringer, Beaver Dam golfer, posted an 81—2—79 to capture the major prize in the annual Union Printcraft golf championship that ended yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club.

Edgar Heimer, also of Beaver Dam, won second prize with 90—5—85, while Charles Ficco, with 91—2—89, and Frank Thornburg, with 96—7—89, tied for third.

In Class B, John J. Callahan, with 95—3—92, annexed first prize. Three tied for second. They were M. M. Northern, each with nets of 93.

L. Hunt, with 107-4—103, took first prize in Class C. Ed Lowry, with 109-5—104, won second, and R. Alexander, third with 116-10—116.

Bond Gains Finals.

S. S. Bond reached the finals of the annual Kenwood Golf and Country Club seniors championship yesterday by defeating W. C. Henderson, 4 and 3.

Results:

W. F. Smith beat G. A. Smith, 5 and 4; L. D. Dunahoe beat A. H. Tew, 1 up; O. E. Tew beat J. E. Hutchinson, 3 and 2; C. R. Brown beat Royce Ruess, 3 and 2; E. A. Rule beat F. M. Newberry, 2 up; S. S. Bond beat A. B. Combs, 3 and 2; J. J. Deady beat G. H. Buckingham, 2 and 1; W. C. Henderson beat S. C. Cole 1 up.

Smith beat Drinkwater, 8 and 7; Bond beat Rule, 4 and 2; Henderson beat Deady, 5 and 4.

Bond beat Henderson, 4 and 3.

Mrs. L. H. Hedrick and Mrs. John Rogers yesterday reached the finals of the golf tournament for wives of officers of the Army War College Club. Mrs. Hedrick, medalist, defeated Mrs. L. H. Hewitt, 2 and 1, and Mrs. Rogers eliminated Mrs. A. E. Dedicke, 2 and 1.

Semifinal results in the four flights:

First flight—Mrs. L. H. Hedrick beat Mrs. J. W. Hewitt, 2 and 1; Mrs. John Rogers beat Mrs. A. E. Dedicke, 2 and 1.

Second flight—Mrs. John Conklin beat Mrs. J. C. H. Lee, 2 and 1; Mrs. F. L. Purdon beat Mrs. Hurdis, 2 up.

Third flight—Mrs. T. Brinson beat Mrs. J. V. Henry, 4 and 3; Mrs. O. H. Saunders beat Mrs. T. J. J. Christian, 3 and 2.

Fourth flight—Mrs. H. E. Taylor beat Mrs. T. Morrow, 3 and 2; Mrs. F. Bisbert beat Mrs. G. H. Wainwright, 4 and 3.

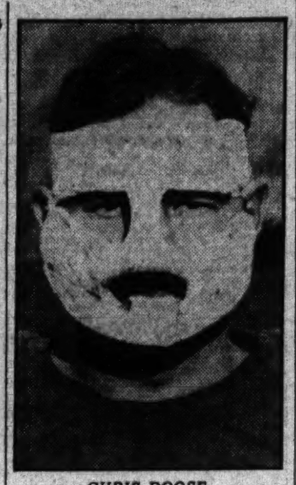
G. W. Back, His Nose Broken, To Play in Aluminum Mask

Pixlee's Inventive Genius Saves Football Life of Chris Doose.



CHRIS DOOSE.

"THE Man In the Iron Mask," De Maupassant's fabled character, languished behind bars throughout the celebrated French author's lengthy tale. The man in the iron mask on George Washington's football team threatened to languish on the bench all season without participating in a single game.

But two weeks ago Coach Jim Pixlee effected the release of Chris Doose from the sidelines of the Colonials' football campaign, prodded by that self-same urge that has made necessity the mother of invention down through the ages. The invention in this case took the form of a mask, an iron mask for the sake of the analogy, an aluminum mask for the sake of the truth.

Chris Doose will be at the full back post for the Colonials against Clemson tonight because of the inventive genius of Coach Pixlee, who fashioned for him a facial mask that amply protects a broken nose that apparently wrote "finis" to Doose's football career.

Realizing that the nature of Doose's injury made it impossible for him to wear an ordinary protector, Pixlee made a pattern of the player's face on paper. He molded the mask in aluminum, which was hammered into a perfect fit. This he upholstered with soft rubber and finished with a covering of tape. Now Doose takes the hardest jolts.

The mask is but one of Pixlee's numerous inventions in football equipment. They range from shoulder pads for serious injuries, which he refers to as "horse collars," because that's what they resemble, to inside belts on hip pads to keep them in their proper position. Small squads forced the G. W. coach to turn inventor. He had to keep injured players in training to prevent minor injuries from becoming serious.

A sporting goods manufacturer is marketing a headgear, shoulder pads and several other articles designed by Pixlee.

Notre Dame to Take Six Quarters to Game

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 12 (AP).—Still foiled in his search for a real quarterback, Coach Hunk Anderson tonight decided to take six of them along for the Indiana game in an attempt to produce a real star out of the lot.

Forty-one players will make the trip to Bloomington for Saturday's battle against the Hoosiers. Don Elser, sophomore star, will start at full back instead of the injured Steve Banas.

Gonzaga Wins Over Riders By 18-0

GONZAGA defeated Roosevelt's Rough Riders yesterday at Gonzaga Stadium, 18-0. The game was featured by Jack Boyle's brilliant 90-yard run for touchdown in the first period that decided the issue.

Roosevelt worked the ball down to the Purple's 10-yard line, but Boyle, Gonzaga full back, intercepted a forward pass and galloped 90 yards for the score.

Early in the third period Luebkert plunged over the line from the 6-yard mark to score the second touchdown. Successive plunges by Moore, Luebkert and Boyle brought the ball in scoring position.

The final touchdown was made in the last period when Moore flipped a 20-yard pass to Luebkert, who sprinted the remaining 8 yards to the goal line.

| Gonzaga. | Position. | Roosevelt. |
|---|---|---|
| Munhall | L.E. | Basiko |
| Deenihan | L.T. | O'Connell |
| Thibaudeau | L.G. | Sheehan |

|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Gonzaga | 6 | 0 | 6 | 6 | —18 |

3 Games Scheduled By Georgetown Frosh

Georgetown's Freshmen football team will play a schedule of three games this season, two of them with local schools. St. Xavier's High School, of Brooklyn, N. Y., which furnished eight members of the current yearling eleven at the Hilltop, will open the schedule on October 28, playing Washington. The game will be played in the morning, as the varsity encounters William and Mary in the afternoon.

Devitt Prep is the next opponent, the game being listed for November 4. The final game is scheduled November 25 with Maryland Frosh at College Park.

Schmeling to Return After Yule Holidays

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion of the world, today cabled from Germany to his manager, Joe Jacobs, that he had changed his plans and would not return to the fistic wars until after the Christmas holidays.

Schmeling now plans to come to New York in January to fulfill an engagement for the Milk Fund, which aided in the promotion of his three championship fights, against either Tommy Loughran or King Levinsky. The bout originally was scheduled for December.

Moore Brothers Drive In Bel Air Auto Race

Bel Air, Md., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Don Moore, veteran dirt track auto driver, and his brother, Frank Moore, both of Washington, have filed entries for the A. A. A. sanctioned eastern championship race that closes the Hartford County fair Saturday.

Don Moore has been campaigning over American tracks for the past 20 years, since he was 18. Frank Moore has been piloting the speed cars just one year during which he has shown great promise. Two weeks ago the Moores ran one, two in a sweepstakes event at Lehighton, Pa.

Practice and Play.

The Centennial football squad will meet at the clubhouse at 7 o'clock tonight in practice for Sunday's game against the Northeast Boys' Club. Only those who report for this practice will be allowed to play Sunday, and players must weigh in to be eligible for the game.

Hampden-Sydney Seeks State Title

Hampden-Sydney, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Gunning for a State championship, Charlie Bernier, dean of Virginia coaches, will lead his Hampden-Sydney Tigers from "Death Valley" tomorrow morning to Wytheville, where the team plays Emory and Henry Saturday afternoon in a game that has an important bearing on the State title race.

Bernier appears to have his best team in years. The club is being pointed for the Emory tussle. If the Tigers beat Emory, their followers believe they will go undefeated through the remainder of the season.

An experienced line and a heavy, speedy backfield will be employed against Emory and Henry. The backs are headed by Humphries, whose sensational running has marked the first two games.

Whitney Wives Fail To Win in Hunt Race

Roslyn, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—The riding duel between feminine members of the Whitney family was staged at the United Hunts meeting today, but Mrs. Geraldyn Redmond, riding the lightly regarded Debenture from Townsend B. Martin's stable, won the race.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, piloting her own bay gelding, Range Finder, managed to save a portion of the spoils for the well-known family. She finished a length back of Mrs. Redmond in second place. Mrs. C. V. Whitney, riding her husband's speedy stake winner, Halcyon, was never in the race, however, crossing the line sixth in the field of eight.

Shenandoah Is Ready For St. Alban's School

Winchester, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Shenandoah Valley Academy gridmen, who started their season last Saturday by holding the heavy Shepherdstown (W. Va.) High School eleven to a 0-0 tie, are primed for their annual tilt Saturday afternoon with St. Alban's School, of Washington, D. C. The game will be played here.

Rider Attacks Another at Frederick

More Than 8,000 Persons, Largest Crowd in Years, Witness Races.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—More than 8,000 persons witnessed the races at the fair this afternoon. It was the third and big day of the annual exhibition, and the crowd was the largest in several years. Typical autumn weather prevailed and the track was fast.

One of the most unusual occurrences ever witnessed at the local track occurred in the fifth and last running race. As the horses, closely bunched, came down the home stretch, the riders on Zebra, owned by R. Crawford, West Chester, Pa., and Wild Olive, owned by Tom Riley, York, Pa., grasped the bridle of each other's mount. The incident was instantly detected by the judges, as well as a large number of persons in the grandstand. Zebra finished a nose ahead of Wild Olive, but the judges promptly disqualified both horses and the heat went to Saucy Victor, owned by A. Mucciola, Hopewell, N. J., who came third. Espada, owned by R. M. S. Feltner, Berryville, Va., second, and Big Pete, a brown gelding owned by Mrs. James H. Cramer, this city, third. One of the riders of the disqualified horses attacked the other in front of the judges' stand, but a State officer prevented trouble.

Episcopal to Oppose McGuires Saturday

Alexandria, Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Episcopal High School will play McGuire's School of Richmond, Saturday on Hoxton Field at 2:30 p. m. Coach Cardwell's team has improved greatly since the beginning of the season. Capt. Billy Gooch, star half back, injured in last week's game with Tech, probably will see action.

Generals Entrain For Game at Yale

Lexington, Va., Oct. 12 (Spl.).—Twenty-five Washington and Lee football players, their coaches, managers, and trainer, left here tonight for New Haven, where they will meet Yale Saturday.

With his injured list at a new low, Coach Tilson took with him the two best full teams he has been able to muster this season, an extra pair of good backs, and a single additional end. Those making the trip are: Guards, Capt. Amos Bolen, Tom Boland, Dick Gumm, and Lewis Martin; centers, George Glynn and Edward Seitz; tackles, Bill Dyer, Bill Grove, Hugo Bonino, and Clarence Carman; ends, Charlie Smith, Bud Hanley, Jay Hawthorne, Bill Ellis, and Charles Mower; backs, Joe Sawyers, Sam Mattox, Joe Arnold, Jack Bailey, Sam Todd, Bill Seaton, Frank Simmons, John Jones, John McFadden and Charles Wilkerson.

Maryland-Virginia Frosh Elevens Meet Saturday

With the varsity team in the south, Maryland's freshman eleven will have the field to itself tomorrow when it faces the Virginia freshmen at College Park. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

The Old Line Club team is comprised chiefly of Washington youths. Six District youths, Ed Quigley, Wallace Gramlach, Ed Fletcher, Danny Carr, Johnny Guckeyson, and Johnny Gormely, will make their debut in Maryland livery. The team is husky, as its average weight of 185 pounds will attest.

Hampden-Sydney Star Is Kept Out by Injury

Hampden-Sydney, Va., Oct. 12 (AP).—A leg injury to Fullback White will keep him out of the starting Hampden-Sydney College lineup Saturday in the Tigers engagement with Emory and Henry at Wytheville, athletic authorities announced today.

Humphries will start at full, with Douglass and Capt. Spotswood at the halves and Daughtrey calling the signals. A squad of 25 players will make the trip.

G. U. Students Cheer Team At Rally

Hilltop Eleven Invades New York for Manhattan Game.

SENSING an opportunity to redeem its shattered grid reputation, Georgetown's squad will depart for New York this afternoon in high spirits and determined to take the measure of Manhattan, whom it meets tomorrow at Ebbett's Field, Brooklyn. A brief workout is slated at the Hilltop before the team entrains.

Victim of an inspired Canisius eleven on a rain-soaked field at Buffalo last week, Georgetown will make its first bid for recognition after a disastrous 1932 season that saw its fortunes decline to their lowest ebb. Football at Manhattan is on the upgrade, and with wily Chick Meehan at the helm, the school is gradually rising to the top flight in the grid world.

Students Hear Hagerty.

A gigantic pep rally last night at the Hilltop buoyed up the team spirits. A victim of superstition, Coach Jack Hagerty could not be induced to address the gathering personally. But Hagerty spoke over the radio while the rally was in progress, so an alert student tuned in on the station, placed a loud speaker in a position where all could hear, and Hagerty unwittingly voiced his confidence in the squad to the players.

Mack Stanley, Gildo Rosso, Frank Del Vecchio and Joe Mylnarski, all of whom were injured last week, reported back yesterday, but it is doubtful if any will see action. Stanley particularly will be missed because of his kicking. Capt. Fred Callahan, center, will drop back from the line to do the punting.

The starting line-up for the fray in all probability will be Chappa and Muti, ends; Becker and Katalinas, tackles; Saur and Walacavege, guards; Callahan, center; Saverine, quarter back; Viskovich and Herron, half backs; Bradley, full back.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Weary Great.

The great man to our village came, on divers topics to be heard, and he was loaded down with fame, his surname was a household word. He's journeyed in a creaking train for seven hundred miles or six; such travel is a grievous strain that puts a great man in a fix. And there were cinders in his hair, and ashes in his eyes and nose; he was inclined to weep and swear, as gentle readers may suppose. He longed to have a quiet room where he might wash his face and neck, and slumber in its tranquil gloom, and feel less like an auto wreck. He longed for silence and repose, for solitude, unbroken rest, so when he faced his friends and foes he might confront them at his best. But when the train came rolling in the whole blamed town was gathered there, and there was an unholy din that filled the great man with despair. The village band, all out of tune, was there with fifes and flutes and drums, to play the "Banks of Bonnie Doon," and "See the Conquering Hero Comes." There were committees on the spot to show the great man through the town, and sell to him a corner lot, if he would pay five dollars down. A big procession had been formed, the great man had to walk in front, while all the cheering voters swarmed to do their part in such a stunt. Some great man suffers thus today, in some small town he grinds his teeth, and he'd be glad to give away his fame, his toga and his wreath.

Sale by State Is Rockefeller Rum Solution

Survey Lists Advantages; Asserts "Emotion" Is Behind Objections.

New York, Oct. 12 (AP).—The best solution of the alcohol problem, the Rockefeller study said today, requires elimination of private profit in retail sales.

"This can not conceivably be accomplished under a license system," the study declared. "If we sincerely wish to meet only an unstimulated demand for alcohol, we can no longer leave to any individual a stake in its retail sale."

The private profit motive, the study said, can be eliminated most effectively by State control.

Lists Arguments.

The principal merits in State control were listed as:

"It would effectively stifle the profit motive for enlarging liquor sales.

"It would facilitate control of advertising. It would provide freedom of action in regulating prices and conditions of sale.

"It would eliminate the saloon. It would minimize the opportunities for political interference. It would keep clear the road for temperance education."

Declaring that such an authority is "an automatic cure-all for the evils associated with liquor," the survey warned that "bad management and corruption are real dangers."

Sees New Age of Government.

Pointing out that "we have grown into a new age and governments have embarked on all types of business ventures," the survey said "there are plenty of precedents for this new type of liquor control."

The survey said the "objection that the authority plan puts the Government into the liquor business * * * is based largely on emotion rather than on realistic facing of facts."

Standard Oil Fights Use of Name Here

Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey yesterday petitioned District Supreme Court for a temporary order prohibiting "Standard Oil Co. of D. C." from using that name on the ground of unfair competition.

The New Jersey corporation claimed it had used the word "Standard" in its oil business more than 20 years. The District concern secured a charter here recently.

Biting Officer's Finger Leads to Fine of $85

Otto Hoffman, 38, of 1414 U street northwest, yesterday was fined $85, with the alternative of 85 days in jail, by Judge John P. McMahon on a charge of assaulting a policeman.

Patrolman Bernard D. Crooks, Second Precinct, said Hoffman bit him on the finger and kicked him when the officer arrested him on a charge of intoxication.

Radio Waves and Ripples

LEOPOLD STOKOWSKI'S Philadelphia Orchestra goes back on the air today for the first time since last spring, in a special Columbia broadcast, beginning at 2:30 p. m., for an hour and a half.

Carl Goldmark's overture, "Sakuntala," will be the opening number of a program which will include Gilere's tone poem, "Yablochko," and Tschaikovsky's "Symphony No. 4 in F Minor."

It was the Stokowski orchestra for which Secretary Woodin ran off to play the guitar just when the Treasury wanted to refund some of its liberty bonds.

Whitecaps.

WRC—British impressions of America, S. P. B. Mais, introduction by Ambassador Bingham from London, 4:20 p. m.; "Wizard of Oz," child drama, 5:45 p. m.; Lum and Abner, 10:30 p. m. WMAL—Hanna Sisters, local song team, 9:45 p. m.; President Roosevelt speaking for the Women's Conference on Current Problems, 10 p. m.; Paul Whiteman, 11:31 p. m. WJSV—March of Time, season opening, 8:30 p. m.; All-American Football Show, 9:30 p. m.; Guy Lombardo, midnight. WOL—Wall Streeters, 12:45 p. m.; Northern Dramatic Company presentation, 7:30 p. m.; George Washington - Clemson football game, 8 p. m.

N. B. C. bosses here added William E. Coyle, of Bridgeport, Conn., to their staff of announcers yesterday.

Coyle comes from WTIC, Hartford. He is 23 and a Trinity College graduate.

The Lum and Abner show at the Washington Auditorium tonight continues the biggest thing on WRC minds.

Everything is to come off pretty much as reported, beginning with a WRC talent show at 9 and winding up with Lum and Abner broadcasting from 10:30 to 11.

Marie Fowler, Bert Bagranoff, Stanley Simmons, a 20-piece Rudolph Schramm orchestra, the Three Aces, Two Boys and a Girl, a hillbilly team and Rose Chanelle have been heard by the Lum and Abner management with varying degrees of enthusiasm. Any of them are likely to perform.

John Mayo and Robert Youse are the WMAL broadcasters of the Central-Eastern high school football game this afternoon from 3:15 to 5:15. Also, the N. B. C. college grid schedule calls for radioing of Michigan-Cornell at 1:45 p. m. and Northwestern-Stanford at 2:45 p. m. tomorrow.

WMAL Breakfast Clubman Arthur Godfrey has thrown out 300 records, replacing them with new ones, including a Stephen Foster anthology and Ravel's "Bolero."

Eddie Cantor's returning to the airwaves not later than November 5, possibly as early as October 29, according to N. B. C.'s contract listings. The Goldbergs have been signed to carry on until July, 1934.

WOL's football score guessers would make the so-called experts pretty much ashamed of themselves.

Part of Columbia's Monday broadcast, "The Big Show," is Isham Jones, bandman (left). Spaghetti forking is Ilomay Bailey's favorite pastime. She gets on the air whenever N. B. C. needs a soprano.

Last week's winner was right on every score but one, a 7-7 tie, which he figured should have been 7-6.

The bosses are glad some one thought up the contest idea—the three best guessers each week get their reward in passes to George Washington football games—because it's bringing the station a lot of mail.

Listener letters always make broadcasters happy.

Ronald Dawson, Northern Dramatic Co. boss, once wrote a New York radio script distributor for a selection of plays for WOL production.

He read them all, picked one for an airing.

Then some one pointed out the author's name.

It was John Gantt, WOL control engineer, who writes radio plays in his spare time.

Most studio peo have a finer eye for anniversaries than a bride.

Every time they start a new program, they remember the day of its beginning for a year, then light candles and celebrate, mildly, of course. They mean to enliven public interest in their efforts. It is as if they said:

"We've been doing this for a year now. It didn't seem so very long, did it?"

However, WJSV's Robert Trout had nothing whatsoever to do with his department's knowing that Sunday he will have completed a year of announcing and 25 years of living.

Trout takes the coincidence calmly by going right ahead with his scheduled announcing of the President at the Mobilization for Human Needs broadcast at 10 that night and getting to bed early.

Angelo Patri, Columbia child psychology radioer, makes way for the Presidential broadcast by moving off his regular spot to the 10:30 period. Just this once, though.

WJSV will carry the Ted Husing report of the Stanford-Northwestern game starting at 2:45 p. m. tomorrow.

And the Phil Spitalny band microphoning with Ethel Pastor, soprano, and Nicolini Cosentino, lisping tenor, is etherized at 8:30 tomorrow night.

Children's Hospital note: Elder Michaux declared a fast day, collected $300 from what his congregation was able to save on food.

Ripples.

New York's Senator Royal S. Copeland is an anticrime broadcaster for N. B. C. tonight, speaking from a United States Flag Association conference in the Shoreham at 10:15 . . . Nationalist Government foe, George Lansbury, is the next broadcaster on N. B. C.'s series on English politics Thursday at 4:15 p. m. . . . Alfred L. Stern, managing director, Washington Chamber of Commerce, radios "Preview of the 1933 Industrial Exposition" from WMAL at 9 Monday night . . . a receiving set manufactory reports production for the six months ending September 30 topped any similar period in its history.

Gadd Elected Head Of Funeral Directors

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 12 (AP).—Bert S. Gadd, of Indianapolis, today was elected president of the National Funeral Directors Association at the fifty-second annual convention.

Other officers elected include Joseph L. Galen, Philadelphia, first vice president; Arthur E. Cresse, Los Angeles, second vice president; John S. Rhodes, St. Petersburg, Fla., third vice president, and Harry J. Gilligan, Cincinnati, reelected secretary-treasurer.

Capital Students Selected.

Two Washington students were among the selections announced yesterday by fraternities at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. Raymond S. Patton, jr., was chosen by Psi Upsilon fraternity and James Henderson by Alpha Chi Rho.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Erosion of Teeth.

The dentists are solving their problems one by one, but at least two or three remain. One of these is that of the size and shape of the dental arch and variation, and its pattern of growth at different age periods. This, translated into practical problems, means when shall straightening of irregular teeth be begun? How long shall it be continued? What are the effects on the teeth of variation in the size and shape of the face and particularly of the arch of the palate?

Another problem is the prevention and cure of pyorrhea.

A third is the cause, prevention and cure of erosion. Erosion is the process through which deep, triangular depressions develop, usually in the front teeth. The furrows are fairly broad, extending from well in the enamel area to well in the root area, just without the gum line.

The word furrow is deliberately chosen as being descriptive. The same general appearance in a piece of ground is given by using a breaking plow to run a furrow across it. Erosion in the teeth looks as though some one had used a miniature plow fashioned to cut a triangular furrow; this had been set in a tooth well to one side and near the gum line, and had plowed straight across to the corresponding location on the opposite side of the mouth. Then, with some other tool, the furrow had been polished and smoothed and somewhat stained. The process is not one of decay, but the furrow occasionally is deep enough to cause the slabs of the crown to split off, and decay is apt to follow.

One of the first to investigate the cause of erosion was Dr. Miller, one of the great founders of scientific dentistry. He pronounced it a self-inflicted disease.

In a meeting of dentists held at Buffalo within a year Dr. W. I. Ferrier advocated much the same opinion. He submitted evidence that men wore furrows, and their location and pattern. He said the condition was found largely in persons who brushed their teeth most and kept them cleanest. The furrows were deepest on the left side of the mouth when the person held the toothbrush in his left hand. He advocated some change in methods of cleaning the teeth and in brushes. He favored filling the furrows in order to prevent them from excavating deeply enough to cause slabs of the tooth from splitting off.

Dr. J. S. Dohan disagreed with Dr Ferrier as to both his theory of causation and his methods. He said erosion was often found in men who never used a toothbrush and to whom tooth pastes and powders were unknown.

STRAIGHT TO NETTLETON

WE CAN buy—you can buy—lower priced shoes than Nettleton. We haven't chosen them on that basis. But we have watched a two-year shuffling of values in the shoe field and decided it was time to tie to a manufacturer who had the courage of his convictions—who refused to deviate from quality—who continues to build the finest shoes possible and maintain a reasonable price.

No adjectives describe the styling of these fine shoes as well as the shoes themselves. No claims for comfort or length of service are nearly as convincing as the experience of any Nettleton wearer.
